A DUTY.

Stupendous majorities beget stupendous responsibilities. The government of the state of Nebraska for the next two years will be wholly and entirely administered by the republican party. In no branch of it, legislative, judicial or executive can the party divide the responsibility. The ensuing legislature owes a duty to its party, but a greater duty to the tax payers of the state. Every member should exert every influence towards economy and should not vote for the appropriation of a single penny not absolutely necessary.

If the legislature will elect Hon. E. J. Barkett without delay, pass the appropriation bills which should carry no more money than is required and adjourn without necessary delay, the state of Nebraska is safely republican. If the legislature fails to do this, we may expect a continuation of the doubt which was apparent but a few weeks ago.

COUNTY MONEY.

Richardson County will have more money this year than it can legitimately use. It is the duty of every member of the board to use every effort to economize. We are assured that the two republican members elect will do so. We know that Messrs. Atwood and Zoeller will use every effort to reduce the expenses of the county. A large surplus is a great temptation to excessive expenditure. We trust that the next board will be able to resist the temptation.

In the meantime remember that we have kept the faith and have fought a good fight and that all the powers of evil aided and abetted by the everlasting office seekers will not avail in the end.

The meeting of the state central committee last week which promised to be sensational passed off without the slightest trouble. The republican party is big enough to stand success and the disgruntled individuals who were looking for trouble were run over without ceremony.

The Journal wails that the county central committee did not consult it during the last campaign. The county central committee would have been very glad to do so if it had dared. It went as far as safety would permit. Why should the republican party submit its plans to young Martin who is in democratic employ? Why should the republican party reveal its plan of campaign to men who were openly fighting the ticket? Why should the republican party consult the court reporter of a democratic judge? There is a great American game called poker and no one is more familiar with it than the Journal crowd. We are told that one of its cardinal rules is never to show your hand to your adversary. If the committee preferred to follow this rule, why should the Journal complain? Can the leopard change its spots? Can a man whose daily bread depends upon democratic will be trusted with the details of a republican campaign?

What a shame that of all the republican counties of the state, Richardson alone fell out of the brotherhood. Just nine fusion members of the next legislature and this county furnishes two of them. Every other republican county remained steadfast. Many counties heretofore democratic became republican. We alone have sinned. And yet there is a better day coming, when the petty malice and spite of a few disappointed men will not avail the opposition. The republican party knows its friends and its enemies and by this knowledge is prepared to wage the war with success in the future.

"The Martins did beat Reavis one year ago and they are proud of it."—The Falls City Journal. Once upon a time, long years ago, so the fable runs, a chariot was pursuing its lumbering way down the streets of Rome. A fly alighted upon its hub and watching the dust that was raised cried out in its thin, weak voice "see what a dust I am causing." The Miles estate ran a chariot whose wheels were sticky with "dough" through the judicial district last year and caught a good many flies among them being several democratic apostates. Never has discouragement struck them since but that as a relief from present repudiation and disaster their minds have recurred to the chariot ride and their weak, impotent voices have been raised with cries "Good Lord what a dust we flies did kick up."

Now that Thanksgiving is past it is time for the merchants to begin to think about the holiday trade. Of course they have all laid in a supply of goods to meet the demands, and now they must find buyers, and the way to do this is to advertise.

In this respect we wish to call their attention to the fact that The Tribune is the BEST advertising medium in the county. That's a plenty.

How People Lose Money

Despite the prevalence of robbery a goodly number of people continue to stow away money in Mugs, Jugs and Jars, by sewing it up in Skirts and Bed Ticks, by tucking it under Couches and Carpets, in cupboards and bureau drawers, or carrying it about in their pockets—thus endangering their lives and money. Better stow it away in the
