Telephone No. 226.

Feed the birds.

How would you like to be a bear and sleep all winter?

The oldest inhabitant has been a very busy man this winter.

The inter-state commerce fight is rapidly becoming a contest between the west and the east.

The prevailing question in these parts in 1950 will be, has the court decided the Miles will case?

Does it pay to have a grand jury? At a cost of nearly if not quite a thousand dollars, the total results are two men fined $30 each for running a gambling room. Every other case considered by the jury was already in court because of complaints made by the county attorney.

The News says with something of sarcasm that this paper inadvertently neglected to say that Mr. F. Shafer winner of the corn contest at the late farmers institute, chose the News as his prize. The only reason that we did not speak of it was that we did not know it. We now make amends and say that Mr. Shafer did make such choice and that he got a good newspaper when he did so.

The lower house of congress has passed the administration Inter-state commerce bill and it is now before the senate. It is safe to presume that those senators, such as Aldrich, Depew and others who owe their election to railroad influence will bitterly oppose the measure, and may succeed in defeating it. There never was a greater object lesson as to the needs of the direct primary in the selection of United States senators than the one now being given by that August and more or less honorable body.

W. A. Greenwald and F. W. Michel not only made Falls City known and felt in the state meeting of commercial clubs held at Fremont, but they were prime movers in the good roads discussion. Mr. Greenwald was a member of a committee which suggested needed legislation on the road question, and because of such labor there is a strong probability that the present legislature will enact a law on this subject. If Falls City had about twenty Greenwalds and Michels something would be doing sure enough.

The Humboldt Enterprise has taken up the divorce question. Don't worry about trifles Allan. The world obeys every contract save the sacred one of marriage. Following the precedents of years courts will declare the marriage annulled and separate parents and children upon evidence that would be insufficient to avoid a contract for the sale of the spotted cow called Speck. One third of the cases in the district court for Richardson county are divorce cases, and no matter how fast they are cleared up, the next term will disclose the usual number of men and women who have grown weary of the bonds and seek release through the lax methods of the law and its enforcements. Got married and if dissatisfied get a divorce, for so runs the world away.

The congressional situation in this district is causing all kinds of trouble between the Auburn papers. In last weeks issue the editor of the republican exhausted three columns in discussing the general cussedness of his adversary, the Herald. In the article were liberal quotations from Shakespeare, Ingersoll, Bryant, Burns, Goldsmith, Merritt and Emerson. Governor Mickey would better hurry and call a special election or the Lord only knows what will come next.

Arizona did not succeed in being admitted into the union, but she got Judge Tucker which is about as good.

THE FARMER'S FRIEND.

As was once said of the strawberry we now say of the quail, doubtless God could have made a prettier bird than the quail, but doubtless God never did. The little speckled beauty, that from his fence post greets the farmer in the early morning with his cheery call ringing clear as a bell over the hillside and down into the valley, is one of the Almighty's most charming creatures.

And he is more than ornamental; he spends the whole of his little life, ending as it usually does in tragedy, in fighting the pests of agriculture; destroying bugs and cut worms and picking up seeds that would germinate into crop smothering weeds.

In these days of cold and snow the little fellow is suffering from hunger. He, with his little brood is huddled in the fence rows and the hollows slowly starving to death. Cases have been reported of hunger so intense that the quails have alighted in the streets of a town unafraid. If the quail had nothing but his appealing beauty and his merry call, it would still be worth while to save him. In as much as he has helped you so many, many times, would it not be well to do a little something for him? If every farmer who reads this will clear

To the Women

We give particular attention to the business wants of women. Ladies, sometimes, are just a trifle timid about going to a bank to transact business. This shouldn't be so, and indeed, isn't so, with those who come to this bank, for we take special pains to familiarize them with the rules of banking and make them feel at home.

WE WELCOME small transactions, and gladly explain matters of business when called upon to do so. If you are not a patron of this bank, then please consider this an invitation to become one. Kindly read our remarks next week, as we then expect to point out some of the many advantages you will derive by following our advice.

a few feet of ground in his barn lot and sprinkle upon it a few quarts of grain, the weakened and starving birds will find it. If every house wife will strew a few crumbs from her table about the back yard it will mean life and returning strength to the little unfortunates who have had such a hard time this winter and who are even now wondering if the snow will never go and the summer never come.

"In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

Afraid of Strong Medicines.

Many people suffer for years from rheumatic pains, and prefer to do so rather than take the strong medicines usually given for rheumatism, not knowing that quick relief from pain may be had simply by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm and without taking any medicine internally. Rev. Amos Parker of Magonolia, North Carolina, suffered for eight years with a lame hip, due to severe rheumatic pains. He has been permanently cured by the free application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale at Kerrs Drug Store.

Jerry Hemphill was taken to the Mercy Hospital Saturday suffering with a very severe cold with symptoms of pneumonia. Prompt treatment and the best of care however, have put the old man on the road to recovery.
