OUR LIBRARY.

The Hiawatha World speaks in highest terms of our library, and urges its people to visit it when in Falls City. The citizens of this city cannot appreciate this splendid institution too greatly, nor over estimate the great service Mrs. Woods has been to our community in making the gift.

Do you realize that during the month of March sixty-one Falls City youngsters were either reading or having read to them standard historical works; forty-five were at work on biographies and one hundred and six were studying volumes on science. In addition to this, five hundred and eighty volumes of well selected juvenile fiction were taken from the library. Can you estimate what this culture will mean to the coming generation?

Go to the library some evening and see the children about the reading tables; some of them with St. Nicholas, some with the American Boy, some with books, but all busy in the cultivation of a taste for good reading. Reading maketh more than a full man; it makes for the appreciation of the best thought of great men, without which one misses so much of life.

But the library is more than the instructor of our children. This is demonstrated by the fact that during March two thousand seven hundred and seventy four people visited it, some to take books, otherwise inaccessible, to their homes, and some to spend the hour among the many periodicals upon the tables. Every evening without fail you will find two men sitting at the same table reading the daily papers. Every evening in the same place sit two men grown gray in life's labors, going over the world's affairs as revealed in the press dispatches. They sit very quietly until the closing hour comes and then, returning the papers to the files they go out into the night, to return quite punctual on the opening of the next evening. I have sometimes thought that Miss Morton must look for them and anticipate their coming, and that she would miss them were they not in their accustomed places. That they have grown to be a part of the evenings at the library, just as the books, the papers and the quiet, restful hum of childish lips syllabbling out their first lessons. I have sometimes thought that one must rest very quietly, who had left the world so much better and happier. I have sometimes thought that our people do not sufficiently appreciate our library and the memory of Mrs. Woods.

REP. W. H. HOGREFE.

No member of the last legislature was more rigid in his ideas of duty, or more zealous in the interest of the people than W. H. Hogrefe. He was found on the right side of every proposition. He worked and voted for the drainage law. He was always on the side of progressive road legislation. He voted for the biennial election bill. He favored the anti-trust measure. He voted for the anti-pass bill, and the commodity freight rate bill. In all of his official conduct he made performance square with promise, and measured up to the requirements of his office, just as his friends were assured he would do.

President Roosevelt has been through the south and has yet to find the enemies country.

There are several Falls City young men who have been taking the rest cure all of their lives.

Have you ever done the right thing at the right time without being told? If you have, there is hope for you.

The Verdon Vedette has located the division at Verdon. The matter being settled, let's clean up the alleys.

Hiawatha has song and dance specialties with Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. They would cut out Hamlet's soliloquy and put in a monologue specialty over there.

Lest we forget: Forty years ago last Sunday occurred an incident at Appamattox court house that has resulted in the greatest and most liberal government among men.

The Journal and News have each declared for W. S. Leyda for congress. This is as it should be, for brethren should always dwell together in unity. But, what ticket is he to run on?

Onions are ripe. One of our local school marms who can not eat them, said, since the open season for onions, she is compelled to hang her head out the window every few minutes to keep from smothering.

Have you ever done anything but live—just live? You can't help living you know. The Almighty made life an involuntary function. He wants to give you time and opportunity to do something else. Have you done it?

For the Encouragement

Of those who appear to think that because their income or wages are small, they can not save any money, the following instance may serve to give all such new hopes and aspirations.

The writer knows a girl who came here a few years ago to work in one of the homes of this city. She was truly trustworthy—held in high esteem—dressed well, but not extravagantly and made her associates among the best of young people.

When She got married, and with her husband moved on a farm, she had nearly $200.00 saved up and on deposit in the

and this was not all—she provided herself with a very liberal supply of bedding, linens and many other needful articles for their new home. Why not follow her example? This bank stands ready at all times to help you save your money, and accepts deposits from $1.00 and upwards.

the proud mother of three sightless kittens. Two neighbor girls immediately locked their old tom cat in the same shed. No results have followed though three days have passed, but the little girls are still hopeful.

About Rheumatism.

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffers when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? For sale by Kerrs Drug Store,
