Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Very Best.

"I have been using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and want to say it is the best cough medicine I have ever taken," says Geo. L. Chubb, a merchant of Harlan, Mich. There is no question about it being the best, as it will cure a cough or cold in less time than any other treatment. It should always be kept ready for instant use, for a cold can be cured in much less time when promptly treated. For sale by Kerr's Drug Store.

SEEING LONDON IN A FOG!

Efforts to View English Capital Are Almost Useless as Mist Days Are Murky.

He knew his London well, declares the National Magazine. We went forth in a fog that was of a pea-soup variety. It seemed useless to wait any longer for it to clear off. The days were all alike and were darker than twilight ever dared to be. I clung to Mulford's coatsleeve, for I knew if he were once to get beyond my reach I could never hope to find him again. We groped blindly among the streets, where the atmosphere was only less palpable than the houses that walled us in. At intervals we inquired where we were, for otherwise we could never have known at all. We had to feel our way carefully and take soundings at intervals. "Here," said

Prentice, as we paused in space, "here is Temple Bar!" I thought I saw something that might have been the ghost of an arch hewn out for the solid fog. The top of it, though it was not lofty, was lost to view. Temple Bar, now gone forever from the place where its gates once swung in the wall of the old city. It was here her gracious majesty Victoria of England was wont to receive the keys of the city from the hands of the lord mayors when she drove in state to St. Paul's cathedral. We threaded Fleet street, but could not see the farther shore.

"Here is his majesty's tower," said Prentice, but nothing of it was visible, not one stone upon another. We crossed London bridge almost without knowing it; the waters of the Thames, which were but condensed fog, were invisible from the parapet, and the steam ferries were picking their way cautiously and looking very like marine monsters in a muddy aquarium. We crawled through the tunnel for foot traffic under the Thames, which was like a hole in the fog, and for hours carried the sky about on our shoulders; it was a woolly, greasy and ill-smelling sky. Our nostrils were clogged with cinders, like chimney flues, and there were smudges all over our faces. Sometimes for a moment or two we saw a spot overhead that was like a pale red wafer and we knew it for the sun, now lost to us. The lamps that burned all day were like glow-worms for dimness; and so we explored the wonders of the town and saw as much of it as a blind man sees, but no more.

Some Poultry and Eggs.

The imports of poultry and eggs into Great Britain in 1902, 1903 and 1904 were valued at $31,000,000, $33,000,000 and $33,500,000, respectively, the small increase in 1904 being attributed mainly to the enhanced home production, though partly due perhaps to the hard times. As usual Russia was the largest contributor of eggs—35 per cent. of the entire import—and Denmark, with 18 per cent., was next. The United States does not appear separately. In the poultry list, however, the United States stands fourth.

Collecting Monuments.

Collecting monuments is the queerest hobby we have yet heard of. It is the specialty of a Pennsylvania millionaire Quaker. For 40 years he has spent time and money hunting for tombstones, pedestals, headpieces, broken columns, gravestones, and monuments erected to commemorate Biblical events and American history. He has them erected in a cemetery lot reserved for the purpose, and spends much of his leisure admiring his collection.
