

We Do Business On The SQUARE

Our Great President said "Every man shall have a square deal."

"Them's our Sentiments"

We include women and children in this proposition. When we sell Shoes to anybody a square deal always goes with the Shoes.

We sell the best shoes we can buy, as low as we can afford to sell them, and our guarantee goes with every sale we make. Money back should the Shoes you buy go wrong in any way.

Spring Footware is now ready and we have a square deal waiting for every patron.

Mrs. Carrie J. Shaw and granddaughter, Laura, left Saturday afternoon for New York, where they will spend the summer.—Hiawatha World.

Funny that Hiawatha, which has most every lodge under the sun, has not yet an order of Elks. Two car loads of Omaha Elks established a lodge at Falls City Friday night. A great time was there, my countrymen.—Hiawatha World.

Miss Mary Strunk has been elected primary teacher of the Dawson schools for the ensuing year.

Messrs. Larabee, Boss, Weissman, Avery, Stephenson, Griffiths and Heinzelman were among the many in town Saturday who remembered the printer.

The apple crop that promised so well at blooming time looks very different now; The Jonathan being particularly shy, it is presumed that the cold during the time the trees were in blossom caused the fruit to drop. The Ben Davis, Milam, Northern Spy and Jannetts seem to have enough yet to yield a fair crop.—Salem Index.

Thursday of last week was the anniversary of birth of Mr. James K. McDowell. His wife planned and carried out a very nice surprise on him. A small company of friends was invited in for the evening and the time was most pleasantly spent. The guests found Mr. McDowell feeling in the best of spirits and he proceeded to dress up a la comedian, apply burnt cork and grease paint to his erstwhile Napoleonic features, and entertain them with comical songs and sayings. We are told that he is very versatile, and the patrons of the local theatre should insist on his appearance at the first home talent production.—Tecumseh Chieftain.

Much corn has been re-planted the second time this spring, and in some fields even the third time. A. J. Wilson had to go over nearly all of seventy acres the third time. Three reasons are given for the re-planting, and are applicable to different fields, or the three conditions may prevail in the same field; poor seed; on account of the dry weather all good seed did not germinate; a white worm working on the seed kernels. These worms are very small, and in some cases as many as half dozen have been found at work on one seed kernel.—Shubert Citizen.

Secretary Shildneck of the chautauqua association tells us that the program is very near complete and that within a couple of weeks he hopes to have his contracts all signed up and will then be able to make known the personal of his speakers. The dates are August 12 to 20.—Salem Index.

JUST WHAT EVERYONE SHOULD DO.

Mr. J. T. Barber of Irwinville, Ga., always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy at hand ready for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used." Sold at Kerr's drug store.

PLANTS OBEY WILL OF MAN

Praise Will Raise Them to Ecstatic
Joy While Blame Causes
Wilting.

Now that scientists have demonstrated that metals, which we have been taught belong to the catalogue of inorganic substances, can be poisoned and restored by antidotes, can be overworked and refreshed by a period of rest, and otherwise respond to many of the same influences to which living things are subject, it is not impossible to believe the statement that flowers exhibit sensibilities not unlike those of human beings and other of the higher animals, says the Chicago Tribune. Recent experiments prove that plants have in some cases far finer sensibilities than many modern mortals, since a word of praise will, it is stated, raise them to ecstatic joy and expansion, while blame will so crush their feelings that they die, broken hearted.

Col. Andraede, in the account of his life in Mexico, tells an extraordinary story of the will power exercised over plants and the results. He is an ardent lover of flowers, and, possessing strong hypnotic force, the idea occurred to him one day to test the strength of his will on the vegetable kingdom.

He selected two flowering plants of the same kind, both in equally good health and just bursting into generous bloom. Standing near one, he put forth all his mental will power, bidding it to obey him in every way. He commanded it to develop courage and sturdiness, to rejoice in its health and strength, and to develop its sweetness and beauty to the utmost of its power.

Every day he lingered near the plant for a considerable time, giving it all the moral encouragement possible, praising it, flattering it, coaxing it, and, in fact, making absolute love to it.

The plant responded in the most remarkable manner to this stimulating treatment, producing finer blossoms than had ever before been seen of the sort, and sending forth, as though in gratitude, a richer, rarer perfume. Indeed, it seemed absolutely to become personified, and to wish to attain a state of absolute perfection for its master's sake. It actually appeared to recognize him, and seemed to lean toward him at his approach.

On the other hand the colonel treated the second plant in an opposite manner. He disparaged it, scolded it, sneered at its flowers, and was altogether so cruel and unkind that in three days the barely opened blossoms began to wither and within a month the plant actually withered away and died as if of a broken heart.

From this the colonel deduces that plants, etc., may be guided and governed in their growth and development by that animal magnetism which we all possess to some degree. It must be explained that both plants received scrupulously the same gardening care and that the colonel never touched either. —
