His bond was placed at $150 and the young man put up the amount in cash and he was allowed to depart.

Big Land Deal.

John R. Smith has sold his fine farm adjoining the city on the northeast, to Henry Whitrock. This farm includes 160 acres of the finest land in the county and is, in all respects, a model farm. The price paid was $17,500, which is a fair index of the prevailing prices of Richardson county realty. The deal was made through Henry C. Smith.

Married.

Clara Babb and Edwin Glines were married at St. Francis Catholic church in this city at 8 o'clock Monday morning, the ceremony being performed by Father Bex in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

The groom was raised in this city and has a great many warm personal friends, by whom he is highly regarded. The bride is also a Falls City product, a daughter of the late Dan Babb, and a young lady who commands the respect and the highest regards of all.

Mr. Glines is at present employed in a large cigar factory at Painville, Mo., and left on Wednesday for that place. Mrs. Glines expects to join him in a few weeks and they will make their future home at that place. Both bride and groom share in the congratulations and best wishes of all their many Falls City friends.

Mrs. Hal Harris is in Reserve this week visiting her parents.

School Board Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the board of education held on Monday evening W. H. DeWalt was elected janitor of the high school building for the next school year. September 11th was fixed as the date for the opening of the city schools. A. B. Everett was awarded the contract for laying cement walks on the south side of the Central school and on the west side of the Harlan street school.

Investigated Assessments.

County Assessor Jern and Supervisor McCray have returned from a trip made for the purpose of investigating the assessment of real estate in Cass and Otoe counties for this fiscal year. They found that the assessments in these counties is considerable higher than that of Richardson county realty. The investigation was made to determine the advisability of a proposed increase in the valuation of farm lands in the county.

Tore up the Walk.

The residents along West Steele street have been trying to outdo each other in the matter of laying brick and cement walks. Such walks had been laid along the entire north side of the street with the exception of a stretch along a vacant lot owned by a non-resident. The owner postponed the laying of a permanent walk longer than some people thought he should, and some time Monday night the old board walk was torn up and thrown into the street. Whether or not this action will result in securing a permanent walk along the south side of said lot, remains to be seen.

Tales of the Town.

The tent in which gospel meetings have been held for some weeks past, has been removed from its location just north of the court house. Meetings were held all last week notwithstanding the fact that a street fair was in progress, and every night the little band of worshippers met and held divine services, heedless of the throng of revellers that passed up and down the sidewalk in front of the tent. Sometimes when the sound of the merry-go-round organ had ceased for the moment, or a lull came in the clamor and turmoil of the carnival, the strains of the little cabinet organ could be heard bravely playing its accompaniment to some good old gospel hymn. Then a great billow of noise and confusion would break over the little tent and when it in turn had spent its force and rolled away, the sound of a voice lifted in prayer would reach the ears of such of the street fair revellers who chanced to be passing the tent at that moment. It seemed as though the worshippers were laboring against tremendous odds, but doubtless the God who hears the prayer of the little child above the thunder storm, heard all that was sung and said within the walls of the little tent that stood in the midst of the street fair.

The issue of The Tribune containing the picture of Stone street in 1866, attracted much attention and many varied were the comments made by the older citizens who examined it. To each one the picture called up some different memory, and one story recalled another until wherever two or three gray haired men were seen gathered together, and one of them holding a copy of The Tribune, it was certain that the past was being lived over again and strange tales being related and long forgotten incidents recalled. It is remarkable how clear is the memory of most of these old men. All that is necessary is an incident like the appearance of the picture to arouse sluggish recollections and then to these men things that happened forty years ago are as the things that happened yesterday, and tongues are loosened and the conversation on such occasions is very interesting to the younger generations. Forty years from now we will all be old, gray haired men and when we look at a picture of Stone street as it is today we, too, will have strange tales to tell, but they will not be so exciting, neither will they be such vivid reflections of a real strenuous life as are the stories that the old men of today tell us.

The teachers' institute will be in session next week. The teachers are coming from all over the county to spend a week in study and review and to better prepare themselves for the duties that they are to resume when the summer vacation is ended. There will be bright faced and enthusiastic young men and women, each with a definite object in view, and their presence will be an inspiration, as it has always been, to those who are interested in the public school and all that the institution stands for. Falls City has had some notable gatherings in the way of conventions, assemblies, conferences, etc., but no meeting has ever been held in the city that is of more real importance than the Richardson county teacher's institute. A large and successful institute means better school work next year and if there is anything more important than that, we would like to know what it is.

Very few people outside of those directly interested in educational work, realize the nature of the talent engaged for the special features of the institute. Lecturers of wide reputation and great ability come here every year and add their contribution to the intellectual betterment of the town. Taking it all together, the institute is a fine thing for the town and the teachers will find themselves very welcome.
