Tales Without Morals.

I heard them this morning—those guns that sent their deep reverberations up from the low lands south of town, where the white mists of the morning were offering their last resistance to the lances of the sunlight. And then I knew that men were crouching, keen eye and alert, in low bivouacs of tangled reeds and grasses, and over them was the music of wings and the white powder smoke mingled with the white mists of the morning—the golden rays of the conquering sunrise touched the green head of the big mallard as he tumbled headlong among the decoys that rode so prim and stately on the bosom of the lake. All this I saw in fancy, for I suppose that things are now as they used to be long ago when I heard the music of wings that beat the morning air and felt that thrill that I knew somebody was feeling when I heard the guns booming at sunrise this morning.

It is said that over in a neighboring county a man went fishing and in the course of time, he got a bite, but the fish got away taking the bait with him. The man was in the act of putting a fresh worm on the hook when a deputy game warden came out from the adjacent timber and arrested him. The man became angry and exclaimed "Why have I been arrested? Can't a man re-bait his hook without a fool game warden pinching him for it?" "You should know," said the warden, "that the courts have decided that rebates are illegal." And what the man thought about it, was plainly contempt of court.

The suppressed excitement of an election day is peculiarly an American condition said a well known politician to a Tribune reporter Tuesday morning. "Even the most staid and practical of men are subject to it and I doubt if it is possible for any man to transact his business quite as well on election day as he does on other days. The knowledge of the fact that the people of a great state or of a great nation are exercising the sacred rights of their citizenship seems to produce a marked psychological effect. When even a very practical and unemotional man visits a vast cathedral where solemn services are in progress his soul comes under the spell of an environment that produces effect something similar to those felt on election day. This comparison may be just a little far-fetched but it is relevant just the same." And then the well known politician paused to ask a passing friend whether the beautiful weather would be more to the advantage of the democrats or the republicans.

I can pity him who suffers and must bear a heavy cross, he whose body is afflicted; he who has financial loss. I can weep with him whose tear drops wet the coffin of a friend, or the sinner who repentant lets the prayer of faith ascend. But I feel the deepest pity and my sympathy is great, for that sore afflicted mortal—the defeated candidate.

The weather all week has been all that autumn weather in Nebraska could be. The days, though short, have been full of God's sunlight, and the walk to work in the morning in the fresh crispness of a new day, and the walk home again in the evening through the first shadows of an autumn night had brought each its separate joy and compensation. And all through this beautiful week I had looked forward to the Sabbath, when I should be free to wander over the purple hills and down into the brown valleys. But when the Sabbath came, the sky was clouded and the drizzling rain fell and my hopes were as the apples of Sodom which crumbled into ashes. But from it all I learned a lesson—he who builds hopes of future pleasure on conditions of the weather, is building upon quicksands, which we admit is a very foolish thing to do.

How To Teach Spelling.

Words should be classified by grades, according to their "content" rather than their number of syllables or any other artificial arrangement. When a child sees a word, and comprehends its use he should learn to spell it.

The words for the several grades be, as far as possible, those common to and properly belonging to the grade.

In theory a spelling book is not needed, but in practise a book with a proper classification of words is indispensable.

The spelling of all usable words should be taught in connection with the reading and other lessons in which they occur, but is necessary to have a list of such words, together with other common words that a child should learn to spell, for review and for regular work in spelling.

Dist. 93, O. W. James, teacher. There will be a basket sociable held in the Franklin Centre school house four miles north of Humboldt, Friday evening, December 1st. A nice program is being prepared. The proceeds to be used in buying things needed in the school. Everybody come and bring baskets. They will be sold to the highest bidder.

Dist. No. 80, Edna Lytle teacher.—We are getting along nicely with our school work and enjoy it even more than last year. All the children take an interest in their work. We have thirty-one scholars and the last quarter sixteen were neither tardy nor absent.

School Notes from Stella Press.

We are informed that Roscoe James, another of our boys, at the state normal, is doing good work.

Herbert Hays of our school is doing excellent eleventh grade work in the Omaha high school. He is very enthusiastic, and is working hard.

Clyde Baldwin is president of the literary society this term. He is an excellent president; so just that his decision has, as yet, never been appealed from.

We have a literary program every other Friday at the high school. Recitations, essays, orations, songs debates and parliamentary law are the principal exercises.

We think we now have the best janitor in the county. The hat racks, wainscoting, desks and chairs receive a daily cleaning. One of the best compliments we have heard was by one of the high school girls who remarked that she could now wear a white dress a week without having it soiled.

Frank Weller, a graduate of 1904, is doing good work at the state university. His classmates think that, if he were to complete the course, he would graduate with special honor. It was, indeed, pleasing to learn from him that all his Stella work fits in, so to speak, at the university. He has 27 points, and can graduate three years after this year.

We were pleased to note that all the best schools throughout the state were represented at the Superintendent's and Principal's Association at Lincoln. These meetings are very beneficial, and are gotten up especially to aid and better the school systems of Nebraska. If some of these "unprogressive boards of education" would arrange affairs so their principal could attend, we think we would soon find no schools with three high school grades for one teacher. At the same time, the 20-minute recitation period in the high school would vanish. It has been said, "As the teacher, so is the school." We will add, "As the board of education, so is the teacher."

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The president to-day issued his proclamation naming Thursday, November 30, next, as a day for thanksgiving. The proclamation follows:

"By the President of the United States:

"Proclamation: When, nearly three centuries ago, the first settlers came to the county which has now become this great republic, they fronted not only hardship and privation, but terrible risk to their lives. In those grim years the custom grew of setting apart one day in each year for a special service of thanksgiving to the Almighty for preserving the people through the changing seasons. The custom has now become national and hallowed by immemorial usage.

"We live in easier and more plentiful times than our forefathers, the men who with rugged strength faced the rugged days, and yet the dangers to national life are quite as great now at any previous time in our history. It is eminently fitting that once a year our people should set apart a day for praise and thanksgiving to the Giver of good, and at the same time, that they express their thankfulness for the abundant mercies received, should manfully acknowledge their shortcomings and pledge themselves and a good faith to strive to overcome them.

"During the past year we have been blessed with bountiful crops. Our business prosperity has been great. No other people has ever stood on as high a level of material well-being as ours now stands. We are not threatened by foes from without. The foes from whom we should pray to be delivered are our own passions appetites and follies, and against these there is always need that we should war.

"Therefore, I now set apart Thursday, the 30th day of November, as a day of thanksgiving for the past and prayer for the future, and on that day I ask that throughout the land the people gather in their homes and places of worship, and in rendering thanks unto the Most High for the manifold blessings of the past year consecrate themselves to a life of cleanliness, honor and wisdom, so that this nation may do its allotted work on the earth in manner worthy of those who preserve it.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this 2nd day of November, in the year of Our Lord One Thousand, Nine Hundred and Five, and the Independence of the United States the One Hundred and Thirtieth.

(Signed,) "THEODORE ROOSEVELT,"
By the President:
ELIHU ROOT,
"Secretary of State."

PRESTON SCHOOL NOTES.

The following pupils in the principal's room have been neither absent nor tardy during the month ending Oct. 27, 1905.—Evelyn Shely, Elmer Wilson.

Millard Maddox, Elsie Wilson, Earl Ford, Sadie Daeschner Wm Pribbeno, Rhine Zoeller, Leo Morris, Herbert Zoeller, May Pribbeno, Ruth Bowersox, Anna Pribbeno and Sena Zoeller have not been absent but each has been tardy once. We now have our new supplies and the pupils are all doing excellent work.

Dist. 15, Pearl Cunningham, teacher. Those neither absent nor tardy for the first quarter are: Earle Johnson, Peter Ellinger, Dorris Mason, and Lester Vandeventer. Quarterly examinations were held this week from out text books and on the Course of Study. The questions were opened by Lester Vandeventer. Peter Ellinger and Carl Myer. The School Board built good barn for the teacher's horse last Saturday. Three pupils are absent from school gathering corn.

Dist. 29 Nellie Dunn teacher dismissed Friday Oct., 27 for one month's vacation.

Dist. No. 2, Georgia L. Wells teacher.—Enrollment 11. The pupils are all interested in their work. On account of sickness Florence Oberly has not been able to attend school until recently. Alfred Meister had his hand crushed in a cider mill and has not been able to attend school the past few weeks. We shall have three new pupils after the corn is gathered.

Dist. No. 42, Helen Smith, teacher. Total enrollment 39. Three are new beginners. The summer vacation hardly caused a break in our work. We have every thing a good school could wish for. Those neither absent nor tardy during the month of September are Zephia Spurgeon, Frank Spurgeon, Lee, Willie and Robert Anderson. We have good maps, text books and a fine library of fifty volumes. I think we shall have six eighth grade graduates this year. The interest throughout all the grades is good especially in the second and third.

Dist. 83, Mary Dodds teacher, Enrollment 19. We are getting along nicely. The board plastered the school room then covered it with blue alabastine. They painted the out side also and expect to put guards on the windows. We have been making a collection of leaves and pressing them for study. School closed October 27, for a four week's vacation.

Herb W. Edwards Injured.

Herb W. Edwards of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising his knees. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared. I feel that this bottle of Pain Balm saved me several days time to say nothing of the suffering." This liniment is for sale at Kerr's Drug Store.
