A Successful Experiment.

The Auburn commercial club has been at work all summer building a macadam road across the valley of the Nemaha leading into that city from the north. The government furnished three experts and the necessary machinery to accomplish the purpose, the club bears all other expenses. While the road is not complete, and will not be until next spring, it stands to day as one of the most perfect and enduring piece of road making in the west. It furnishes the farmer a safe, level and dry highway over which to haul his produce at any and all seasons of the year. Auburn has grasped the necessity of making a city attractive and then making it easy to get into. Falls City should commence to take notice.
