The Similarity in Washington and Richardson County Politics.

The struggle of the President to get a railroad rate bill through congress is a severe one. Everybody anticipated that the fight would be bitter and the event always in doubt. It was expected that the mighty railroad lobby, mighty in a certain character of ability, influence and wealth, would exhaust every resource to defeat the desire of President Roosevelt and the demands of the people. All expectations have been realized. The railroad lobby has combined its forces with the mine owner's lobby from Arizona that is determined to defeat the joint statehood bill of Arizona and New Mexico. In addition to this strong organization the sugar and tobacco trusts, that desired the defeat of the Phillipine tariff bill, have put in their oar. Altogether the President is in for the fight of his life and the outcome is anxiously awaited by those who desire a government for the people instead of a government for special interests.

It is said that Washington is now the seat of the most powerful lobbies in the nation's history. Lawyers, whose services demand a thousand dollars a day, men who are known to have influence with senators and the thousand and one retainers who can contribute to the success of the railroad and mine owner's fight are making their homes in Washington this winter. There is no secret concerning it, these interests are brazen and audacious, more so than ever before. The Review of Reviews, one of the most reliable and conservative magazines published, in speaking recently of the lobby to defeat the joint statehood bill said: "It may be said with some caution, but with probable truth, that at no time for twenty years past have lobby interests been so powerful and at the same time so insidious at Washington as in the present legislative season. The great corporations propose to thwart the President's plans for the more effective regulation of railways. For various reasons, they propose to obstruct the Government's policy in the matter of the Panama canal. They are bent upon preventing the passage of the statehood bill that would unite New Mexico and Arizona and admit them as a single state. This latter opposition comes from the mining and railroad companies of Arizona. These Arizona mining companies own property worth hundreds of millions of dollars upon which they pay no taxes at all. They seem to be able to control Arizona for their own ends. But if Arizona were united with New Mexico they would be in danger of losing control, and might be subjected to something like reasonable taxation. They can array immense influences in roundabout and unsuspected ways and they can afford to spend a fabulous sum of money to defeat the pending statehood bill. It is to be feared that there have been attempts to influence members of congress in this situation by the gifts of mining stocks and like improper methods."

With this condition so well known, with congressmen the constant familiars of men representing these vast interests, being dined by them, running down to New York in their company, etc., it was not surprising that when the Phillipine tariff bill came up insurgents in both parties were developed. Congressman Babcock, who was the chairman of the national republican congressional committee and who, by reason such position, had assisted in the election of many members, came out as the leader of the opposition to the President, and the strength developed by him was astounding. So strong was the opposition that the statehood bill has been kept in committee for more than two weeks beyond its time because the President and Speaker Cannon were fearful of defeat if it were reported now. The Phillipine tariff bill passed with the assistance of democratic votes, without which it would have been defeated. Congressmen Norris and Kinkaid of Nebraska, voted against the administration and with the lobby. What the result of the statehood bill will be will soon be determined, possibly before this is in print. But the fight is on and the people are watching it carefully.

To those who have watched events the present contest does not come as a surprise. But the writer has often wondered what excuse, or what reason if you prefer that word, the recalcitrant congressmen would give for their betrayal to the people. What reason do you suppose they give? Nothing more nor less than the word we are so familiar with in Richardson county, that is, BOSSISM. The President has become a political boss and is usurping our rights and prerogatives, they say. We are free men, we insist on our liberty, say they and run off to lobby headquarters to be patted on the back. The President called Representative Miner, of Wisconsin to the white house to remonstrate with him upon his course. Miner immediately gave out an interview in which he said that he did not know that Roosevelt had been elected to congress from his district, that he as the congressman was a free man and would not stand for a political boss. Oh, Liberty, what crimes have been committed in thy name! The President is not a boss, he believes in his country and its people. He is struggling for legislation in their interest and is fighting a powerful lobby. In such a contest there must be organization, a head, a leader. The President has taken this place. Those whose conduct will not bear inspection nor investigation; those who are contesting in favor of legislation adverse to the people, try to explain their conduct and to throw the blame upon him who is today the people's champion, by calling him a boss. The devil can quote scripture to prove his ends and the corrupt politician can succeed in hiding his own shame with some by taking advantage of the present agitation against the boss and saying his conduct is the result of his own purity and his abhorrence of a boss.

The election held in Richardson county last fall is probably far enough removed to permit of a proper perspective. Before the convention at Stella there appeared as candidates some of the best men in the county. The ticket nominated was as strong, as clean, as able as any ticket ever nominated in the county. Those who attended that convention can vouch for the statement that every delegate cast his ballot without interference or pressure of any kind. The ticket nominated represented the free and untrammelled choice of Richardson county republicans. No sooner had the convention adjourned than the old crowd of booters that had not voted a republican ticket in four years, set up a howl of bossism. At the dictation of certain democrats whom they have served long and faithfully, they began an organized effort to defeat the ticket. They worked with the chairman of the democratic committee during the entire campaign, and some of them at least, received the returns with Clay Davis, Ed Falloon and other prominent democrats at democratic headquarters the night of election. E. O. Lewis, a delegate to the convention was quoted in the Hiawatha World as boasting over the defeat of the republican ticket, the extract being afterwards published in the Falls City News.

To those members of congress who are fighting their party and opposing the will of the people there will come a day of reckoning. You may fool all of the people some of the time only. To those men in Richardson County who year by year seek the defeat of the party they claim as their own and seek to justify their conduct on the ground of bossism, the reckoning of political oblivion has already come. Any organization must have leaders whose advice will be sought and whose effort will be used in carrying political strings. There are no organizations to be formed here is

Then after the result was achieved, because of their efforts, they attributed the defeat to bosses, thereby attempting to hide their responsibility and lay the blame upon those who always support their party, not alone by their votes, but by their efforts in season and out.

The truth of the matter is that Richardson county has no boss. There are men who would like to be bosses, but because of their continued party treachery the party will have none of them, consequently there is the usual bolt. It is a rule or ruin policy. The statement has been made by one of them to the effect that they will continue to defeat the party until they are permitted to dictate its policy. There was no bosses in the Stella convention, nor did any one attempt to dictate the nominations. The second ward of Falls City voted unanimously for but one candidate and that was Mr. Tanner, the reason for that being that Mr. Tanner lived in that ward. On every other office the ward divided its vote. Yet the second ward is the home of those men whom the bolting element call the bosses. If to be a boss means to vote the republican ticket and not the democratic ticket, then there are bosses in Richardson county. If to be a boss means to contribute time and money to the organization, then there are bosses in Richardson county. If to be a boss means to drive the county by day and night, leaving one's business and making a sacrifice in money and comfort for the party may succeed, then there are bosses in Richardson county. If to be a boss means to go to school houses and preach the gospel of the party while other men claiming to be republicans remain at home to criticize and to lend aid and comfort to the opposition, then there are bosses in Richardson county. If such be the conduct of a boss there is at least one element in Richardson county politics that will never be accused of bossism.

There were a few timid souls in the county who were deceived by the cry of bossism. The News, that at times has not a very strong sense of humor, took up the cry and wrote columns concerning it; the democratic candidates whose nominations were agreed upon by Miles, Morehead and Davis, long before the democratic convention met, talked it along the highways and byways of the county; the bolting element of the republican party added to the cry at any and all times, and defeat was the portion of men who were entitled to more consideration at the hands of the party. To those candidates who were defeated before the Stella convention the opposition sung a siren's song to the effect that they could have been nominated if the republican leaders would have done just a little dictating. To the public at large the statement was made that the nominations were dictated by bosses. So it went, from one element they sought support by saying the boss wouldn't boss, from another element they sought support with the statement that the bosses did boss. It was anything to "beat Grant."

money to raise, there are speeches to be made and these things must be accomplished by the patriotic republicans who desire the success of their party and are willing to make the sacrifice in such interest. Such men will always have something to say about a party's policy, but no more than any other loyal republican. It will be a sorry day indeed when the party organization is given into the hands of its enemies or into the hands of those men who are amenable to democratic dictation and who gave as the excuse, or the reason, if you prefer that word, for their conduct, that they are opposed to bosses and bossism.

A Falls City young lady was walking down the street of a neighboring city one muddy afternoon lately, and an old lady behind her thought she was disclosing her proportions to an unwarranted extent and said: "I beg pardon Miss, but I do not believe you know how high you are holding your skirts," to which the Miss is said to have replied, "these are my legs aren't they," and taking another reef in her lingerie she sailed proudly on.
