Our poet is on a strike this week, but if a suffering public will permit him a few weeks longer of life he may do something to astonish you.

Our time honored friend H. D. Weller of Stella spent a few days in this city last week watching the grind of county court and renewing acquaintance among the throng that congregate. We acknowledge a pleasant call from this genial and companionable gentleman.

The Burlington yards are filled with huge walnut logs sawed from timber in the north part of the county and being shipped to eastern markets. This is the most valuable timber grown today. Walnut is very scarce and is becoming more so. A man with a walnut grove composed of trees of good size has a bonanza.

The young lady of whom we recently spoke without mentioning any name as having made a pert remark to a kindly old lady who remonstrated with her for the manner in which she was holding her skirts, has sent us a perky little note saying it isn't true. Wonder how she knew we meant her.

Even though the admonition is not a daily necessity in Falls City such crowds as have been on the streets for several Saturdays past make it necessary for people to keep to the right in walking. Last Saturday afternoon a reporter had great difficulty in making his way down stone street because of the fact that the other fellow persisted in walking on the wrong side. Walk as you drive turn to the right everybody and see how much easier it is to get along.

Trade with the business men who extend an invitation and hearty welcome through the columns of the papers. You are positive that he wants your trade and is not too close and penurious to ask for it. The business man who is too close to ask for trade in the home paper might be too close to give down weights or full measure. The wide awake business man is ever offering inducements for trade. Watch the columns carefully and tell them that you saw such in his advertisement. He will appreciate it every time.

The Tribune acknowledges the receipt of a fine calendar from that enterprising, willing firm, Cooper & Linn, of Humboldt. As usual the best is none too good for these gentlemen and this season's calendar is certainly a beauty.

In after years when the future publishers of The Tribune go to the old files of the paper to republish what happened ten or twenty years ago, let the following be recorded: On Sunday, January 28, 1906, several picnic parties enjoyed the warm and balmy day in the woods, kicking the dead leaves about, eating pickles and pie, and lying upon the brown sod watching the fleecy clouds float lazily across the sky.

Here is a problem for the school boy. A farmer has a twelve gallon pail full of milk, a little girl calls with a five gallon pail and asks for five gallons of milk; at the same time another little girl comes with a three gallon pail and wants but one gallon. How is the farmer to measure the one gallon of milk with the three pails? The first one sending in the answer will be credited with a year's subscription to The Tribune.

Falls City boys showed up well in the base ball averages last year. John Holland was rated as tied for third place in first base fielding averages though he should have been counted first as the two men ahead of him played in a very few games while Holland played in 124. Jake Gettman was first of the outfielders in the eastern league with an average of .87. Next year we will publish the averages of Ruegge, Sears, Poteet, Follinger, Cornell and the other boys who are so sure to make good in fast company.
