

Our Mutual Friend—The Dog.

Some fiend without the fear of God in his heart or love of God's creatures in his makeup shot our dog last week. He was not a thoroughbred, he had no pedigree, he was just a dog. But he could laugh and shake hands, and the children loved him and he loved them and would run bounding and barking to meet them when they returned from school. He was a good rabbit dog; that is he could help put in happy Saturdays with the boys chasing them though he never caught any. There is something woefully lacking in a man who does not like a dog. There is something brutal about a man who can shoot a dog for the mere love of killing. The Senator Nest of Missouri was responsible for many beautiful sentiments, but none more beautiful than the following address to a jury in a twenty dollar dog case.

"Gentlemen of the jury:—The best friend a man has in this world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful, those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog.

"Gentlemen of the jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer, he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master out an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight his enemies, and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even to death."

Jerome K. Jerome the English writer has this to say of a dog. "When we bury our face in our hands and wish we had never been born, they don't sit up very straight, and observe that we have brought it all upon ourselves. They don't even hope it will be a warning to us. But they come up softly, and shove their heads against us, and look up with big, true eyes, and say with them, 'well, you've always got me, you know. We'll go through the world together, and always stand by each other, won't we?'"

Beginning Sunday the Missouri Pacific's Hiawatha accommodation started from Falls City, leaving there at 7:30 a. m., and reaching there on its return trip at 8:15 p. m. W. L. Beauchamp, engine hostler at Hiawatha, has moved to Falls City. The company has no round house at Falls City and engines will stand out of doors. In this connection it may be stated that the company has no shelter for its engines at Wichita, where ten or a dozen lay over. Falls City will have two locomotives lay over there, as the Omaha accommodation will start from that point, instead of Auburn. There is no turn table at Falls City, so the engine from Kansas City will take out the Omaha train the next day and the engine which comes down from Omaha one evening takes out the Omaha train the next day. Falls City people have been going to St. Joseph, and it looks as if the Missouri Pacific is determined to take them to Kansas City, Auburn or Omaha. The "plug" now leaves Hiawatha at 8:25 a. m. and passes through here on the return trip at 7:40 p. m.

He is very imprudent, a dog is. He never makes it his business to inquire whether you are in the right or in the wrong, never bothers as to whether you are going up or down upon life's ladder, never asks whether you are rich or poor, silly or wise, sinner or saint. You are his pal. That is enough for him, and, come luck or misfortune, good repute or bad, honor or shame, he is going to stick to you, give his life for you, if need be foolish brainless, soulless dog.

"Ah, old staunch friend, with your deep, clear eyes, and bright, quick glances, that take in all one has to say before one has time to speak it, do you know that you are only an animal, and have no mind? Do you know that dull eyed, gin-sadden lout, leaning against the post out there, is immeasurably your intellectual superior? Do you know that every little minded, selfish scoundrel, who lives by cheating and tricking, who never did a gentle deed, or said a kind word, who never had a thought that was not mean and low, or a desire that was not base, whose every action is a fraud, whose every utterance is a lie; do you know that these crawling skulks (and there are millions of them in the world), do you know that they are all as much superior to you as the sun is to rushlight, you honorable, brave-hearted, unselfish brute? They are MEN, you know, and MEN are the biggest, greatest, noblest, and wisest, and best beings in the vast eternal Universe. Any man will tell you that."

Taking it all in all there is something in the saying of the great French lady to the effect "The more I see of men the better I like dogs."

The Hater.

The man who hates is a miserable creature. It doesn't injure the object of it, but it does react upon the hater with deadening effect. The hater is surly and bitter. He never can see anything good in the object of his conjured wrath. His ill temper is displayed when radiance and sunshine should glow. Thus the good cheer of life, the hearty cooperation with others, the entente cordiale of friendship, are marred. The hater should rise above it. He should put it aside, for it is an unworthy thing and feeds upon itself. It produces a gruff and ugly old age. The hater cannot walk down the slope with joy or comfort either to himself or those about him. He is a pariah. He sours the milk of human kindness. He can rise above his besetting sin by resolute and repeated action. It will pay him to do it. It will lift the ban upon others and fill his own heart with song.—Fremont Tribune.

NOW CALLED FALLS CITY LOCAL. The Hiawatha "plug" is now known as the Falls City local. It makes the best time here of all the M. P. passenger trains out of Kansas City. It makes the run in 3 hours and 5 minutes. Other trains make the run in 3 hours and 20 minutes. Going to K. C. the plug consumes 3 hours and 17 minutes

ALMOST, BUT NOT QUITE.

The Hiawatha mail carrier, Asher McCowan, came very nearly going rinin' on a train, Sunday—being tempted for the first time in 25 years. It was his idea to ride to Falls City on the "plug" when it backed up there but he thought better of it and stayed at home.

ONLY ONE FILLED.

It is said that there are 150 vacant houses in Falls City and extending the plug run from Hiawatha there only fills one of them.

OMAHA AGAINST IT.

The Atchison Globe says the Omaha Commercial club will fight the extension of the Hiawatha accommodation train from Hiawatha to Falls City on the ground that Atchison and Kansas City are invading Omaha territory.

Tom Armstrong, the baggage-man, has sent in his resignation because the plug went to Falls City. Mr. Armstrong should be given a banquet by the Hiawatha Commercial club.

Market Letter.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 28, '06;—The heavy marketing of cattle continues to be the feature, 43200 last week, a small decrease from the week before, but 17,000 more than same week last year. Buyers tried to break the market the first of the week, but had no success whatever, and each day's trade closed up firm, until Thursday. The week finally closed 10 to 15 lower on nearly all classes, but lower prices only applied to what few cattle came in Friday and Saturday, a small proportion of the total receipts for the week. It is beginning to be doubtful whether there will be much more of an advance this spring. May corn has been selling 5 cents lower than a year ago, which fact, together with the fact that feeders have made money on the stuff already marketed, has had a tendency to put large numbers of cattle on feed for the spring market.

The cattle supply today is 10,000 head, and as other markets are lightly supplied, market is strong to 10 cents higher. Buyers have been favoring the light weight beef steers, and choice heifers for the last two or three weeks, although of course, prime heavy steers still bring top prices. The best price was $5.80 last week, top today $5.50. Stockers and feeders were at a point almost out of reach the first of last week, and had to come down 15 to 20 cents before the close of the week to stimulate much trade.

Hogs sold Saturday at the highest point this year, but weakness was evident at the finish. The market is somewhat nervous, subject to fluctuations, and some traders believe it has reached the limit. Supply was heavier last week, at 61,000 head, run today 60,000, market 10 lower.

Lambs declined 15 to 25 cents again last week, sheep held steady. The quality of lambs is also inferior, and feeders either overlook the great benefit to be derived from the last twenty or thirty days feeding, often 30 to 50 cents per hundred, or they fear the future market. Supply today is 8000, sheep strong, lambs weak. Some lambs sold at $6.75 Friday, bulk of lambs today $6.10 to $6.40.

To Whom It May Concern.

I am living now in my own house and I would be glad of your patronage. I am going to do all kinds of plain sewing. Make comforts, quilt quilts, and do knitting of different kinds, and other miscellaneous kinds of work. If you have any work of this kind to do please give me a call and oblige.
