The Great Paper of the Great West

The Kansas City Star

Everywhere recognized as the strongest and most reliable newspaper in the most prosperous region of the United States.

Wherein It Leads.

Its Unexcelled News Service embraces the continuous report of the Associated Press, with dispatches every hour; the general and special service of the New York Herald; the Hearst transcontinental leased wire service and special correspondence from THE STAR'S own representatives in Washington, D. C.; Jefferson City, Mo.; Topeka, Ks., and Guthrie, Ok., in addition to the large list of news that comes daily from several hundred other alert representatives.

Its Market Reports and Comments have an authoritative value that causes them to be telegraphed to all parts of the United States the moment THE STAR comes from the press. No western man even indirectly interested in the value of food products, stocks and securities can afford to be without THE STAR'S daily record of prices and conditions.

Its Special Features include The Chaperon's column, in which are answered questions pertaining to beauty aids and social customs and affairs; a department for inquiries on other subjects and a wide range of miscellaneous articles throwing side lights upon the world's most interesting people and events—these in addition to a vigorous editorial page, absolutely independent politically, and a Sunday issue that is full of live special matter and human interest.

13 Papers Each week for 10 cents

The Kansas City Star was the first—and is still the only newspaper to deliver a complete morning paper, THE KANSAS CITY TIMES, to its subscribers without increase in the subscription price.

Out Of The Ginger Jar. GETTING THEM OUT.

Recently a man was going by the night mail to Carlisle. Before starting he called the guard, tipped him heavily, and said, "I am going to sleep, and am a heavy sleeper, but I must get out at Carlisle. Get me out at all hazards. Probably I shall swear and fight, but never mind that. Roll me out on the platform if you can't get me out in any other way." The guard promised, the train started, the man went to sleep, and when he woke up, he found himself at Glasgow! He called the guard, and expressed his views in powerful language. The guard listened with a sort of admiring expression, but when the aggrieved passenger paused for breath, he said: "Eh, mon, ye have a fine gift o' swearin," but ye canna haud a cannie to the ither mon whom I rolled out on the platform at Carlisle."

WAS NOT HIS LEAD.

Toward the end the sermon got uninteresting and several persons went to sleep, among whom was Brother Jones, one of the "pillars." At the close, the preacher bowed his head, closed his eyes and said: "Brother Jones will please lead us in prayer." No response. (A little louder.) "Brother Jones will lead us in prayer!" Still no response. Then the preacher, looking up, saw Brother Jones arousing from his sleep in the corner and bawled out the one word, "Lead!" Brother Jones awoke with a start, and, looking all confused said: "Tain't my lead; I just dealt."

PATENT MEDICINE.

The following is told of a druggist who is "great" on patent medicine. He manufactured one kind called "Dr. Pratt's two-grain Anti Bilious Pills." One day a small boy walked into the shop and said: "Please, sir, give me a box of Dr. Pratt's pills." The druggist looked at him a minute, and then inquired: "Anti-bilious?" "No," replied the youngster. "Uncle's sick."

A QUERY ANSWERED

An eloquent evangelist who was holding a series of protracted meetings had been interrupted on several occasions by the departure of some one of the audience. He determined to prevent further annoyance by making an example of the next one so doing. Therefore, when a young man arose to depart in the middle of a discourse he said: "Young man, would you rather go to hell than listen to this sermon?" The individual addressed stopped midway up the aisle and turning slowly about answered: "Well! to tell the truth, I don't know but I would."

THE WRONG CARDS.

A young married lady had just acquired a new coach and a new footman to match. "John" she said one day, "we will drive out to make a few calls. But I shan't get out of the carriage; you will therefore, take the cards that are on my dressing table and leave one of them at each house we stop at."

"Very good, ma'am," answered John, and he ran up stairs to fetch the cards.

After they had driven about a considerable time and cards had been left at a large number of houses, the lady remarked:

"Now we must call on the Dales, the Framptons and Clarkes."

"We can't do it," broke in the footman in alarm. "I've only the ace of spades and ten of clubs left!"

HIS ADVICE—A newly-married couple boarded the train at a wayside village. The groom was a strapping young fellow, with sunburnt face and hands and bear's grease on his hair; while the bride might have been the "hired girl" on the same farm. They had no sooner taken a seat than he put his right arm around her and began to caress one of her hands. A voice in the rear of them cried out "Spoons!" but the bridegroom gave no sign. Pretty soon he pulled her head on his shoulder, and there was a titter in the rear of the car. The head stayed right there, however, and Josh got both her hands in his paw. Three or four voices cried out "Oh!" and "Ah!" but it was fully 2 minutes before heterderly pushed her away and rose, looked around, and said, "We are married." Another titter went round. "We sparked for four years. She's my violet, and I'm her towerin' oak. We've got one hundred and ninety miles to go, and we are going to spoon every rod of it, and if there is any critter here who thinks he can't stand it he can get out and walk."

LITTLE BROTHER.

The ability of the small boy to rouse discomfort in his elder sister's breast has been the theme of more than one story. Ten-year-old Ned had peculiar talents in that direction, and in the month or two before his sister's engagement he made many embarrassing complications between her and the estimable young man who at last succeeded in winning her.

Ned was much interested in the engagement and very fond of his prospective brother-in-law. One day he was taken by the young man, who was a lawyer, to a court-room where a case was on trial. Ned was allowed to remain only a short time, but he had an excellent memory, and sundry phrases remained in his mind and tickled his fancy.

The next day he stood in the window, and saw his future connection pass the corner. Stick-his curly head out, he called in clear ringing tones, for the benefit of all the neighbors, "George William Snow, come in to court."

THE WRONG KIND.

An old Irishman was sitting out in front of his house puffing away and pulling heroically at his pipe. He would light a match and pull and pull at his pipe, throw the match away and light another, and he continued the performance with great patience until the ground about him was literally strewn with burnt matches.

"Come in to supper," said the wife at the door.

"Faith and Oi will in a minute, Biddy," said he. "Moike has been a telling me that if Oi shmaked a bit av ghlass Oi cud see the shpots on the sun. Oi don't know whether Moike's been a-fooling me or whether Oi've got hold av the wrong kind of ghlass."—Exchange.
