THE FALLS CITY TRIBUNE, FRIDAY, APRIL 27, 1906.

note and the cablegram, and sought Mrs. Drelmer. He found that capable lady gowned for the opera. She received his bits of news with the aplomb of a resourceful commander.

"Now, don't go seedy all at onceyou've a chance. "Hang it all, Mrs. Dreimer, I've not.

Life isn't worth living-' "Tut, tut! Death isn't. either!"

"But we'd have been so nicely set up, even without the title, and now infernal cropper, and knocked every- idea." thing on the head. I say, you know, it's beastly!"

"Hush, and let me think!"

He paced the floor while his matrimonial adviser tapped a white kidded foot on the floor, and appeared to read plans of new battle in a mother-ofpearl paper-knife which she held between the tips of her fingers.

"I have it-and we'll do it quickly! -Mrs. Wybert!"

Mauburn's eyes opened widely.

"That absurd old Peter Bines has spoken to me of her three times lately. She's made a lot more money than she had in this same copper deal, and she'd a lot to begin with. I wondered why he spoke so enthusiastically of her. and I don't see now, but-

"Well?"

"She'll take you, and you'll be as well set up as you were before. Listen, 1 met her last week at the Critchleys. She spoke of having seen you. I could see she was dead set to make a good marriage. You know she wanted to marry Fred Milbrey, but Horace and his mother wouldn't hear of it after Avice became engaged to Rulon snepler. I'm in the Critchleys' box to-night and I understand she's to be there. Leave it to me. Now it's after nine, so run along."

"But, Mrs. Drelmer, there's that poor girl-she cares for me, and 1 like her immensely, you know-truly 1 doand she's a trump-see where she says here she couldn't possibly leave her people now they've come down-even if matters were not otherwise impossible.'

"Well, you see they're not only otherwise impossible, but every wise impossible. What could you do? Go to Indian? Don't, for heaven's sake, sentimentalize! Go home and sleep like a rational creature. Come in by 11 jolly well, first. See you soon. Goodto-morrow. Even without the title by!" And Mauburn was off. you'll be a splendid match for Mrs.

Then he hurriedly dressed, took the | gan, "and it re., .ced no time at all to reach a very definite understanding with her. I had feared it might be rather a delicate matter, talking to her at once, you know-and we needed to hurry-but she's a woman one can talk to. She's made heaps of money, and the poor thing is society-mad-so afraid the modish world won't take her at her true value-but she talked very frankly about marriage-really she's cool-headed for all the fire she seems to have-and the short of it is that she's determined to marry some one of the smart men here in New York.

Bines, the clumsy ass, has come this The creature's fascinated by the very "Did you mention me?"

"You may be sure I did, but she'd read the papers, and, like so many of these people, she has no use at all for an Englishman without a title. Of course I couldn't be too definite with her, but she understood perfectly, and she let me see she wouldn't hear of it at all. So she's off the list. But don't give up. Now, there's-"

But Mauburn was determinedly downcast.

"It's uncommon handsome of you Mrs. Dreimer, really, but we'll have to leave off that, you know. If a chap isn't heir to a peerage or a city fortune there's no getting on that way."

"Why, the man is actually discouraged. Now you need some American pluck, old chap. An American of your age wouldn't give up."

"But, hang it all! an American knows how to do things, you know, and like as not he'd nothing to begin with, by Jove! Now I'd a lot to begin with. and here's it's all taken away."

"Look at young Bines. He's had a lot taken away, but I'll wager he makes it all back again and more, too, before he's 40."

"He might in this country; he'd never do it at home, you know.'

'This country is for you as much as for him. Now, there's Augusta Hartong-those mixed-pickle millionaires. you know. I was chatting with Augusta's mother only the other day, and if I'd only suspected this-"

"Awfully kind of you, Mrs. Drelmer, but it's no use. I'm fairly played out. I shall go to see Miss Bines, and have a chat with her people, you know." "Now, for heaven's sake, don't make a silly of yourself, whatever you do! Montana with them and learn to be an Mind, the girl released you of her own accord! "Awfully obliged. I'll think about it was reproaching himself.

He

et sight of me, in about a year." He went again over the plans. The was where the deep hole was. Jim income from the One Girl was to be was scar't, but he had to go. After used in developing the other proper- he'd gone down once. Len says to him: ies; the stock ranch up on the Bitter 'Drown now, you damn nigger!' and Root, the other mines that had been Jim come up and went down twice ber tracts. "I got something of an idea of it Jim and gets him ashore, and after when Uncle Peter took me around sum- while he brought him to. Anyway, he mer before last, and I learned a lot said, Jim had already sure-enough more getting the stuff together with drowned as fur as there was any fun Coplen. Now, I'm ready to buckle in it. Well, Len Carey is an old man down to it." He looked at Uncle Peter, now, and Jim is an old white-headed hungry for a word of encouragement nigger still hangin' around the old to soothe the hurts the old man had place, and when Len goes back there pliances; the irrigation and land im-put upon him. But all Uncle Peter would say was: hunts him up with tears in his eyes, "That sounds very well." compelling and thanks Mister Leonard fur savin' the inference that he regarded sound his life that time. Say, I felt this and substance as phenomena not nec- mornin' like Len Carey must feel them essarily related.

"But give me a chance, Uncle Peter. Just don't jump on me too hard for a year!"

"Well, I know that country. There's of life if I ever lose my hold here in big chances for a young man with the street. I hope I'll have the old brains-understand?-that has got all Bines philosophy and the young the high-living nonsense blasted out of Bines spirit. That reminds me," he his upper levels-but it takes work, continued, as Uncle Peter rose to go, You may do something-there are "we've been pretty confidential. Mr. white blackbirds-but you're on a Bines, and I don't mind telling you I nasty piece of roadbed-curves all was a bit afraid of that young man down on the outside-wheels flattened until yesterday. Oh, not on the stock under every truck, and you've had her proposition. On another matter. You down in the corner so long I doubt may have noticed that night at the if you can even slow up, say nothin' Oldaker's-well, women, Mr. Bines, are of reversin'. And think of me gettin' uncertain. I know something about fooled that way at my time of life," markets and the ways of a dollar, but he continued, as if in confidence to all I know about women is that they're himself. "But then, I always was a good to have. You can't know any terrible poor judge of human nature." more about them, because they don't

"Well, have your own way; but I'll fool you again, while you're coppering me. You watch, that's all I ask. Just sit around and talk wise about me all you want to, but watch. Now, I must go down and get to work with Fouts. Thank the Lord, we didn't have to welsh either, any more than Mrs. Giveup there did."

"You won't touch any more stock; you won't get that money from Shepler?"

"I won t; I won't go near Shepler, I promise you. Now you'll believe me in one thing, I know you will, Uncle Peter." He went over to the old man.

"I want to thank you for pulling me up on that play as you did last night. .ou saved me, and I'm more grateful to you than 1 can yay. But for you I'd have gone in and dug the hole deeper." He made the old man shake hands with him-though Uncle Peter's hand remained limp and cheerless. "You can shake on that, at least. You saved me, and I thank you for it."

"Well, I'm glad you got some sense," answered the old man, grudgdon't do anything but consume -- includin' men. If the west stopped pro-You can't grow a big man on this all right. You folks have your uses. from inside." I ain't like one of these crazy fools They parted with warm expressions go jump off that rock there!' That worked but little and with crude ap- more. Then Len begun to think Jim was worth a good bit of money, and provement enterprises, and the big tim- mebbe hed be almighty walloped if the truth come out, so he dives in after to visit his relatives, old Nigger Jim times when Jim's thankin' him.'

Shepler laughed.

"You're a rare man, Mr. Bines, 1'll hope to have your cheerful, easy views ducin' men fur you, you'd be as bad know any more themselves. Just beoff as if it stopped producin' fool, tween us, now, I never felt any too sure of a certain young woman's state island any more than you can grow of mind until copper reached 51 and wheat out there on Broadway. You're Union Cordage had been blown up that thinks you're rascals and all like of good-will, and Uncle Peter, in high her mother and us, now that we might nights and t. need her, not for him or any other money and trinkets away from him." man-and he said that only made him love her all the more, and then he got chesty, and said he was just as good as any American, even if he never any good any more, and you got a would have a title; so pretty soon they got kind of interested in each other dependin' on you-we'll throw him on again, and by the time I came home it the town, though, if he don't take out was all over. They ratified the pre- his first papers the minute I get there." liminary agreement for a merger." "Well, 1 snum!"

That's right, go ahead and snum. I'd snum myself if I knew how-it knocked me. Better come upstairs and congratulate the happy couple."

"Shoo, now! I certainly am mighty disappointed in that fellow. Still, he is I'll have a grandson that thinks as well spotted, and them freckles mean much of it as I do of yours.' iron in the blood. Maybe we can develop him along with the other properties."

They found Psyche already radiant, though showing about her eyes traces of the storm's devastations. Mauburn was looking happy; also defiant and stubborn.

"Mr. Bines," he said to Uncle Peter, 'I hope you'll side with me. I know something about horses, and I've nearly a thousand pounds that I'll be glad to put in with you out there if you can make a place for me."

The old man looked him over quizzically. Psyche put her arm through Mauburn's.

"I'd have to marry some one, you know, Uncle Peter!"

'Don't apologize, Pish. There's room for men that can work out there. Mr. Mauburn, but there ain't any vintages or trouserings to speak of, and the hours is long."

"Try me, Mr. Bines!"

"Well, come on. If you can't skin yourself you can hold a leg while somebody else skins. But you ain't met my expectations, I'll say that!' And he shook hands cordially with the Englishman.

"I say, you know," said Mauburn later to Psyche, "why should I skin myself? Why should I be skinned at had the help of Coplen, whom they all, you know?"

"You shouldn't," she reassured him. you can't do much yourself at first. And won't Mrs. Dreimer be delighted to know it's all settled?"

"Well," said Uncle Peter to Percidone better than you have here. It's a pity you didn't pick out some good, sensible girl, and marry her in the midst of your other doings."

"I couldn't find one that liked cats. I saw a lot that suited every other way, but I always said to myself: 'Remember Uncle Peter's warning!' so basket of kittens and take them around, and not one of the dozen stood your test. Of course I'd never disrogard your advice."

"Hum." remarked Uncle Peter, in a tone to be noticed for its extreme dryness. "Too bad, though-you certainly need a wife to take the conceit out of you.'

"I lost that in the street, along with the rest."

ome honest man's Percival saw them to the train.

"Take care of yourself," said Uncle Peter at parting. "You know I ain't whole family, includin' an Englishman. His last shot from the rear platform was:

"Change your name back to 'Pete,' son, when you get west of Chicago. 'Tain't anything fancy, but it's a crackin good business name fur a hustler!

"All right, Uncle Peter-and I hope

When they had gone, he went back to the work of final adjustment. He had sent for. With him he was busy for a week. By lucky sales of some That's only Uncle Peter's way of say- of the securities that had been hying you can help the others, even if pothecated they managed to save a little; but, on the whole, it was what Percival described it, "a lovely autop-SV.

At last the vexatious work was finval, later in the evening, "Pish has ished, and he was free again. At the end of the final day's work he left the office of Fouts in Wall street, and walked up Broadway. He went slowly, enjoying the freedom from care. It was the afternoon of a day when the first summer heat had been felt, and as he loitered before shop windows or walked slowly through that street I'd go to an animal store and ge a hurriedly, a welcome little breeze came up from the bay to fan him and enencourage his spirit of leisure.

At Union square, when he would have taken a car to go the remainder of the distance, he saw Shepler, accompanied by Mrs. Van Geist and Miss Milbrey, alight from a victoria and enter a jeweler's.

He would have passed on, but Miss Milbrey had seen him and stood waiting in the doorway, while shepler and Mrs. Van Geist went on into the store. "Mr. Bines-I'm so glad!" She stood, flushed with pleasure, radiant in stuff of filmy pink, with little flecks at her throat and waist of the first tender green of new leaves. She was unaffectedly delighted to see him. "You are Miss Spring?" he said when she had given him her hand-"and you've come into all your mother had that was worth inheriting, haven't you?" "Mr. Bines, shall we not see you now? I wanted so much to talk with you when I heard everything. Would it be impertinent to say I sympathized with you?" He looked over her shoulder in where Shepler and Mrs. Van Geist were inspecting a tray of jewels. "Of course not impertinent-very kind-only I'm really not in need of any sympathy at all. You won't understand it; but we don't care so much The Bineses, with the exception of for money in the west-for the loss of it-not so much as you New Yorkers would. Besides, we can always make a plenty more." The situation was, emphatically, not as he had so often dreamed it when she should marvel, perhaps regretfuletermined to go, leaving Percival to 19, over his superiority to her husband follow when he had closed his busi- as a money-maker. His only relief was to belittle the importance of his loss. "Of course, we've lost everything, almost-hat I've not been a bit downcast something of his old cheerfulness of about it. There's more where it came from, and no end of fun going after it. I'm looking forward to the adventures. I can tell you. And eve y one will be glad to are me there; they won't think the lins of me, I assure you, because I've made a fluke h el" "Surely, Mr. Bines its one here could think less of you Indeed, 1 think sore of you. I think it's fine and b'g o go back with such courage. Do you know, I wish I were a man-I'd show nem!"

Wybert, and she must have a tidy lot of millions after this deal."

Sorely distressed, he walked back to his lodgings in Thirty-second street. Wild, Quixotic notions of sacrifice flooded his mood of dejection. If the worst came, he could go west with the family and learn how to do something. And yet-Mrs. Wybert. Of course it passed a troubled night.

herself, bearing upon this same for- calumnies of the night before. tuity. When Uncle Peter reached there at two a. m., he found in his box a was the most disconsolate one of the small scented envelope which he opened with wonder.

Two inclosures fell out. One was a clipping from an evening paper, an- her own chosen field. nouncing the birth of twin sons to Lord day of his call; his name on one side, for the floating hospitals this sumannouncing him; on the other the words he had written:

"Sell Consolidated Copper all you can until it goes down to 65. Do this up to the limit of your capital, and I will make good anything you lose.

"PETER BINES." He read the note:

"Arlingham Hotel-7:20 "Mr. Peter Bines 'Dear Sir: You funny old man, you 1 don't pretend to understand your game, but you may rely on my secrecy. I am more grateful to you than words can utter-and will always be glad to do anything for you.

Yours very trul "BLANCHE CATHERTON WYBERT. "P. S-About that other matter-hlm you know-you will see from this notice I cut from the paper that the party won't get any title at all now, so a dead swell New York man is in every way more eligible. In fact the other party is not to be thought of for one moment, as I am positive you would agree with me.

He tore the note and the card to fine hits.

"It does heat all." he complained later to Billy Brue, "Put a beggar on horseback and they begin right away to fuss around because the bridle ain't set with diamonds-give 'em a little, and they want the whole ball of wax!"

"That's right," said Billy Brue, with the quick sympathy of the experienced. "That guy that doped me, he wa'n't satisfied with my good $30 wad. Not by no means! He had to go take my breastpin nugget from the Early Bird."

At 11 o'clock the next morning Mauburn waited in Mrs. Dreimer's draw- server" is very apt to be. ing-room for the news she might have. When that competent person sailed in, he saw temporary defeat written on her brow. His heart sank to its low level of the night before. "Well, I saw the creature," she befor a word of love from me. I'm a get the fun out of life. You don't get tions had himself driven up-town. brute!"

CHAPTER XXVI. THE GOD IN THE MACHINE.

a late breakfast with the stricken fam- ble back and forth with that money was only one may for an English gentle- utter collapse of the old man, always crazy fool notion then to go back there was an intimation from Mrs. Wybert old man's earlier praise, and refute his Mrs. Bines, so complacent overnight, > group. With her low tastes she was now regarding the loss of the fortune out there? You might let it be underas a calamity to the worthy infants of stood that I am willing to finance any

"And there, I had promised to give Casselthorpe. The other was the card $5,000 to the new ...ome for crippled die him. Say, I don't expect to quit he had left with Mrs. Wybert on the children, and $5,000 to St. John's Guild cussin' him fur another 30 days yet. mer-just yesterday-and I do de lare I just couldn't stay in New York winds have made this play just as I have out money, and see those poor bables suffer.'

"You couldn't stay in New York without money, Mrs. Good-thing," said the west in an emigrant car, with her son-"not even if you couldn't see bologna and crackers to eat, that's a thing; but don't you welsh on any of what I'd have done. No, sir, no help your plays-we'll make that ten thou- fur him!" sand good if I have to get a sandbag and lay out a few of these lads around here some dark night."

'But anyway you can't do much to relieve them. I don't know but what it's honester to be poor while the au thorities allow such goings on."

'You have the makings of a very dangerous anarchist in you, ma. I've seen that for some time. But we're ar honest family all right now, with th exception of a few properties that I'l have to sit up with nights-sit right by their sick beds and wake them up to take their measy every half hour-without your sleep." began his mother

"And wasn't it lucky about my send ing that note to George." said Psyche 'Here in this morning's paper we find he isn't going to be Lord Casselthorpe, after all. What could I have done if we hadn't lost the money?" From which it might be inferred that certain

"Never you mind, sis," said her brother, cheerfully, "well he all right one drown. He knew Jim couldn't yet. You wait a little, and hear Uncle swim a lick, so he thought he'd have Peter take back what he's said about Jim go drown. "- says to him: 'Jim, me. Uncle Peter, I'll have you taking off that hat of yours every time you

the big feelin's. Out in the west they're the flesh and blood and bone; failed was in Mrs. Wybert's refusal to and you people here, meanin' no disrespect-you're the dimples and wrinkles Casselthorpe twins. Yet he felt that Uncle Peter next morning was up to and-the warts. You spend and gam- matters, in spite of this happening, ily. Percival found him a triffe less we raise and dig out of the ground: must be that. The other idea was ab- bitter, but not less convinced in his and you think you're gettin' the best surd-too wild for serious considera- despair. The young man himself had end of it, but you ain't. I found that cullar to his generation-would surely tion. He was 30 years old, and there recovered his spirits wonderfully. The out 32 years ago this spring. I had a never marry a girl who was all but man live-even if it must break the so reliant before, had served to fire all even when I hadn't gone broke-and alliance with Mrs. Wybert, when the heart of a poor girl who had loved him his latent energy. He was now voluble 1 done well to go. And that's why 1 fortune should be lost, had, after all, devotedly, and for whom he had felt a with plans for the future; not only wanted that boy back there. And been an incident-a means of showing steady and genuine affection. He determined to reassure Uncle Peter that's why I'm mighty proud of him. the girl, if she should prove to be too that the family would be provided for, to see he's so hot to go and take hold. Down at the hotel of Peter Bines but not a little anxious to justify the like I knew he would be."

> I like him and I dare say you've done the best thing for him, unusual as it was. But don't grind him. Might it not be well to ease up a little after he's of those propositions there liberally-

> "No, no-that ain't the way to hanwant him to think he ain't got a friend on earth but himself. Why, I'd done, Mr. Shepler, if there hadn't been a chance to get back a cent of it-if we'd had to go plumb broke-back to

"Aren't you a little hard on him?" "Not a bir! don't I know the stock. and know just what he needs? Most men you couldn't treat as I'm treatin him; but with him, the harder you bear down on him the more you'll get out of him. That was the way with ils pa-he was a different man after things got to comin' too easy fur him. This fellow, the way I'm ireatin' him, will keep his head even after he nets things comin' easy again, or I miss my guess. He thinks I despise him now. If you told him I was proud of him, I almost believe you could get a bet out Now, my son, don't you get to going of him, sick as he is of gamblin'."

> "Has he suspected anything?" "Sure not! Why, he just thanked me about an hour ago fur savin' him-made me shake hands with him-and could see the tears back in his eyes.' The old man chuckled. "It was like Len Carey's Nigger Jim.

Len had Jim set apart on the plantapeople who had declared Miss Bites tion fur his own nigger. They fished to be very hard-headed were not so far and went huntin' and swimmin' towrong as the notorious "casual ob- gether. One day they'd been swimmin', and was lyin' up on the bank. Len got thinkin' he'd never seen any-poor girl has been eating her heart out that; but my point is that you don't spirits at the success of his machina-

The only point where his plans had consider Mauburn after the birth of the must go as he wished them to. The Englishman-Uncle Peter cherished the strong anti-British sentiment pepenniless, and the consideration of an deeply infatuated with Mauburn for her own peace of mind-how unworthy

"That's excellent. Now, Mr. Bines, and mercenary he was; for he had meant, in that event, to disillusion her by disclosing something of Mrs. Wybert's history-the woman Mauburn should prefer to her. He still counted confidently on the loss of the fortune sufficing to break the match.

When he reached the Hightower that hight for dinner, he found Percival downstairs in great glee over what he conceived to be a funny situation.

"Don't ask me, Uncle Peter. ouldn't get it straight; but as near as I could make out, Mauburn came up here afraid the blow of losing him was going to kill als with a broken heart, and sis was afraid the blow was going to kill Mauburn, because she wouldn't have married him anyway. rich or poor, after he'd lost the title, They found each other out some way, and then Mauburn accused her of being heartless, of caring only for his title, and she accused him of caring only for her money, and he insisted she ought to marry him anyway, but she wouldn't have it because of the TWING-

Uncle Peter rubbed his big brown ands with the first signs of cheerfulness he had permitted Percival to detect in him.

"Good fur Pish-that's the way to take down them conceited Britishers-" again from a new standpoint, and the result is they've made it up."

"What? Has them precious twin Casselthorpes perished?'

"Not at all, both doing finelyhaven't even had collic-growing fastprobably learned to say 'fancy, now,' west with us if we'll take him.' "Get out!"

his title, even if she was broke. They

"Well, son, I ain't no ways alarmed but what you'll soon be on your fest again in that respect-say by next Tuesday or Wednesday. I wish the money was comin' back as easy.' "Well, there are girls in Montana City.

"You could do worse. That reminds me-1 happened to meet Shepler today and he got kind of confidentialtalkin' over matters. He said he'd never really felt sure about the affections of a certain young woman, cspecially after that night at the Oldakers' -he'd never felt dead sure of her until you went broke. He said you never could know anything about a woman -not really."

"He knows something about that one, all right, if he knows she wouldn't have any use for me now. Shepler's coming on with the ladies. I feel quite hopeful about him."

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE DEPARTURE OF UNCLE PETER. Psyche, were at breakfast a week later. Miss Bines had been missing since the day that Mr. and Mrs. Cecil G. H. Mauburn had left for Montana City to put the Bines home in order. Uncle Peter and Mrs. Bines had now ness affairs. "It's like starting west again to tiake our fortune," said Uncle Peter. He had suffered himself to regain manner.

"I wish you two would wait unthey can get die car here, and go back with me," said Percival. "We can co back in style even if we didn't "ave much more than a get-away stale-

But his persuasions were unavailing "I can't stand it another day," said Mrs. Bines, "and those letters keep oming in from poor suffering people that haven't heard the news."

"I'm too restless to stay," declared Uncle Peter, "I deslare with spring "But then they went at matters all greenin' up this way i'd he found campin' up in Central park some night and took off to the calaboose. I just got to get out again where you can feel the wind blow and see a hundred miles and don't have to dodge horseless horse cars every minute. It's a wonder one of 'em ain't got me in this by this time. But Mauburn's going town. You come on in the car, and do the style fur the family. One of them common Pullmans is good enough fur

"Fact! Say, it must have been an Marthy and me. And besides, I got to awful blow to him when he found sis get Billy Brue back. He's goin' plumb wouldn't think of him at all without daft lookin' night and day fur that man that got his $30 and his breasthad a stormy time of it from all I can pi He says there'll be an ambulance hear. He said he was strong enough backed up at the spot where he meets to work and all that, and since he'd him-makes no difference if it's right cared for her, and not for her money, on Fifth avenue. Billy's kind of nearit was low down of her to throw him sighted at that, so I'm mortal afraid over; then she said she wouldn't leave he'll make a mistake one of these

"Really, Miss Millarey-'

He looked over her shoulder again. and saw that Shopler was waiting for her.

"I think your friends are impatient." "They can wait. Mr. Bines, I wonier if you have quite a correct idea of all New York people,"

Probably not; I've met so few, you know.

Well, of course-but of those you've met?"

'You can't know what my ideas are." "I wish we might have talked more -I'm sure-when are you leaving?"

"I shall leave to-morrow."

"And we're leaving for the country ourselves. Papa and mamma go tomorrow-and. Mr. Bines. I should have liked another talk with you-I wish we were dining at the Oldakers' again."

(Continued Next Week)