NOW AND THEN.
 The News made a rather pettish dig at our efforts to overcome the influence of the false circular sent out by Montgomery-Ward last week. The News is given to narrowness of this character so far as The Tribune is concerned. Sometimes however, a knock is a boost, and so we have always considered the attitude of the News toward us. We don't remember that we have ever asked a favor of the News, neither do we remember that we have ever refused to favor the News. Whatever of their requests we have granted, we have always received in return the same kind of payment, that is, some spiteful little knock. The Tribune has never been able to please its competitors, but now we come to think of we do not believe that to be the object we have in life. The Tribune however, seems to be doing tolerably well. We are but little more than two years old and while we are not making any great boast about it we have been told by employees that have worked for the Journal and News that we print more papers than either. We really don't know whether this is true or not, we have no means of ascertaining. But we infer that our rapid advancement may be responsible for many of the little, slighting remarks concerning us that creep into the News. We do know that we are the master of our own opinions. We do know that we are not required to print an article and then apologize to some man for printing it. We do know that in the two years of our life we have never been afraid to publish. We do know that we have paid cash for everything we buy and required cash of every advertiser and patron who does business with us. We do know that we have received more voluntary new subscriptions since the first of January that have our two competitors combined. We do know that we are going to continue doing our best towards publishing the best newspaper, one that is unafraid to speak of wrong, whether the wrong be a telephone monopoly, a local embezzlement or a lying catalogue, and that we are not going to sacrifice our idea of right for patronage nor keep silence about wrong for fear of losing work that would otherwise come to us.

Falls City never saw a prettier picture than that presented at the Eight grade commencement last Friday night. The stage was filled with children, 130 of them. Girls from the littlest one of all to the girl twelve and fourteen years old, all dressed in their white dresses and elbow sleeves, with flowers in their hair and eyes sparkling with the joy of living. Boys, manly little chaps in their Sunday clothes, looking shyly at the girls in their best dresses and singing their little best. Nothing fairer was ever seen anywhere and nothing more promising for the future can be found in this broad land of ours. Down in the audience every one was looking for Mary or John. In all that crowd of little ones, there was, to the auditor, one child supreme. The child that loving hands had dressed for the great occasion, the first distinctive occasion since birth. Maybe she looked for one was a blond with blue eyes, maybe a brunette with brown eyes. Maybe it was a colored child, for such were on the stage; but whatever the physical characteristic, there was at least one in the audience that looked for him or her, that was proud of him or her and that was happy and hopeful, oh, so hopeful, that the future would bring great things and the years be very kind to "my little boy—my little girl."

The suggestion that Falls City has too many stores and mercantile establishments for the business to be profitable is a suggestion of some force. No city can be kept up by stores. It requires establishments to bring foreign money into a community, manufactures, factories and the like that sell their product away from the home market and thereby bring new money in, to make a city grow. Outside of a very few establishments, such as our cigar factories and mill, we have nothing of the kind. We will not progress until we secure more of such institutions. At this writing we have not learned whether we are to get the vinegar factory or not. If we do secure it, it will not be our fault. Little has been done by our people to induce the managers to locate here. An effort was made to get some of our business men to go to Omaha the first of the week to meet with the promoters of the enterprise when the question of location was determined, but everybody save one or two was too busy, and the one or two that agreed to go are among the very busiest men in town. The location lay between Falls City and Nebraska City. If this enterprise comes into Falls City it must break in for the Lord knows we are too busy to help it any.

We are not so located as to offer many inducements to manufacturers. Cities like Kansas City can offer far superior inducements in the way of railroad facilities, fuel etc. But there are certain kinds of factories that we can offer peculiar advantages. A vinegar factory for instance would find all the raw material here it required in the way of apples, and such an institution would pay hundreds of dollars for wind fall apples that are now a positive loss. A canning factory, an alfalfa meal mill, a cereal mill and like enterprises can find here every advantage in the way of raw material. All it requires is a little push and enterprise on the part of our people to fetch such institutions here. We are very busy however, too busy in fact to pay much attention to things of this character. Our commercial club is still in existence but two or three men became tired of doing all the work and so nothing is doing in that line either. In the meantime Humboldt is starting an immense brick plant; a wire fence manufactory, there is talk of an incubator factory. Barada has a splendid canning factory. Rulo is talking barge line and Falls City has a town row.

Charles Casey a Suicide.
 A special in Friday's dailies gives the following account of the demise of Chas. E. Casey a former resident of Pawnee City and well known throughout the state:
 Colonel Charles E. Casey, formerly a wealthy banker in Kansas and Nebraska and a politician in the latter state, and known as a thorough "man about town," was found dead in the Palmer house yesterday. It is thought death was due to his own act.
 "Colonel" Casey, as he was known especially on the south side, had done nothing since he came to Chicago about 1896, except to spend the money he had made in Nebraska and Kansas. He was born in Jerseyville, Ill., in 1855, and when a young man became a banker in Pawnee City, Neb. There he made a fortune in handling farm mortgage loans. In 1896 he was nominated for state treasurer of Nebraska on the Republican ticket and was beaten by a small majority.
 He had spent a great deal of money in the campaign. He said the campaign cost him nearly $100,000, and the disappointment was a severe one to him. He then removed to Chicago with his family, but did not engage in business.

Damage Suit.
 The case of A. Staples Cody of Midland, Mich., against P. S. Jones and C. H. Dennis of this city, for damages in the sum of $50,000 for alleged false imprisonment, is on today in the federal court in Omaha, and numerous witnesses from this county are in attendance.

The case grows out of the failure of the Chamberlain Banking house of this city. About two years after the wreck of that institution, which occurred four years ago, Cody came to Tecumseh with a bunch of the bank's papers in his possession, and it said, tried to dispose of them. Jones and Dennis who were heavy losers in the bank's failure, caused his arrest and pending a preliminary hearing he was incarcerated in the county jail. He was bound over to the district court by the county court, but the district court acquitted him of the charge of having stolen papers in his possession. Cody claimed he brought the papers of Chas. M. Chamberlain, the cashier of the wrecked bank, in Atlanta, Ga. Soon after the verdict in the district court Cody began making arrangements to institute damage proceedings against Jones and Dennis for alleged false imprisonment and the case has been brewing for about a year.
