The form of the liquor notices published in the Tribune need not cause concern. They are in strict accordance with the law and as it was construed by Judge Kelligar in the hearing of the Falls City liquor cases a few days ago. The Tribune publishes liquor notices and other legals just as it does everything else—just right.

Just a little public spirit on the part of the farmers living to the south of us will insure the new railroad. The building of this road would mean thousands of dollars to the farms through which the proposed road would run, notwithstanding this, there seems a disposition on the part of the farmers to ask so much for the right of way that the road cannot be constructed.

Falls City is just as good a town as it deserves to be. It is just as lively as its inhabitants. If some of our men of wealth would loosen up a little and make a few investments that would employ labor we might have some hope for the future, but as it is we are making whatever improvement we can in spite of those who are most benefitted and not because of them.

Before the fight for Governor is over it will be the field against Sheldon. While Sheldon is a fair man and would give the railroads every right to which they were entitled, it seems that they do not want that kind of a man. Hence, every little local politician with influence in his locality is being groomed by the railroads for Governor in the hope of securing enough votes in the state convention to defeat Sheldon's nomination. If this can be done then the several candidates will withdraw in favor of some man who is "dependable." Great scheme.

The crimes of the beef trust are many but the recent exposures with reference to their products are horrifying. We may excuse the combine for grafting and stealing, but when it comes to selling lard made from diseased hogs in order that the yearly dividends may be increased the limit has been reached. The report recently made to the President concerning the positive crimes the great packers are committing against their patrons has not been given to the public, but enough has leaked out to show a terrible condition and one that congress should and will promptly meet and remedy.

The News and Journal both contained laudatory write ups of Mr. Pollard last week. The bolting republicans and their democratic allies have again fused in their efforts to control the republican party in this locality. Just what interest John Morehead, Clay Davis and other democrats can have in republican nominees remains a mystery, but for three years the republicans have not held a convention that these gentlemen have not combined with bolting republicans and offered their advise as to the proper men to receive the nomination. Mr. Morehead gave an interview sometime since to a Lincoln paper announcing the fact that Richardson County republicans would support Pollard notwithstanding his manifest weakness. It may be that John knew what he was talking about—time alone will tell.

WHO OWNS THE PARTY.

The senatorial fight is becoming interesting as well as instructive. The edict has gone forth that Norris Brown must not be nominated by the state convention and every corporation plugger and "dependable" newspaper is busy. The railroad organization is so strong and so far reaching that Brown is going on the stump to tell the people of the opposition to him and what has inspired it. The situation has its pathetic features. The railroad opposition to Brown was created by his insistent demand that they pay their taxes as all other interests and individuals pay theirs. The railroad opposition is present merely because Brown was brave enough and true enough to make these companies pay up as the law required. Now they say that the republican party cannot nominate Brown. Who owns the republican party? Brown is going on the stump to put the people in possession of the facts and let them determine.

Richardson County republicans do not want to support Judge Holmes of Lincoln for congress. They are equally opposed to Pollard. There are many men in this district who are on the square and who, if they were in congress, would not make us a laughing stock. Allen W. Field of Lincoln would be an ideal candidate and the announcement of his candidacy is among the immediate possibilities. Holmes would receive very few votes outside of Lancaster. It is a foregone conclusion that Pollard will lose Otoe, Johnson, Nemaha and probably Pawnee counties, which makes him an impossibility. The way he secured his nomination, together with his inability as a congressman eliminates him from the fight. This district should get above peanut politics and peanut politicians. It is deserving of a real congressman and the probabilities are it will nominate such a man.

M. T. Harrison, Dunbar, Neb., topped yesterday's cattle market at $5.60 with 20 head weighing 1,338 lbs. Mr. Harrison reported a nice rain Friday of last week—enough to keep things growing—and says corn and wheat are in excellent condition.

C. C. Simmons of Verdon, Nebraska states that for some reason a great deal of the corn in that part of the country had to be replanted. This will make the crop late, as the spring was backward and late. "The corn came up all right," said Mr. Simmons, "but various forces got to work right away and from that time on it has been killed off. The cut worm, the insects and other conditions have been at work on the crop ever since the corn made its appearance above the ground. But it is not always the early planted corn that is the best, as a great deal depends upon the season later on. If the last portion of the season is good the late planted corn will be as good as the first, and perhaps better, if the early planted does not get a good start. All the other crops are doing well."

George Wahl left Thursday for Nebraska City where he will be the guest of W. H. Wylie and family.

Mrs. Katherine Klinefelter of Rockford, Ill., returned Wednesday on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norris in this city.

Harvey Grimes who has been day operator here for the C. B. & O., was transferred to Sterling Wednesday where he will be night operator.

Mrs. R. Horrocks fell on a defective sidewalk last week and sustained a severe wrench of her right arm and several serious bruises. At this writing she is a trifle better.

MAKING OF THE BASEBALL.

The Industry Established in 1858 Employs Hundreds of People Who Have Learned Art.

This is the story of a baseball. It begins with a rubber core. Then it extends through hundreds of yards of wool yarn to a horsehide cover. More hundreds of yards of wool yarn give the resiliency, or "bounce." Then comes cement, and an outside cover within the prescribed weight and circumference laid down by the league magnates, says the Boston Globe.

To every lover of the national game the following facts will be of interest:

Half a century ago the game of "rounders" gave a quick eye, a well-developed arm, a deep chest and a fleet foot to thousands of youngsters at "recess."

If some of the old "yarn balls" made by mothers and grandmothers had been preserved they would be priceless to-day as relics. Those balls were "swatted" out of shape in the twinkling of an eye.

Then a "kid" cover was sewed over the yarn ball. It was cut in eighths of a circle, just as the orange skin is divided. This was promptly knocked off in the second inning, but it gave a third inning for the yarn.

Harrison Harwood, of Natick, was a lover of the game. He had "swatted" yarn into the cometlike streamers and had batted "kid" covers half way across the "lot."

In 1855 he designed a two-piece cover. It was like what is now called a "toggle" joint. In other words, there were two hemispheres of leather, connected by a narrow isthmus, into which two other hemispheres fitted snugly. This was the first step. But the construction made it a "dead" ball. There was no "life" in it. Nevertheless, Mr. Harwood started a little factory in Natick in 1858. This was the first baseball factory in the United States.

The women who had made baseballs for sons and grandsons were only too glad to earn "pin money" by sewing the covers on. To-day there is hardly a family of half a century's standing in Natick whose progenitors were not interested in Mr. Harwood's venture.

And to-day there are over 100 families who learned the secret of sewing baseballs from parents and grandparents, earning much more than a living in homes that were paid for by baseballs.

THE LOVE OF JEWELRY

Is one of the most natural of emotions—as the actions of children and older people alike show. This love for the beautiful and the artistic should be cultivated to the utmost—the only bar to owning jewelry should be the price and that you will never find an obstacle here.

Every price plainly marked.
