There is always the danger that every man will become the hired man, and every mother the hired girl, to their family.

One reason that so much information is incorrect is that enough people do not say, "I don't know," when asked a question.

It will be bad enough, at all events, to die and be buried, but how much worse it will be if they use any of this phonetic spelling on the tombstone.

Every boy says his dog wont bite; that if people passing pay no attention to his barking they wont be hurt. Still, people hate to be scared to death to oblige a boy who insists on keeping a cross dog.

If you had a daughter and she should marry and bring her husband to your house to live the day after the wedding, would you feel grateful for another son? People are different about such things; how would you feel? We'd fear we wouldn't like it.

It is a good thing to be on the streets Sunday morning to see the prettiest sight of the week: The little sister is always a mother to those younger, but she is as fierce in keeping their clothes clean, and their behavior good, as a step-mother, when on their way to Sunday school.

A play may be so natural that running water is used in river scenes; the details of costume may be carried out to perfection; every situation may be true to life, but there is one place in which the most realistic playwright fails. He makes the men's proposals of marriage too plain. Every married man knows he never came right out and asked his wife to marry him. He hinted at his feelings, and the first thing he knew he was accepted. But a stage hero comes right out and says: "I love you. Will you marry me?" And experienced people in the audience know very well that's not true to nature.

There is nothing so nice as a nice woman. But the dogs bark at a bad one.

It is just as common for some people to be poor spellers as it is for others to have sore eyes.

A dandelion field covered with the yellow blooms looks pretty, but it is a sign of shiftlessness to say so.

As soon as a man gets the notion that his employer can't get along without him, he is getting ready to lose his job.

When some people know that you don't talk about them, instead of feeling pleased, they say it is because you can't.

If you think you have no one in the world who is interested in you, tie up one of your fingers and pour liniment over it.

There is one thing sure: If mother followed all the rules of beauty and health, her family wouldn't get half as good attention.

A woman has been a perfect success as a wife if the suspicion has never crossed her husband's heart that he might have done better.

You are a dandy if you can beat another man's game. A slot machine is another man's game. And don't forget you are invited many times to invest in other men's games.

If a thing isn't in a man naturally, we sometimes think all the training in the world will fail to put it in him. Therefore, the importance of heredity; of having good fathers and mothers.

Testing Dairy Cows.

The more we see of the desire on the part of promoters of the different breeds of cattle to make extravagant claims for their stock as being especially strong in dairy lines, the more we feel the necessity of official dairy tests for the verification of such claims.

The making of these extravagant claims for certain individuals in the different breeds develops out of a demand for dual purpose cows which is now very evident amongst a very great class of farmers throughout this state, where the conditions insure the greatest profit from a cow that is not only a good worker at the pail, but that produces a reasonably good steer.

We are not here to say which breed of cattle comes nearest to meeting this demand, neither should anyone designate a certain breed as meeting those requirements until he has furnished evidence which is conclusive proof of his claim. The tendency to generalize is a failing of the farmer, for the simple reason that his varied duties about the farm, prevent him from giving too much time to any one duty. He milks his cows in great haste and makes a guess that a certain cow has given so many gallons of milk at a milking. That milk is mixed in with the milk from several other cows and is lost track of forever, as far as it is concerned individually. He milks the cow at five o'clock this morning, six o'clock tomorrow morning and seven o'clock the next morning. Still he thinks the cow is a record breaker because she gave a wonderful quantity of milk the morning that he milked her at seven o'clock, she having been milked at a little earlier than usual the evening before. There is no such thing as forming, even the vaguest sort of an idea of what sort of a dairy producer a certain cow is when she is handled in such a way. And the man who thinks he can boost his herd or his breed by making extravagant claims for his cattle as being strong producers without making official tests will sooner or later come up at the small end of the horn, if his patrons will but observe what descendants from the cows in such herd develop into as dairy workers.

We are out of patience with the breeder who is making claims for his cattle without being able to sustain his position. There is just one way to know what a cow will do and that is to test her out officially. This may be done at a small cost. The cows need be tested but two days in each month. But on those two days they are handled under the supervision of a representative from the state experimental station. The cow is milked at a certain time in the morning and at a certain time in the evening. Her milk is weighed and tested for quality. Because a cow gives sixty pounds of milk today, it does not mean that she will keep up that pace until the end of the year. Neither does it mean that her milk is as valuable as that from another cow which only gave fifty pounds. There is a great deal of difference in the quality of milk, as our dear readers have no doubt been lead to observe. One cow's milk may test 3.5 or less, and another tests

5.5. It is readily seen which of these cows is the more valuable as a butter maker, even though the former may give several pounds more milk per day than the latter. The reason that Florence Airdrie made such a phenomenal showing is because her milk tested out very rich, and she not only milked for six months, but for an entire year, over nine months of which time she was carrying another calf. Anyone who has had experience with cows knows that a cow in calf is more inclined to dry up her milk towards the time of calving than a cow that is not pregnant. Then if you want a cow to make a record that is really worth something, see that she is in calf and that she is tested for the year. Spasmodic testing is a farce and the man who is making claims for the dairy propensities of his cattle without furnishing proof of his claims is doing an injustice to the breed, to his patron and finally to himself.

We shall be glad to see some of the breeders which desire to be known as catering to the dual purpose propensities, test out a few of their better cows and at the same time raise calves from these cows to see what they may do at both ends of the line. Let us have a little more absolute information, and a less baseless guess work.—Nebraska Farmer.

Annual Camp Meeting.

Cheap Farm Land.

Southwest Offers Best Opportunities For Securing Homes.

Many farmers in the Northern and Eastern states are selling their high priced lands and locating in the Southwest. Many who have been unable to own their homes in the older country are buying lands in the new country.

Unusual opportunities exist along the lines of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain Route. The rich, alluvial, delta lands and river bottom lands of Southeast Missouri, Eastern Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, capable of producing 60 bushels of corn, a bale of cotton, 4 to 6 tons of alfalfa 150 bushels of potatoes, and other grains, vegetables and hay crops, can be bought for $7.50 to $15.00 per acre. When cleared and slightly improved will rent for $4.00 to $6.00 per acre cash.

Uplands more rolling, lighter soil, adapted to fruit growing—peaches, pears, plums grapes, berries—also melons, tomatoes and other vegetables, can be bought for $5.00 to $10.00 per acre in unimproved state. Many places with small clearings and some improvements can be bought very cheap.

This is a fine stock country. No long winter feeding. Free range, pure water, mild climate. A healthy, growing country with a great future.

Write for map and descriptive literature on Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana Texas, Kansas or Indian Territory. Very cheap rates on first and third Tuesdays of each month.
