NOW AND THEN.

A large number of our people have taken advantage of the low rates to Kentucky to again visit the old home place. Among those who left the first of the week were E. L. Sandusky, George Grinstead, S. P. Gist and wife of Salem, Guy Greenwald, O. Kidder and wife and many others. Of course it is none of our business, and we are not going to butt in, but if Sandy should be sitting on the wide porch of some old Kentucky home, sheltered from the sun by luxuriant vines growing about the old colonial pillars, and the old black servant should hand him a glass with the frost gathered about the rim, with the fragrant mint peeping from its cool depths and the ice clinking pleasantly in the golden liquid; I say it is none of our business and we are not going to butt in, but we are not going to blame him, if under these circumstances he forgets for a moment that he at one time ran for council in the third ward on the prohibition ticket, are you?

He had been running about the court house yard all morning chasing butterflies. The sun was warm and the grass cool and the butterflies enticing, and he was having the time of his life. I don't know who owned him, or that he was owned at all. But everybody knew him and called him the base ball dog because he would run after a ball or a stick or anything else for that matter that promised attention and fun. And now he was lying in the shade of the trees with his mouth open and his tongue out as he laughed and panted after his play. A great red automobile came throbbling up the street bearing a gay fishing party. This was better than butterflies and the little "rat and tan" ran out leaping and barking in noisy anticipation of the sport. The driver couldn't help it—it happened too quickly. There was a yelp and the light of fun died out of the doggie's eyes. He whirled twice, ran to the curb, laid down in the gutter and whined pitifully a time or two and laid still. The eyes were wide open but they saw no sunshine nor shade, nor would they again forever and forever. The world where little dogs chased sunshine and butterflies was no more; there remained only the silence and the darkness. A crowd gathered and gazed for the moment in curiosity and one by one passed on, but the little base ball dog remained very still.

It was only a dog, you say? Yes, it was only a dog that loved to play in the sunlight and thought it great fun to chase butterflies on a spring day. It was a little dog that loved life and companionship and play and was afraid of the night and the darkness, "even as you and I."

Because no one seems inclined to take the initiative, Falls City will probably renig on a Fourth of July celebration. One reason that the city does not progress more is because of the lack of amusements. We have no ball team, no park, no tennis tournaments, in fact there is no public amusement of any character. If we had nothing more than a good band to give weekly concerts it would be a vast improvement. Up in the north end they have phonograph concerts that tend to relieve the monotony. Dr. Mathers takes his high grade instrument on the front porch and plays for the benefit of the neighbors, all of whom sit on their front porches and pass the evenings very pleasantly because of the thoughtfulness of the doctor. Our only dissipation is fishing and reading the base ball scores. In the amusement line we are as dull as Hiawatha and no immediate improvement can be hoped for. A Fourth of July celebration would help, but no one will start anything.

At a congressional convention held in Beatrice years ago Dave Stephenson's candidate was beaten and old Dave was as sore as a dog. Church Howe, who had done the beating, came along and began to taunt Dave on the defeat. Dave looked at him in disgust for a moment and then said, "Church Howe, you are a ass." I read the interviews in the papers given out by Mr. and Mrs. Alice Roosevelt, nee Longworth, just before their departure for Europe. Mr. Alice Roosevelt said he was happy and was getting happier every day. That married life was too blissful for mortal man, and gushed and sputtered such stuff ad nauseum. Mrs. Alice Roosevelt was just as silly in her hot air. I know a hundred Falls City girls that have too much sense to be guilty of such interviews. A member of the Taft party to the Philippines, of which party Alice Roosevelt was one, told me a short time after the return that she was the silliest mortal on earth and that she kept Taft busy squaring things she had done or said. A lady was visiting in Falls City the other day who had just returned from Washington. She said that these stories and more were true. She and her husband are now in England doing things right. I wonder if she will give any more interviews on blissfulness of married life? If she does the English people will doubtless think of what Dave Stephenson said to Church Howe.

The local telephone company is spending a large sum of money in making its lines thoroughly modern. What is called the Standard construction is now installed and the entire equipment is being put in permanent shape. While this will cost a large sum of money and will probably consume the entire year before being completed, it will when finished make the plant one of the best in the state. The labor is of that character that interferes somewhat with the service and some complaint is being made because thereof. However, this is merely temporary and will soon be eliminated. When the improvements have all been made the service will be so much better that the patrons can afford the temporary inconvenience. The outside companies are still delaying their advent into the city. We are not informed as to the cause of the delay, and hope and believe the lines will soon be built. It required too much labor and created too much enmity to secure the franchise for these companies to permit it to lapse without results.

The wind is blowing down the street taking with it a cloud of dust. The grass is brown and dry and hot, and the breeze murmurs in the trees uneasily. It is the close of a summer's day with all the out doors thirsting for rain. Yet I know a little river way out where the mountains are. It is cool there and the water is gushing noisily over the pebbles and quarreling with the rocks that impede its progress to the sea. There is a deep dark pool in this little river just under the shadow of a boulder where the trout are. And Oh, such trout as they are! Great speckled fellows that strike at a fly and set your reel to whirling and your heart to beating, giving you more of the zest of life in a minute than you can get in a year looking at the cloud of dust blowing down the street, at the grass brown and dry and hot, and at the out doors thirsting for rain at the close of a summer's day. It is fishing time and in my waking dreams I have been catching trout all day in a deep dark pool in a little river lying in the shadow of a boulder.

Market Letter.

Kansas City, Mo., June 11, '06. —Moderate receipts of cattle continued all of last week, with a smaller percentage of fat steers than usual, while conditions at the consuming end of the trade improved steadily, so that the close was 15 to 25 cents higher than close of previous week, with a more healthy outlook. Stockers and feeders did not sell in line with killing stuff, however, closing up dull and barely steady with the opening. A good many cattle were held back in the country last week, account of uncertainty of conditions, but these are apparently all being put forward this week, as supply today is 13,000 head, against 8000 last Monday. Packers were cleaned up close last week, and sales today were steady to strong on good killing steers, as buyers are not affected with the same fears and uncertainties as they labored under a week ago. The agitation about pecking plants has not injured the fresh meat trade seriously but the business in canned meats with foreign countries is likely to suffer. Top steers last Tuesday sold at $5.60, but same class would have brought $5.80 on Friday. Top today $5.45, plain cattle $4.50 to $5.15, best heifers $4.50 to $5.10 but medium heifers and cows are considerably below two weeks ago, at $3 to $4.25, bulls $2.75 to $4, grass beginning to show a little. Veals are a quarter higher, top $65.0, stockers and feeders $3.25 to $4.50.

Hogs advanced 15c on moderate receipts last week, 63,000 head which was 9000 less than previous week. Tops Saturday $6.50, supply 8000 today, market 5 higher, top $6.55, bulk $6.35 to $6.47. It seems that when the price in the country gets below $6, feeders quit selling to quite an extent, resulting in smaller supplies at the markets, and higher prices.

Mutton market is 15 to 30 higher than last Friday, strong today. Spring lambs selling at $6.75 to $7.40, clipped yearlings $6.40, wethers $6.50, ewes $5.75, these prices for good to choice stuff. Supply was smallest for many weeks last week, at 21,000 head, run today 6000 head.

You will always be able to get a square deal as well as the top market price for poultry, butter and eggs in cash or trade here. Also buy hand separated cream at highest market price. Call and see me. E. E. JAMES.

Interesting to Asthma Sufferers.

"I have had asthma for three or four years and have tried about all the cough and asthma cures in the market," says Daniel Bantz of Ottumville, Iowa, "and have received treatment from physicians in New York and other cities, but got very little benefit until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar which gave me immediate relief and I will never be without it in my house. I sincerely recommend it to all." For sale at Moore's Pharmacy.

PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS.

WILL VISIT UNITED STATES, SAY SCIENTISTS.

Eastern and Middle States Last Week in May—Seventeen and Thirteen and Thirteen-Year Varieties Expected.

Washington.—The country is this year to have a visit from not only the 17-year locusts, but the 13-year variety as well. This announcement is made by the bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture. The locusts will begin to appear in some of the eastern and middle states about the last week of May. New York, however, according to the entomological sharps, will escape.

The department has sent out for distribution in the localities that will be visited by the locusts a circular which contains a map indicating the various points where the locusts will appear. Accompanying the circular is a reply card, on which may be noted any information relating to the locust swarms. The map refers to the 17-year brood, and the circular gives their distribution as follows:

"The region commences in southeastern Massachusetts, extends south across Long Island and along the Atlantic coast of New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland as far as Chesapeake bay; then up the Susquehanna river to Pennsylvania to a point a little below Harrisburg, thence westward in Ohio, embracing the southwestern corner of the state and the northwestern portion of Kentucky, and then upward through southwestern Indiana, ending in central Illinois. It is possible, also, that there is an eastward extension of the region from Kentucky into southern West Virginia, and also in the counties of Buncombe and McDowell in North Carolina, but as these appearances were not verified in 1872, it is probable that they belong to the 13-year race."

The 13-year locusts are not so numerous nor so widely distributed as the 17-year brood. The circular says they will appear in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee. It is stated that the periodical locust, when it appears in great numbers, naturally causes considerable alarm and arouses fears for the safety of shade trees and orchards. The actual damage, however, is usually slight, except in the case of newly planted orchards, and even here, by rigorous pruning back after the locust has disappeared, much of the injury caused by the egg punctures may be obviated. As a matter of precaution, however, the circular says it might be well not to locate new orchards this spring in recently cleared ground or in proximity to woods in any of the regions where the locust is scheduled to appear. In many cases, however, the clearing up and cultivation of the ground will have destroyed the larvae and it may not appear.

The exact date of emergence of the adults from the ground will vary somewhat with the season. The experience of many years, however, indicates that most of the individuals will come out during the last week in May. Very frequently the holes through which they will emerge will appear in the soil some weeks before the insects actually come out. These holes are a little larger around than a lead pencil, and are frequently so numerous as absolutely to cover the surface of the ground.

BULLET FOR FRENCH DUELS

With Which Parisians Can Shoot at Each Other with Perfect Safety.

Paris.—Parisians have been enabled by the invention of a hollow bullet to "train" for duels under the realistic condition of shooting at and being shot at by a living man instead of practicing at an inanimate target which does not fire back.

Dr. Desiriers is the inventor and he has opened a club called "La Societe l'Assaut au Pistolet." Forty of the best "shots" in Paris fired in pairs at one another one morning recently in the Jardin de Paris.

Of 272 shots fired 202 hits were recorded. Two participants each made full scores and in the final round shot each other over the heart. While all wore goggles and some padded blouses and gloves, one victor shot in his buttoned frock coat. The bullet is harmless and can be used several times, but the blow on the ball of the thumb of one of the contestants required surgical treatment.

The training is of unique value for a real duel. Men who never missed a "dead" target were quite disconcerted by the raising of their opponent's arm to fire.

Chance for Cheese Makers.

A revival of America's export trade in cheese is agitating the agricultural leaders of the United States. Consul General Thackara, of Berlin, indicates in a letter to the bureau of manufacturers a good opening for American cheese in Germany. The empire bought during 1905 mainly from Holland, Switzerland, Denmark and Canada $6,500,000 of cheese at good prices, which show a tendency to harden.
