Tuesday we received two souvenir postal cards from our friend G. W. Shock, who is at Rocky Ford, Colo., depicting the glories of that country in the form of their immense melon crops. On one postal was a view of large piles of watermelons and cantaloupes piled in long tiers higher than a man's head. The other presented a far different aspect and was entitled, "After the feast-melon day."

Will Hossack, who has been on his Rosebud claim, near Dixon, S. D., all summer, came in Tuesday to spend a day with his parents, John Hossack and wife. Will just proved up on his claim the past month, which by the way contains 160 acres, and has refused an offer of four thousand for the same. He is the only one in this county who filed on their claims and he is now richly repaid for his trouble and work expended on the same, as the land is certainly fine.
