Address the Kansas City Journal, Kansas City, Mo. This offer expires Oct 1, 1906.

Heart Weakness

The action of the heart depends upon the heart nerves and muscles. When from any cause they become weak or exhausted, and fail to furnish sufficient power, the heart flutters, palpitates, skips beats; and in its effort to keep up its work, causes pain and distress, such as smothering spells, short breath, fainting, pain around heart, arm and shoulders. The circulation is impeded, and the entire system suffers from lack of nourishment.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure makes a heart strong and vigorous by strengthening these nerves and muscles.

"I had palpitation and pain around my heart, and the doctors said it was incurable. I don't believe it now, for after taking six bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, three bottles of the Nervine and three boxes of the Nerve and Liver Pills I am entirely cured, and feel better than I have for five years, and it is all due to these remedies. I want you to know that your medicines cured me. I relieved me from the first dose, and I kept right on till the pain in my chest was gone, and I kept on feeling better even after I quit taking it." JOHN H. SHERRMAN, Belding, Mich.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.

Worth While.

Some men are larger in defeat than others are in victory.

There is no way of telling how much one woman thinks of another.

No matter who you are or where you came from the world owes you a living—and you owe the world much more than it owes you.

Keep peace with yourself if you can't with anybody else.

Everything comes to him, who lets the other fellow do the waiting.

Some people seem to be proud of the fact that they have troubles.

After a man has told a lie three times he begins to believe it himself.

Do it now if it has to be done at all. You might forget it.

Step high, hold your head up, and you'll feel like somebody.

The doubter is always kept busy—with other people's affairs.

Fight out in the open.

Don't hide behind slander.

Men usually feel the best when they look like the devil.

When once a woman gets mad—look out for the fireworks.

The only way to get an honest estimate of a man is to strike an average. Most of us have follies and foibles that look bad on the ledger before the credits are transcribed.

You can't always judge an editor by the front he puts on. A newspaper is not calculated to manufacture much "front" for any person connected with its publication.

Some men are too busy preserving their dignity, to make an honest living.

Confine your criticism to yourself and you will get into no unpleasant discussions.

It is a mistake to marry too young but under the present law, it is easily rectified.

From Colorado.

Greeley, Colo., Sept. '06.

To the Falls City Tribune:

Having left Richardson county in January, I will try to give my friends some of the ideas of Colorado farming.

They sow wheat with alfalfa, cut it for hay the second year, and the third year plow under alfalfa in May for potatoes, follow potato crop with sugar beets then back to small grain and alfalfa.

Cut three crops of alfalfa hay from two to two and one-half per acre at $5 per ton in stack. Potatoes or spuds, as they are called here, make from 120 to 200 sacks per acre. Beets from 12 to 20 tons per acre at $5 per acre. The Greeley factory has 7,000 acres under contract for this year.

There are three factories in this county; one at Easton, ten miles from Greeley, and at Longmont. They each have 6,500 acres contracted for.

The railroad stations average four miles a part. Irrigated land is a good price, from $75 to $300 per acre and some land close to Greeley at $7. They pay $20 per acre for tending those beets. Thinning, two hoeings and topplings. Then the work is done mostly by Russians and Japs. Wages for farm hands are $25; for men that can irrigate $35 per month. Day wages $1.50 and board; $2 to 2.50 and board self; from $3 to $4 per day for picking up potatoes done by the sack.

Farmers make more money here, per acre, than they can in Nebraska, but there is quite an expense in hiring labor. If they do not make from $40 to $100 per acre they are grumbling.

Greeley is 40 miles from the foot hills east, 59 miles north of Denver in the richest valley supposed to be in Colorado between the South Platte and Ruder rivers, plenty of water to irrigate with. This part of Colorado is booming and land has advanced.

Since spring there is quite a number of people from Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois in our neighborhood.

I have met E. C. Billings of near Salem Neb. He has been here seven years; lived in Richardson county thirty-five years. He thinks there is no place like Colorado. If your health is poor come out here; it will do you good. You can see snow on the mountains the year around, and can sleep fine every night under blankets. We have been here eight months, and are very much in love with this country. W. S. Moore of Falls City is here with his oxen and ditching machine and is kept busy with that kind of work. He expects to winter here as he will not be able to finish up the work this summer.

Geo. L. Sheldon—An Impression.

"What sort of a man is George Sheldon?" is a question asked by people who have not his acquaintance. The nominee for governor of the majority party, with a practical certainty of election before him, is bound to be of interest and a few observations taken at close range may be of interest.

The first impression the observer gains of Sheldon is that of size. More than six feet tall, broad shouldered, powerful, he must weigh 200 pounds and all of it hard, clean muscle. One thinks of the old verse: "There were giants in those days," when he looks upon his powerful body.

The next impression is one of youth. Although he is 36 years old, the age of Bryan when first nominated for president, he does not look within six years of his age. The heavy beard shows blue black through the close shaven skin of lip and chin, the face is free from the wrinkles and lines of dissipation and worry; the deep set eyes are calm and untroubled. And yet, there is about his face a strong suggestion of power. It is seen in the down drooping corners of his mouth, in the firm lines of his chin and the unwavering eyes. The whole cast of his features tend to sternness and immobility. One says at once that this man is no vascillator, no compromiser; he will follow his own course to finality with little regard for side issues.

His manner is pleasant, but he is not effusive or overgenial. He does not slap men on the back, kiss babies or "set 'em up." He is himself all the time—he has poise.

In public speaking he is cool and undisturbed as in private conversation. He does not resort to bombast, fustian or vainglory; nor hide his thoughts beneath a wilderness of rhetoric. His arguments are clear and concise and his words plain and pertinent.

In speaking his voice is deep and resonant; with a timbre and volume akin to the notes of a bass viol. Steady and untremulous, it invests his hearers with something of the calm confidence in the truth of his words, which seem to animate the speaker.

Sheldon is an attractive, a likeable man. Men who met him for the first time at the state convention went away with the feeling that they had seen a man of ideals and the power to be true to them; a man of simple honesty and fixedness of purpose. They felt that as governor he would have no higher interest than the public welfare and that he had the ability and the courage to fight for the public good. It was this personal impression that he gave to all who met him that brought him such remarkable and unexpected strength in the balloting. As the people of the state become better acquainted with him they cannot fail to have the same favorable impression. He will gain their friendship and admiration and when elected, he will be the people's governor.—Fairbury News.

There has been considerable discussion in pugilistic circles since the Gans-Nelson fight relative to the longest fistic contests in ring history.

The long distance heavy weight battles were the Kilrain-Smith about 109 rounds; the Sullivan-Mitchell a f a i r, thirty-nine rounds, and Sullivan-Kilrain clash, seventy-five rounds.

Jake Kilrain of Baltimore went abroad to fight Jem Smith the English champion, and had Smith going when the Englishman's friends broke into the ring and stopped the fight in time to save Smith. Sullivan and Mitchell fought in France. Mitchell made a footrace of the fight and forced Sullivan to a draw.

Sullivan and Jake Kilrain fought seventy-five rounds under the hottest sun that ever blistered a white man down in Mississippi, in 1889. Mitchell managed Kilrain in this fight. Sullivan whipped Kilrain. This was the last heavy weight championship battle fought according to London prize ring rules.

The Sullivan and Corbett fight was governed by Marquis of Queensberry rules. Peter Jackson and Jim Corbett battled sixty-one rounds under Queensberry rules, and the fight was declared no contest.

Dan Daily and Ed Kelly, two St. Louis pugilists, fought the longest fight on record at the middle weight limit. They went sixty-one rounds under London prize ring rules. April 26, 1886, Daily being the winner. Kelly, who is a son of the veteran Tom Kelly, is still alive and living in St. Louis. Alex Greggains and "Buffalo" Costello, middle weights, fought sixty rounds under Queensberry rules to a draw.

Dan Needham and Tommy Ryan, welter weights, fought seventy-six rounds, Ryan winning, but the longest welter weight on record was found by Patsy Kerrigan and Danny Needham, when they battled 101 rounds, lasting six hours and forty-four minutes, at San Francisco. Dunny Daily and Tommy White fought the longest feather weight battle on record, going ninety-one rounds, the affair lasting five hours and twenty-four minutes, at Omaha, December, 1890. Daily also fought Billy O'Donnell eighty-one rounds under Queensberry rules. O'Donnell afterwards beat Oscar Gardner, one of the best feather weights of his time.

King of the Cattle Ring.

The vast crowd that attended the production of Eliers show last Friday night were highly pleased with the play, all pronouncing it one of the best entertainments ever in the city. The characters in the cast carried out their parts exceptionally well. This is a first class attraction and one that any one would enjoy. The moving pictures were also an attraction. Should this play again visit this city we do not hesitate to say that they will play to a crowded house.—Big Springs Herald. At Falls City Thursday, September 20th.

The democrats of Pawnee and Richardson counties have nominated John Osborne of Pawnee for float senator. He was a member of the senate in 1897, and as chairman of the railroad committee was chief railroad helper and pass dispenser among the fusionists. Aside from these small offenses he is one of Pawnee's oldest and best citizens.—Beatrice Express.

Market Letter.

Stock yards, Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 10, 1906. The cattle run last week dwindled from first to last, and finally ended with a total of 61,000 head, including 8,000 calves. This supply was several thousand short of corresponding week a year ago, while the demand from all sources was normal. All kinds hold about steady except medium to common grass cattle, which were avoided as much as possible, as they always are. Veal calves advanced 25c to 50c, prices on the light weights being more subject to the volume of receipts than prices on any other class of stock. The run today is 19,000 cattle and 3,000 calves, about like last Monday, and the prospects are that the run for the week will exceed that of last week. Other markets are moderately supplied today, and prices here are steady. At this season there are innumerable small orders for butcher stuff from all over the country, including Kansas and Missouri. Movement of stockers and feeders is heavy, around 700 car loads last week, the largest of the season. Inquiry was strongest for fleshy feeders for a short feed, packers also competing for this class in many cases. Prime steers are quotable up to $6.50, various grades of dry lot steers from $5.75 upwards. Second grade beef steers $5 to $5.75, best grassers $5.15, light grass steers including Westerns at $3.40 to $4.35, heifers $3.25 to $4.75, cows $2.40 to $3.60, light veals $5 to $6, heavy and mixed calves $3.25 to $4.50, feeders $3.75 to $4.50, good fleshy steers for a short feed $4.50 to $5, stockers including range stuff, $2.60 to $4.15.

Hog market changes constantly but last week finished in the same notch as end of previous week, market strong to 5 higher today. Run last week was 38,000 head, today 6,000. Light hogs sell at $6.20 to $6.37½ today, mixed weights $6.10 to $6.30, heavy hogs $6 to $6.10. Supply now shows only a small increase over this time last year, but that time the market was breaking badly, but was 50c lower than now.

Sheep and lambs are coming freely from Utah, and some stuff is also being received from New Mexico and Arizona, offerings of natives very limited. Run today is 8,500, market 10 to 15 higher. Best lambs sold up to $7.55, native muttons $5 to $5.50. Stuff for the country is being secured in larger numbers, prices strong. Feeding lambs sell at $6 to $6.50, yearling weathers and ewes $5.25 to $5.50, feeding weathers around $5, breeding ewes $4.75 to $5.40.

"Here is a story," says the Atchison Globe, "illustrating the difficulty a reporter has getting news. He was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he inquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. 'Are any of the family at home?' inquired the reporter. 'No, they are all out,' was the reply. 'Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?' 'Yes, said the girl, 'but that's out, too.'"
