Burned To Death

One of the most horrible accidents happened in this city last Tuesday afternoon that has occurred for some time in this vicinity, although there has been an unusual amount of accidents here lately.

Mrs. W. H. Rea who, with her family, lives in the Goldman property, in the eastern part of town attempted to start a fire in the cook stove with kerosene, at about five o'clock, Tuesday afternoon. Whether she put too much of the oil in the stove and applied a match or whether there was a fire in the stove when she poured in the oil is not known, but an explosion was heard by several in the neighborhood and when assistance arrived the kitchen was discovered to be in flames and Mrs. Rea also enveloped with the flames. She was standing with one hand grasping a table for support, the shock seeming to paralyze her faculties as she did not move. Frank Dilts made three attempts to rescue her but the fire was so severe that he was unable to succeed until the third attempt when he reached her and carried her to the porch where he quickly extinguished the flames. But it was too late to save her as the dreaded fire was quick in its destruction. Mrs. Rea's clothing were all burned from her body except her shoes, her hair was scorched off entirely, the face and arms burned to a deep red and the body burned to a crisp. Neighbor women covered the the corpse until the arrival of the coroner. Meanwhile Frank Dilts, assisted by a few others carried water from the nearby wells and with a great effort put out the fire in the house. The kitchen was badly burned but the remainder of the building was saved.

At the time of the accident, Mrs. Rea was alone, the two little girls not having arrived home from school, one boy was working up town and the two older boys were working on a farm in the country. Mr. Rea was working in St. Joseph at the time and although a message was sent him immediately, he was unable to arrive before the following afternoon.

Mrs. Simanton kindly took the little girls to her home until other arrangements could be made for their keeping.

Mrs. W. H. Rea was born in Illinois about 49 years ago where she lived nearly all her early life and after finishing her school, chose as her vocation that of a school teacher. This she followed until her marriage with Mr. Rea. About six years ago the family moved to this city, where they have since lived. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Griffin, on Wednesday afternoon from the Resterer & Son undertaking parlors, interment being in the Steele cemetery.
