If Falls City would work for Falls City what a good little town we would have. If we had fewer men who seek the destruction of local business institutions because of personal feeling against men connected with such institutions we would be a great deal better off. If the town is to progress it must have the active co-operation of every citizen. When men are so small as to send out of town for postage stamps because they don't like the postmaster, when a local merchant furnishes his home by out of town purchases, when the spirit of "knock" is the constant familiar of many of our citizens, what can be expected for the future.
