

WORTH WHILE.

It doesn't take a quarrelsome man to strike an attitude.

Many a man has died without a struggle who found it impossible to live that way.

A girl doesn't really believe that a young man never made love to another girl, but she says she does.

Discretion is sometimes the worst part of valor.

It takes a lot of rehearsing to make the average man honest.

White lies are apt to leave black marks on a man's reputation.

Many a man who is unable to do the things he would is too lazy to do the things he could.

To gaze upon life we should borrow no man's spectacles.

It's a waste of time to try to dodge a hypocrite. He knows more dodges in a minute than you will learn in a life time.

There is hardly any more fun than being afraid you are going to be caught, but not being.

Gladness and gratitude are pleasanter emotions than pride.

Love in a cottage isn't all cottage pudding.

It is so much easier to pull a fellowman down than boost him up.

Even a baby draws the line at being kissed by an old batchelor.

When a girl under 25 declares she will never marry she hopes she isn't telling the truth.

A New Jersey man couldn't see any danger in smoking white weighing powder. He can't see anything now.

Be sure of a man's ability as a scraper before you ask him to apologize.

Many a man acts foolish who is not a professional actor.

It's cowardly to hit a man when he is down—but it's usually sater.

The plainer the woman the longer it takes her to select a becoming bonnet.

The typewriter is mightier than the telephone—when it comes to reproducing the message in court.

A young man always takes a girl's hand before asking for it.

An old penny with a premium on it may look like thirty cents.

The worm that is trodden on may believe that one good turn deserves another.

Only a born diplomat can be frank and popular at the same time.

The Difference.

The fire bell had hardly began to sound Monday evening, says the Horton Headlight, before a large crowd of men and boys were racing up the street in a frantic endeavor to be the first ones to reach the fire. As they passed a sedate looking gentleman was heard to remark: "What a world this would be if the church bell could only arouse such interest."

If you are weak in a certain direction, admit it, and try to improve. Don't say you work ten hours a day when you know positively you work but seven. Don't "baby" yourself. You might as well sit down and cry because you will be compelled to die some day, as to claim to be strong when you are actually weak. We don't suggest this in order to show that we are wise (because we are not), but because we have been punished so long for doing foolish things that we feel an interest in other foolish people, and desire to shield them from punishment. If people would only quit their little follies, and become simple, and strong, and just, and manly, how much happier they would be! And there is so much wretchedness in this world; most of it unnecessary.

A newspaper is in no sense a child of charity. It earns twice every dollar it receives, and is second to no enterprise in contributing to the upbuilding of a community. Its patrons reap far more benefits from its pages than its publishers; in calling for the support of the community in which it is published, it asks for no more than in all fairness belongs to it, though generally it receives less. Patronize and help your paper as you would any other enterprise because it helps you, and not as an act of charity.—Tarkio (Mo.) Herald.

Pastor Warns of 'Gilded Studios'

Taking for his topic "The Blessings and Curses of Wealth and Home," the Rev. Dr. C. W. Blodgett, at the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church of Pittsburg, made the Thaw case the topic of an extraordinary sermon last Sunday.

"Wealth need not be a corruptor of morals," he said. "It is the vulgarity of it that the world recoils from. This country is reading of the tragic scenes in the court of justice in New York with intense interest. Pittsburg is deeply interested. Here on the streets of Allegheny, the poor unfortunate wife of the chief actor played when she was a girl. Across the river the husband now on trial for the murder of a man in New York, the revelations of whose life makes you shudder with horror, spent his boyhood days. They both came from respectable families. One knew what poverty was—hunger for bread—the other when a mere lad spent enough money in a year to keep a dozen families. They both go wrong.

"One, seemingly, by the cruel hand of Fate, the other through love that was blinded. All our hearts bleed for them. Will the fathers and mothers of this and other cities take any warning?"

"We sing, 'Where is my wandering boy tonight?' but where is your girl? At the place of amusement, then decayed into some gilded studio—then sorrow and a life worse than hell. No higher virtue should be demanded of woman than of man. The same code of ethics should apply to both.

"A treacherous scoundrel of a man, poor or rich, should have the same treatment as the abandoned woman. Poor Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is not the only girl that has been ruined as she was.

"In the outcome of the trial of Harry Thaw, the reckless and unfortunate of one of our most respected homes, millions are interested. What of the outcome of the lads and lassies not grown to manhood? Hearts are still to be broken and homes made desolate, and some of them may be yours."

Miss Edna Lytle, after a long illness with typhoid fever at her home near Broken Arrow, I. T., has been able to be up the past two weeks. She was teaching at a nearby town, Fry, when taken sick, and her sister Madge has been teaching in her place. Miss Blanche Lytle is teacher of the third grade in Broken Arrow.—Stella Press.

Fun, in its place, and it has many places, is all right; out of its place, however, it is all wrong. We might add that the calling up of people by the telephone after they have gone to bed, just "for fun" is entirely out of place. Especially is this true where there are small children. Take, for instance, where a mother has worked for an hour or more to get the baby to sleep and then have the telephone wake him up, because some young man who has nothing else to do, wanted to have some "fun." We like a joke and enjoy fun as well as anyone, but to be called out of bed in the middle of the night and have the whole household awake does not appeal to our funny bone.—Trenton Register.
