THE WHIRLWIND.

The railroads are reaping the whirlwind. Everybody, the merchant, the farmer, the laboring man, the professional man is receiving a higher price for his product, everybody, except the railroad man. In these days of swollen prosperity—the railroads are having their trouble. The rate law, the anti-pass crusade, the bursted mergers, the two-cent passenger tariff are all working over time to prevent the railroads from sharing in the general "good time." For this condition the railroads are alone to blame. Humanity in the aggregate is a curious animal. He will sit quietly for years the victim of the most brazen luno game, but, he knows when he has enough. The railroads have been running things with a high hand for years. They have rebated industrious and ambitious men into bankruptcy. They have made favorite institutions enormously rich at the expense of the many. They have controlled legislatures, state officials and congressmen and used them to their own advantage and against the people. They have refused to contribute their share of taxes to the counties and states, and when protests would arise, they answered only with a sneer. But humanity finally ran amuck; it got upon its hind feet and howled and is still howling, and then the devil was to pay. And he is getting his. For years the railroads have been sowing the wind.

There is an element of danger in all this. The people need sanity today more than ever.

A Nebraska legislature is reported to have said the other day that "the railroads talk as though they were on the verge of bankruptcy, and I am in favor of bankrupting them." If this legislator is correctly quoted, he is an ass of "purest ray serene."

The railroads have been the greatest factor in the development of this continent.

The farmer can put his stock on the market in eight hours.

The merchant can eat supper in Falls City and breakfast in Chicago.

The laborer is worthy of his hire and the railroads are entitled to a fair dividend.

The railroads are reaping the whirlwind.

In the present state of public sentiment when the merest advocacy of justice to the railroads sets a lot of idle tongues to wagging, the people should exercise great care that they do not "sow the wind."

The two cent fare bill seems likely to be come a law in spite of the great efforts being made to defeat it. Such law will be of great benefit to the people at large, but it will have some unfortunate effects so far as railroad service is concerned. The railroads can well afford to carry passengers for such fare, but some trains make so small a profit that a two cent rate would necessitate their discontinuance. It is said that the Missouri Pacific will take off the Nebraska City Omaha train, the Lincoln Weeping Water train and the two Falls City stubs if the bill passes.

Now that we have cinched the Chautauqua why not organize a good ball team?

The Nebraska Senate unanimously passed the two-cent passenger fare. It is now up to the house.

HOW TO SUCCEED

The secret of success is not so much in knowing how to make money as in the ability to hang onto it. This is the formula: Lay aside a fixed portion of your income every week or month, as the case may be, and deposit it in this bank, no matter how small the amount. We pay interest on Time Deposits and Children's Accounts.

Falls City State Bank

Ducks are ripe and sports are busy this week plucking them.

We nominate the Journal for chairman of the bellraisers association.

Keep your ears to the grass roots, there is something doing in the division matter.

The drainage district is a funny business institution. Long before the district was organized the Tribune gave columns of its space to the promotion of the enterprise with never a thought of compensation, yet every line of these articles cost us money to set and print. The Tribune has never failed to contribute its portion to the success of the drainage project, even to refusing its columns last week to a very able and interesting argument in opposition. That our efforts are not appreciated is shown by the fact that not a penny of the hundreds of dollars spent in printing by the board of supervisors has found its way to this office. In fact none of the enterprise has even intimated that our efforts have been appreciated. If the district, composing, as it does, the land of many people, can afford to ignore the claims of this news paper, we can certainly accommodate our selves to the circumstances. But it is a funny business institution that plays favorites to its own disadvantage.

Forty-Third Anniversary.

The members of lodge No. 18, Knights of Pythias, of this city met at their castle hall Wednesday evening to celebrate their forty-third anniversary. On Wednesday evening the members, their families and their friends met in the elegant hall of the K. of P's, and were given a royal reception. The following well rendered program was a pleasing feature for all present:

District Court.

Judge Raper opened the February term of court Monday morning. There were no cases ready for trial before Thursday morning, consequently, after passing a few motions, the Judge discharged the jury until next Monday at which time the case of the State against Harry Simons will be taken up.

A Case of Destitution.

A family composed of the parents and six children, one but six weeks old, drifted into town in a covered wagon Tuesday. They were entirely without food, the children were bare-footed and the mother very sick. The attention of Humane Officer Hershey was called to them and through him John Hinton learned of the deplorable condition. A good supper was given them, the sick mother received proper medical attention, and the children given clothing and shoes. The family was enroute from a South Dakota homestead to Popoka, Kans., and when they left here they had plenty of wholesome food to last them through their journey.

Rev. Griffin Resigns.

The people of this community were sorry to hear that Rev. Griffin, of the Presbyterian church, resigned last Sunday and he will leave soon for Colorado Springs. Mr. Griffin has been pastor of the local Presbyterian church for several years and has endeared himself, not only to those in his pastorate, but to all the community. His success as a minister and citizen is unquestioned. The reason of his resignation is the illness of a son, who finds relief in the climate of Colorado.

Rev. Griffin and daughter, Aimee, will leave for their new home the last of March.

Checking Station.

The Burlington route commenced the twentieth of this month to check the mail weights for the past year. The weigh master will make this his headquarters in checking in and out. This will also be the checking station for both stub trains on the Mo. Pacific.

With all this work on hands, in addition to the usual amount of business transacted at our local office, the post office here is busy quarters these days. However we are glad that our postoffice management is such that they are able to efficiently cope with any situation that presents itself.

A Good Idea.

An Atchison man lately attended a funeral at Falls City and told on his return that the grave was lined, and that the dirt from the grave was loaded on the wagon, as the grave was being dug, and hauled out of sight. Graves are now lined everywhere, but taking the dirt away from the grave seems to be new, and people are favorably impressed with the idea. By the way, how people take an interest in everything connected with a funeral! Every man knows that some day he can't escape. Ed Howe.

FOR BEAUTY OF THE EYES

Wonderful What Happy Results Follow on a Protracted Walk in the Open Air.

It was a matter of surprise to Emerson that the following little piece of advice by De Quincey should not have attracted more attention: "The depth and subtlety of the eyes varies exceedingly with the state of the stomach, and if young ladies were aware of the magical transformation which can be wrought in the depth and sweetness of the eye, by a few weeks' exercise, I fancy we should see their habits on this point altered greatly for the better."

He then describes the effect of walking as he had noted it in the eyes of the poet Wordsworth. "I have," he says, "seen Wordsworth's eyes sometimes affected powerfully in this respect. His eyes are not under any circumstances bright, lustrous, or piercing, but after a long day's toil in walking, I have seen them assume an appearance the most solemn and spiritual that it is possible for the human eye to wear. The light which resides in them is at no time a superficial light, but, under favorable accidents, it is a light which seems to come from a depth below all depth; in fact, it is more entitled to be held 'the light that never was on land or sea'—a light radiating from some spiritual world, than any that can be named."—Good Health.

The Old Morning Glory.

The old-fashioned but ever popular morning glory still claims a prominent place as a quick-growing and beautiful vine for either foliage or flowers. Appearing every morning in all the richest shades of white, blue and red, often variegated and striped, the silky flowers add much to the beauty of the home and materially increase the charms of summer and autumn mornings. The morning glory has recently undergone some improvement at the hands of the professional florists, but it is an easily cultivated flower and should be a part of the floral display of every home.

Baked Rhubarb.

Rhubarb is almost a specific for curing the various small indigestions that accompany the early spring season. And it is so much nicer when baked than stewed, although I usually say "stewed" as a breakfast dish. But if peeled, cut into inch bits and plenty of sugar sifted over, it is set in a rather cool oven and allowed to cook it will be found so much less trouble and more delicate. Stir once in a while with a silver fork, and do not add any water. When cold it may be served in patty shell or tartlets. In a bowl that has been lined with macaroons or in pies.

MAKING A GOOD LAWN.

The Soil Must Be Moist and Contain a Considerable Percentage of Clay.

The department of agriculture has in press a number of farmers' bulletins which should appeal to the farmer. One of these, which will be Farmers' Bulletin, No. 248, is written by L. C. Corbett, the horticulturist in charge of the Arlington experiment station, on "The Lawn." Mr. Corbett contends that the lawn is a signal of the inner soul of the householder, showing an appreciation of beautiful home surroundings. A lawn is the accomplishment of every effort on the part of man to beautify the surroundings of his abiding place. The great increase of interest in suburban and rural life has caused a corresponding increase of interest in matters pertaining to the making and maintenance of lawns. Suburban railroads, the extension of electric lines into the country and the return of man to natural ways of living are all features contributing to the growing interest in matters pertaining to lawn making.

Mr. Corbett believes that a lawn should be beautiful and at the same time useful. Its beauty depends on the contour of the land, the color and texture of the grass, and the uniformity of the turf. The use of the lawn is to provide a suitable setting for architectural adornment and landscape painting.

The ideal soil for grasses best suited for lawn making is one which is moist and contains a considerable percentage of clay. A strong clayey loam or a sandy loam underlain with a clay soil is undoubtedly the nearest approach to an ideal soil for a lawn. Since the lawn is a prominent feature it is hardly possible to make the soil for the lawn too rich. Stable manure piled and rotted and which is as free as possible from detrimental weed seeds is undoubtedly the best material to use in producing the desired fertility of the soil. After a lawn has been established and it has gone into winter quarters, it is well to give the young grass a mulch of well decomposed stable manure which shall not be heavy enough to disfigure or mar the lawn, but should be so fine and well decomposed that it will be carried beneath the surface of the grass by the rains and snows of winter, leaving very little rough or unsightly matter to be raked off in the spring.—Prairie Farmer.

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against the use of Opium, Chloroform, or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in cough remedies. Dr. Shoop, it seems, has welcomed the Pure Food and Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against Opium and other narcotic poisons. He has thus made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by all dealers.
