

THE LIBRARY CONTEST

A number of business firms in Falls City, including The Tribune, have arranged for a voting contest to be entered into by Richardson county schools, churches, Sunday schools, societies, lodges, literary associations, or any other regularly organized bodies. The prizes to be an excellent library of 259 volumes, valued at $650.00. The library will be absolutely free of cost to the winners, and it doesn't cost the voters anything to vote. When you make a purchase for cash, or pay a bill, the firm with which you are transacting business will give you a ticket, filled out with the number of votes to which you are entitled. You write in the name of the organization for which you desire to vote, sign the ticket, and deposit it in the ballot box, according to a plan outlined below.

THE LIST OF BOOKS
The following publications constitute the library:
19 vol. consolidated Ency. Library, 4 morocco.
10 volumes World's best orations, 4 mo.
10 volumes World's best orations, 8 cloth.

10 volumes Historic Novels, cloth.
11 volumes Famous Novels, cloth.
1 volume Japan Novels, cloth.
9 volumes Prescott's Historic, cloth.
25 volumes Home Library, cloth.
107 volumes Copyright Fiction.
259, Total Volumes.
This beautiful library will be awarded at the close of the contest, to the institution receiving the largest number of votes.

The Tribune will, besides receiving the votes cut from the paper, issue one vote for every 10 cents paid on subscription at its office, either for arrears or for new subscription, or for job work or advertising.
The rules of the contest provide that each merchant shall carefully make a record of his votes on Tuesday night of each week, sending a duplicate of same over his signature to Tribune office before noon Wednesday, the merchant retaining his tickets with record, carefully filing them away to be delivered to committee on awards, appointed at the close of the contest.

How J. R. Rose To The Cabinet.

Is it possible the President of these United States, together with a few outlying, but expensive, possessions, has sunk so low as to use the diminutive in speaking, even thus casually, of the gallant young man from Cleveland, Ohio, who is striving so hard to keep us on the track? Is it possible he does not take the Honorable James Rudolph so seriously as the Honorable James Rudolph takes himself? It is, what mercy can any of us expect? Where do the common, or garden servants of the people get off?

Still, there must be a good deal in this young man, for he has progressed rapidly under the fostering care of the President. He came as Civil Service Commissioner. He was made Chief of the Bureau of Corporations when the Department of Commerce was organized. There he trailed the Beef Trust to its lair, and there he bounded the Standard Oil Company until it squealed for mercy but could not refrain, automatically, from raising the price of oil. There he tore through the insurance companies, and there he created that masterly compendium of laws relating to corporations in all States and all countries that so ponderously sets forth the statutes for regulating trusts (so called), but which universally fail to regulate.

Then, after they had pried Ethan Allen Hitchcock out of his place at the head of the Interior Department, he went to that mighty seat, to the head of the department that, in point of power and diversified interests, is the greatest in the Government, and there he is to stay until President Roosevelt retires.—Saturday Evening Post

Packed and Cinched for a Hard Trial.

He will be cautious, conservative, honest, but he will always have on display a head bowed down with weight of a responsibility that will put many bulges on that pallid brow. It seems a shame to take a fresh young man, to tear him from the delights of Cleveland, Ohio, where he was illuminating the law, and load him down like that. They have done it, though—have packed him and cinched the pack-ropes. He cannot escape. He must save his portion of the country.

And he knows it. He knows it, brethren, and, knowing, tells the gasping world. He has a mission, and men with missions must be serious.

There is no persiflage about a task that compels a man to be a pillar for the Nation. Cheerfulness goes out the window when such responsibility comes in the door. Probably there are greater things ahead of him. Still, it would be a real act of friendship for somebody to send him a motto for his private-office wall—a motto reading: "Cheer up, for cherries will soon be ripe."—Saturday Evening Post.

Improper action of the kidneys causes backache, lumbago, rheumatism. "Pineules" is a kidney remedy that will relieve these diseases. Pleasant to take and guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. "Relief in every dose." Sold by A. G. Wanner.

A young married couple came out of the house the other morning and were speeding down the street. He was dressed to kill and she, with a hairpin in her mouth was doing her best to pull on a pair of refractious gloves. "Why don't you dress in the house?" he growled continuing: "I would just as soon see a woman put on her stockings on the street as her gloves." "Most men would," she said, sweetly, and the silence was so intense that you could hear a gundrop.—Troy Chief.

A Man's Job Before Him.

Garfield is earnest. The President likes earnest persons. Garfield is ambitious. The President likes ambitious persons. Garfield is conscientious, and the President lays much stock by that. In short, Garfield is a clean young man, with a mind that grapples with great problems, no matter what the windup of the encounter may be. He came to Washington as the President's friend, and he has never let the President get away from that idea. He is as regular at the White House as a Secretary Loeb. Any time a great problem presents itself to him, and he gets a tail-hold on it, he rushes breathlessly up to tell the President about it. He darts in and out of the President's private office half a dozen times a day, or used to before he went into the Cabinet. His office as Commissioner of Corporations was on Fourteenth Street, only a short distance from the White House. Now he is up at Eighth and F, and it is likely he will not have time to do so much breathless rushing, unless he gets a new supply of breath. There may be a deep, dark Presidential reason for his transfer based on this; but why speculate on matters that concern us not?

Combined with Garfield's earnestness is a caution that he is obliged to pay excess baggage on every time he takes up a new line. He is so circum-spectly cautious that he puts a tag on every thought he has, enters it on the card index and then lays it away to try. He is no adventurer into the fields of high emprise. He is no pioneer to blaze his way through precedent out into the open fields of constructive originality. What has happened is good enough for him, and the idea of making anything happen, off his own bat, and on the impulse, is as foreign to his nature as going to Benning's and betting on a horse.

He has a man's job before him now. The Department of the Interior controls the public domain, the forests, the Indians the patents, the pensions, the Bureau of Education, the Geological Survey and the Reclamation Service. All the land grafters, all the Indian grafters, all the sharks who are trying to get the timber and the oil and the coal for nothing must come to him and pass under his eye. He has the last say, and, despite his seriousness, there is nobody in Washington who does not wish him well. He is following sturdy old Hitchcock, who fought the grafters for years. He has some bureaus that need overhauling, that need cleaning, and he says he intends both to overhaul and clean. The President has faith in him.—Saturday Evening Post.

Ponder Well.

There is a man in jail at Troy because he cannot furnish a $500 peace bond. Any of his neighbors would sign the peace bond but the man drinks, and they are afraid he will fill up some day, and forfeit the bond. The man is an excellent mechanic, when sober, and a good fellow, but whisky has him down. This man probably began drinking when young, because he thought it smart. Whisky drinking isn't smart; it is the biggest fool trick in the world. If boys can get rid of the fool notion that whisky drinking is smart, the temperance question will be solved.—Atchison Globe.

Does coffee disagree with you? Probably it does! Then try Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee. "Health Coffee" is a clever combination of parched cereals and nuts. Not a grain of real coffee, remember! Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee, yet it matches closely old Java and Mocha Coffee. If your stomach, heart or kidney's can't stand coffee drinking, try Health Coffee. It is wholesome, nourishing and satisfying. It's nice even for the youngest child. Sold by Fred E. Schmitt.

Worth While.

The trouble usually is, a man likes too many women and a woman likes one man too well.

Prosperity is a great teacher; adversity is a greater. Possession pampers the mind; privation trains and strengthens it.—Hazlitt.

It is the gold of love that makes the quartz of life worth while.—A. C. Manning.

Being "one of the boys" is another distinction that never helps a man much in securing a job.

It is not so much the being exempt from faults as the having overcome them, that is an advantage to us.—Swift.

We are all inclined to waste powder when the enemy is not in sight.

While a man is watching his enemies, his friends get away with him.

Conscience is the highest of all courts.—Victor Hugo.

Some people take a lot of chances in trying to drive into the social swim.

The worst of slaves is he whom passion rules.—Brooke.

In trying to take time by the forelock you occasionally find that it wears a wig.

Every truth that comes home to us is a moral call bidding us rise to a new position.—Goethe.

A good many people believe that to know a lot of contemptible gossip is to be wise.

Delays are dangerous, except in matrimony.

The largest house is too small if you are living in it with some one you dislike.

Are you wasting a lot of energy in hating enemies? It is a foolish thing to do. Quit it, in the name of common sense.

Compliments are like wine: It only takes a small dose to go to the head of some people, while others can stand a good deal.

If an old man is honest he will admit that the greatest contributors to his comfort in life were not the prettiest women he knew.

With some people, respect for the Law is closely related to fear of the consequences.

About half the pleasure of a vacation is looking forward to it; there is also some pleasure in returning to work after it is over.

A young man is a theory; an old man is a fact.

If there is so much enjoyment in flirting, why don't men flirt with their wives?

You probably expect more of a friend than you are willing to give.

Market Letter.

Kansas City Stock Yards, April 15, 1907. The cattle market ended last week in fine condition, with a net gain of 10 to 25 cents for the week, beef steers profiting the most. The run for the week was 41,000 head, several thousand greater than during any recent week, but in spite of this there was not sufficient cattle received to go around. Supply today is 11,000 head, market steady to strong, in the face of a big run and lower prices at Chicago. Packers were especially active today, as competition last week from butchers in local towns within the radius of 150 miles of this point was so keen last week that local killers failed to fill all their orders. No choice cattle have been here for more than a week, top last week $5.90, and highest price today $5.85. Bulk of the steers sell at $5.00 to $5.60, cows $2.90 to $4.60, heifers $3.60 to $5.25, feeders $4.60 to $5.35. Country grades are at the extreme high notch, and above any recent year at this time. Receipts of this class are moderate, shipments to the country last week 260 car loads, and the supply is likely to run small for some time, and prices hold up somewhere near the present level.

Hog run last week was 58,000, market fluctuating a good deal but finally closing the week almost steady with close of previous week. Run today is 8,000, market 5 to 7 1/2 lower, top $6.52 1/2 bulk of sales $6.45 to $6.50. Buyers are more particular as to quality than heretofore, and weight does not always cut the most figure, heavy hogs sometimes selling near the top. Dealers look for the run to continue around 60,000 per week for awhile and prices to keep close to the $6.50 mark. A year ago prices were 5 to 10 cents below present range.

Supply of sheep and lambs last week was 25,000 head, many thousand short of actual requirements of the trade. Packers are doing everything they can to increase receipts here, their most effective and convincing arguments being the payment of record prices for desirable stuff. Top lambs brought $8.35 today and bulk of lambs sold at $8.00 or better, ewes sold at $6.00 to $6.10, no wethers or yearlings included in the supply of 8,000 head. Clipped lambs bring close to $7.00. The market looks 10 to 15 cents above a week ago. Country buyers paid $7.95 for lambs today depending on the fleece for most of the profit.

Coughs and colds contracted at this season of the year should have immediate attention. Bees Laxative Cough Syrup, contains Honey and Tar and is unequalled for hoarseness, croup and coughs. Pleasant to take; mothers endorse it; children like to take it. Contains no opiates. Moves the bowels. Sold by A. G. Wanner.
