The best feed on earth for baby Chicks. If you never have used this feed, you should try it. I guarantee it and if you are not satisfied that it is the best feed you ever used, you can come back and get your money. You do not lose your chicks with bowel trouble, but you will see a big difference in them over the old way of feeding them. Try this feed at my expense and you will never use anything else. I have an agent in each of the surrounding towns where you can get this feed.

Season of 1907

Fritz Will make the coming season, beginning April 1st, as follows:

From Saturday evening until Monday evening at my farm three miles south of Barada, the balance of the time at my barn in Barada. Fritz is a coach horse and is so well known here that he needs no description.

Nick Will make the season at the same place on the same dates as Fritz. Nick is a five-year-old coal black Mammoth Jack, with white points, very well proportioned and has proven to be an excellent breeder and sure foal getter. You will make no mistake in breeding to Nick if you are looking for a rangy, well built mule.

Tom Will make the season at the same place and on the same date as above described. Tom is a Black Percheron Horse five years old, weighing 1700 pounds and is well proportioned, with plenty of bone. Come and see these animals before breeding elsewhere.

TERMS: $10.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck. When mares are sold, traded or leave the vicinity, service money becomes due and payable. Care will be taken to prevent accidents but will not be responsible should any occur.

A Little Lay Sermon.

"If thy servant do ill, tell him of it; but if thy servant do well tell him also of that."

In his bright comedy, "His House in Order," Arthur W. Pinero has Hilary Jesson, domestic pacifier, repeat a little parable concerning the bestowal of words of praise here and there to help those who are struggling against difficulties inherited and acquired. It is a pretty speech and carries the moral of the comedy. Yet Mr. Pinero only put his finger upon a universal human weakness which was crystallized in the foregoing Mohammedan admonition and preserved again in the Jewish instruction: "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven," and again in the New Testament is this sublime rule of life: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets."

What a helpful thing merited praise is to every human being. There can be no richer reward of loyalty and of self-sacrifice than the knowledge that some heart beats the warmer for our doing. It is a most unfortunate weakness of many natures that neglects the word of helpful encouragement when a despondent spirit craves the refreshment of a smile and the enheartenment of a commendation. Some lives are made cheerless because the one who should have said, "You have done well," neglects the obligation. Some temperaments are rendered sour and saturnine when a little leaven of comforting assurance would have redeemed them to beauty and happiness. The right word at the right time makes burdens lighter and illuminates the way. One day an engineer of a heavy train noticed that his poor fireman was almost overcome by the arduous labor of keeping up steam. Leaning over close to his fireman's ear, the engineer shouted: "It's mighty har'r'd work, it is, Moik, but look at the fair shmoke yer'r'r makin'!" That little touch of witty acknowledgement of Mike's heavy task made his shovel lighter and kept up steam.

Almost as bad as the one who saves his garlands for the graves of his friends instead of bestowing them upon the living is he who either couches his praise in words of palpably insincere flattery or through lack of tact and delicacy gives a compliment the sting of a lash. Once a traveler stopped at a farm house for dinner. The farmer and the stranger discussed various topics until the stranger asked about the master's family. Near them sat a girl of 15 years. Finally the farmer spoke of her. "She ain't very bright," observed the father, "and she can't learn nothin'. I always said it was because she favors her mother. Got the gol darndest temper and is awkward as a cow. She ain't worth her salt about the house, but—" and the father brightened—"she's got some good points. Come over here, Mamie, and show the gentleman yer beautiful white teeth." The defective Mamie obeyed, but with an evident lack of enthusiasm.

Those who are chary with their words of commendation often are merely thoughtless. They feel a certain amount of appreciation for the efforts of others, but they never think to express it. Such narrow selfishness has lost many an employer a valued employee and it always detracts from the quality of service rendered. Most natures are so constituted that devotion is stimulated by cheerful recognition. In every relation of life this principle holds good. Say the thing that cheers and encourages. Cover the thorns in others' pathways with the petals of hope and rally the faltering with forbearance and benevolence. This is the gospel of triumphant humanity.

Never buy loose coffee out of a bag, bin or tin. If it were good the roaster would not be ashamed to sell it in a package with his name on it.

The sales of Arbuckles' APIOMA exceed those of all other packaged coffee combined. It is the best coffee for you, and costs you less.

If the Tree Falls What Will Become of the Ivy?

We hear a great deal about the modern girl developing manliness, independence, and losing her femininity. A great many people are much alarmed because girls are not trained, as formerly, in womanly gentleness.

It is a beautiful figure of speech to describe the feminine character as the ivy which clings to the masculine oak for support, and in return covers and beautifies its hideous knots and scars.

But, if the oak falls, what becomes of the ivy?

There is too much of this ivy clinging and beautifying idea in training girls. They should be taught that it is just as necessary to be independent, to be self-supporting, as to be able to cling and beautify. In other words, they ought to be able to stand alone if the tree falls, and not go down with it. —Success

The News—No pure drug cough cure laws would be needed, if all cough cures were like Dr. Shoop's cough cure—and has been for 20 years. The National Law now requires that if any poisons enter into a cough mixture, it must be printed on the label or package. For this reason mothers and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's cough cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's tablets—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's cough cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and see. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding Dr. Shoop's cough cure. Simply refuse to accept any other. Sold by all dealers.

Public Sale of Shorthorns

Don't forget the great Shorthorn Cattle Sale to be held at Hiawatha, Kas., Thursday, April 25, 1907.

This offering consists of 30 head of Scotch and Scotch Topped females and 15 head of bulls including the Scotch herd bull, SCOTCHMAN 245103, by the $1,200 Imp. Royal Pride 149651.

These cattle are all in good healthy, thrifty condition and it is just the time of year that the breeder and farmer can take them home and turn them out in pasture and it won't cost much to keep them.

This will be a grand opportunity to get some useful cattle at your own price.

There will be choice selections from the herds of T. J. Sands, Robinson, Kas., James P. Lohr, Sabetha, Kas., C. M. Christensen, Sabetha, Kas., Neils Hansen, Willis, Kan., and Everett Hayes, Hiawatha, Kas.

For Catalogues address Everett Hayes, Hiawatha, Kas.

Notice To Colt Raisers.

I am now located at the Salem fair grounds with two good Stallions, one trotter and one pacer. You are cordially invited to call and see them and get acquainted. No trouble to show horses. While I am owner of these Stallions I will pay one hundred dollars to the first ten of their get taking standard records. To be divided, five colts from each stallion. Money divided $50.00 to breeder and $50.00 to owner, at time standard record is taken. Colts broken and track horses handled.

In case of my death, this contract shall be void.
