Keep in Tune.

Mental discord is fatal to quality in work. The destructive emotions—worry, anxiety, hatred, jealousy, anger, greed, selfishness, are all deadly enemies of efficiency. A man can no more do his best work when possessed by any of these emotions than a watch can keep good time when there is friction in the bearings of its delicate mechanism. In order to keep perfect time the watch must be exquisitely adjusted. Every wheel, every cog, every bearing, every jewel must be mechanically perfect, for a tiny defect, any trouble, any friction anywhere will make absolutely correct time impossible. The human machinery is infinitely more delicate than the mechanism of the finest chronometer and it needs regulating, needs to be put in perfect tune, adjusted to a nicety every morning before it starts on the day's run, just as a violin needs tuning before the concert begins. It is strange that men, who are very shrewd in other matters, should be so shortsighted, so ignorant, so utterly foolish in regard to the importance of keeping their marvelous, intricate and delicate mental machinery every day in tune; for harmony means efficiency, power. Many a business man drags himself wearily through a discordant day and finds himself completely exhausted at night, who would have accomplished a great deal more, with infinitely less effort, and have gone home at night in a much fresher condition if had taken time to put himself in tune before going to his office in the morning. The man who goes to work in the morning feeling out of sorts with everybody, in an antagonistic attitude of mind toward life, especially toward those with whom he has to deal, is in no condition to bring the maximum of his power to his task. A large percentage of his mental forces will not be available. When will we learn that it is not the number of hours we work but the efficiency of the work done that counts? Many of us would accomplish much more in two or three hours of vigorous, effective work, when the mind is fresh and resourceful, than we could accomplish in an entire day with the whole system out of tune. It is worst possible kind of economy to try to force good work out of a discordant instrument—tired nerves, a jaded or worried brain. Forcing the brain to work when it out of tune is a very shortsighted policy. It takes too much out of the human instrument. Multitudes commit suicide on many years of their lives by not keeping themselves in harmony.—Success.

A patient in a New York hospital was to have a limb amputated. It was found his heart action was too weak to permit the use of an anesthetic and cocaine was injected into the spinal column producing what is known in surgery as spinal analgesia of the lower extremities and deprives the patient of all feeling in his limbs. A patient may chat with the surgeon while the operation is on. What a powerful drug. Yet many people endanger their lives by its continued use because they have made themselves too weak to know the difference between pleasure and injury.
