J. W. CROOK.

The Chief American Attribute.

In these days of the muck rake, when magazines desiring an increase in circulation publish sensational articles on "Frenzied Finance," "The Treason of the Senate" and others of similar character. In these days of reformation when every little skate with doubtful character prates of dishonesty in public and private life in the hopes that the public will accept him as one of superior virtue, it is a pleasure to read articles like the following which is taken from the Kansas City Star:

After all, is not big-heartedness the fundamental, the primal, the conspicuous quality in the personality of the American people as a whole? Business acuteness, quickness of mind, activity and—yes, hardness—have been the attributes most often ascribed to the Americans by the foreign students of the national character and accepted by the people of the United States themselves. Are not these traits, in fact, merely traditional and superficial?

A week ago a man who had been a street railway employee, a tea and coffee peddler, the owner of a small restaurant, proved to be an escaped convict. Nine years before he had broken from prison when he still had eight months to serve. His offense had had been stealing groceries from a building also containing a post-office. In those nine years of precarious liberty he had married, established a home and gained the genuine regard of his neighbors and business associates. For a $60 reward he was pointed out as an escaped convict, taken from his family and sent back to prison.

The next day the people of the whole community became his neighbors and friends. Without a word from the man who had been sent back to prison, 60,000 of these Americans asked the president to give a square deal to a man who for nine years had lived a square life.

Every night last week a Kansas City theatre was crowded to the point of the police supervision. Men and women held places in line twenty hours to be permitted to pay $2 each for seats. The attendance exceeded that of any attraction in a theater in the city's history. There was no gorgeous scenery, not a hint of a ballet and only one little touch of music. A play as simple as a child's story—and as clean. The people—the same people whose hearts had been touched by the story of the escaped convict wept with the little old musician. And these are the same people who a few weeks before had refused to see a play based on the glorification of sin.

Speaking of golden weddings: Absalom Woolf a wealthy Mormon living near Logan, Utah, yesterday celebrated his golden wedding to two women. They are sisters, and have lived next door to each other since the wedding day fifty years ago. The Mormons must really be very smart men. They seem to know how to get along with a lot of wives better than the man with one wife gets along with that one.—Ex.

Murder or Suicide.

Just as we go to press we hear of a sensational suicide or murder between here and Table Rock, the wife of Ernest Frank, a young farmer, having been found yesterday morning by her husband lying dead on the floor of the kitchen when he returned from doing his work. The couple had been married less than a year and no motive for suicide is known. The authorities are investigating the case. The victim is quite young and her maiden name was Edith Allen. Both husband and wife are well known in and around Table Rock and the neighbors scout the suicide theory.—Humboldt Leader.

Later accounts of this sad affair, gives the coroner's jury verdict as that of suicide.

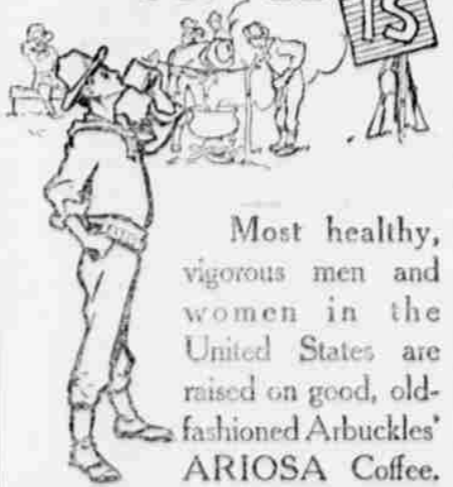

Coughs and colds contracted at this season of the year should have immediate attention. Bees Laxative Cough Syrup, contains Honey and Tar and is unequalled for hoarseness, croup and coughs. Pleasant to take; mothers endorse it; children like to take it. Contains no opiates. Moves the bowels. Sold by A. G. Wanner.

Veils in the very latest styles are shown at the Bon Ton Millinery store.

Eyeglasses on Stamps.

For the first time since the introduction of postage stamps as a mail carrying medium have eyeglasses figured as part of the ornamentation of the bit of gummed paper which is affixed to envelopes. There have been bearded faces, bald heads, Indians, powdered wigs and plenty of medallions illustrating mechanical progress; but it remained for the Grand Duke of Luxemburg to have his royal features, bedecked with the modern pince nez, imprinted upon the postage stamps of his domain. These stamps should have a particular interest for the collector, as they are the first and only ones of their kind.—New York Press.

More Government Land.

The government has definitely decided to proceed with the Huntley project of opening 30,000 acres of government land for settlement near Billings, Mont., by lottery or the drawing system. The exact date has not been fixed, but it will be about June 30 or July 1. This land is remarkable in that it will be the first government land ever thrown open for settlers where water for irrigation is immediately available.

L. W. Wakely, general passenger agent of the Burlington, says: "The land will all be within fifteen miles of the million dollar sugar beet factory at Billings. Six town sites will be established and land within two miles of the towns will be allotted in forty acre tracts, and more than two miles will be allotted in eighty acre tracts. The expense to the man drawing will be about $31 an acre and it will be worth from $80 to $100 in a year, or at once

"Should a man draw a forty or eighty acre tract he must pay one-tenth down, or $3 for his pro rata to the government for the expense of irrigation, $1 for the Indians and 60 cents of the expense of maintenance, which makes $4.60 for the first year for each acre."

Gone Forever.

Ten years ago a farmer put his initials on a dollar bill. The next day he went to the nearest town and spent it with a merchant. Before the year was out he got the dollar back. Four times in six years the dollar came back to him for produce and three times he heard of it in the pocket of his neighbors.

The last time he got it back four years ago. He sent it to a mail order house, he never has seen that dollar since, and never will. That dollar bill will never pay any more school or road tax for him, will never build or brighten any of the homes of the community. He sent it entirely out of the circle of usefulness to himself and his neighbors.

Patronize your local merchant who helps you to pay your taxes, support your schools and churches, and lends a helping hand in times of sickness and trouble.—Ex.

One of the most important investigations which the census bureau has ever undertaken will be an examination of criminal statistics, of the cost and methods of administering criminal justice. The practical value of such information is evident from the fact that according to conservative estimate the apprehension, trial and support of criminals cost this nation half a million dollars a year. As yet we have no scientific information about how this money is spent.

NEW GOODS!

A Wonderful Age.

The other evening I sat and listened to the voice of a Falls City man who has been dead some months. Sometime before his death he talked into a phonograph and the reproduction is startling in its similarity. A Falls City mother listens nearly every day to records made by her son who is now dead.

Suppose some one who died twenty years ago were to return to life and read the following, which appeared in Sunday's paper, what would he think?

"President Roosevelt will fire a rifle from the White house next Monday and hear the bullet hit a bull's eye at Charleston, S. C., 515 miles away. The occasion will be the beginning of the national schutzenfest, a competition of expert marksmen. The president will press a button that will send an electric current through the telegraph wires to Charleston and thus furnish the energy to pull the trigger of a rifle that will be aimed with such precision to insure the bullet speeding to the mark. A long distance telephone connection will have been made, and the president will have his ear at the receiver when he presses the button. In this way he will hear the bullet ring the bell."

Miss Alice Cleaver of Falls City was a guest of Mrs. R. L. Hoff the forepart of the week. Drainage Election.

A large number of property owners assembled at the court house last Saturday afternoon to participate in the election of a member of the board to fill the place made vacant by the expiration of Mr. Grinstead's term. The contest narrowed down to R. E. Grinstead and Dr. John Heskett of Salem. Mr. Grinstead was successful and will continue a member of the board. Now that the Miles case is over it is hoped that the hearing on protests will proceed more rapidly. All the lawyers being engaged in the case were unable to represent their clients and Mr. Joseph Miles being a member of the board has made it practically impossible to dispose of many cases before the drainage board.
