

Honest Paint
A GOOD THING

LOOK INTO IT

B. P. S. Paint is not a secret, patent or mysterious compound. It is simply an honest mixture of those ingredients that any good painter would employ if he wanted to make the best possible paint. But even though he used the highest grade of materials throughout his product would not be quite as good as B. P. S. Hand mixing cannot be quite as thorough as machine mixing and grinding. Perfect formula, thorough mixing and grinding, gives P. B. S. Paint greater covering capacity and more durability.

B. P. S. Mixed Paint is honest in quality, honest in measure and honest in price.

NOW AND THEN.

If you have never attended a high school field meet you don't know what it means to win. If your blood flows sluggishly and you feel that you are growing old just take a day off and go to one of these events. If the school yells and the noisiness of youth grates on your nerves and you are intolerant of their antics, it is because you are growing old and are so far from your own boyhood that you have forgotten. I saw the field meet last Saturday and I enjoyed it, every minute of it. I have seen horse races and ball games and prize fights and foot ball games, but I never had more fun, I never got more excited, I never became a stronger partisan and I never wore my voice out more than I did last Saturday.

Every event was bitterly contested. Every contestant strained to his supreme efforts to win. Falls City got off badly and lost out in the first three events, but with Yoder, Shock, Falloon, McDowell and Rodewald the game is never out until it is played out. Yoder won the mile race comparatively easy. He jumped in front at the start and was never headed. Falloon ran fourth in this event. The half mile race came on with both Yoder and Falloon pretty well exhausted and no very great hopes were entertained that either would win. Yet, it was necessary for Falls City to get both first and second to win the meet. There were twelve starters in the race, some of them fresh and eager. The Falls City boys were dressed in black, and it was by their clothing that we could distinguish who they were for a track suit is an excellent disguise. Because of Yoder's performance in the mile some of the schools banded together to see that he didn't get in the lead. Consequently Auburn agreed to pace Pawnee City. That is, the Auburn man was to take the lead and let the Pawnee track trail him until the end and remain comparatively fresh for a gruelling finish. Yoder however, went to the front as soon as the pistol cracked. He remained there for several hundred yards when the Auburn man shot by him with the Pawnee man trailing. At the quarter mile one man in a black suit was fourth (Yoder) and one was last (Falloon). The Falls City crowd in the grand stand sat down and talked about the windy weather. Suddenly one girl who was covered with old gold and black ribbons screamed, "Look at Yoder." And look we did. The white legs were moving faster and the man in black went to third place then to second and as they made the last turn moved into first place. I don't know the local yell and I don't know now what I said, but I did my best with the rest of the kids. All eyes were on Yoder who was fighting it out inch by inch with the Pawnee man, when the girl with the voice yelled again, "Look at Falloon." He had swung wide at the turn and was going by the field like they were hitched. One by one he passed them while the crowd yelled in delirium. One by one he forged ahead until he was past Pawnee and at Yoder's heels. Yoder thought Falloon was the Pawnee man and his efforts were redoubled. Falloon didn't know that the man from Pawnee was staggering like a drunken man and was to pitch forward on his face before reaching the tape, so he struggled on. Back from the crowd came one from Nebraska City and the three with faces twisted in agony, with their hearts throbbing to the point of breaking and the lungs pleading for air came to the finish. They were running on nerve, they had nothing else left. Their faces were as white as paper and the muscles were distorted. Yet the end was in front of them and they battled on. A foot from the tape Yoder hurdled and his breast struck the line an inch in front of Falloon, then both boys fell to the ground exhausted and neither of them heard the yells of their partisans nor saw the crowds of anxious friends who gathered about them, for they were all in. Back along the track lay the rest of the field for only three finished and Falls City had won.

Now a word about our people. The team is excellent and worked like beavers to win, but the rooters were a rank failure. All the other schools were organized and sat together. They knew the school yells and in unison they sang their songs, but not so with Falls City. They wandered about in scattered groups, there was no unison in their rooting and their yell was pitifully weak as compared with other schools. This is not as it should be, especially with such an occasion for rooting. Another thing is this; all the teams want the meets to be held in Falls City for it is the most central point, but this cannot be accomplished until we have a race track. Of course a race track could be made the source of other amusements, and we all know how little there is going on here, but there would be nothing that our people would so much enjoy as an Interscholastic track meet.

Another Old Soldiers.

Anderson L. Smith died at the home of his niece, Mrs. J. H. Coons, living southwest of Stella, Friday morning, May 3, 1907, aged 68 years. He was born in Illinois and during the civil war he enlisted in an Iowa regiment and served over three years. He was at one time a member of the McKinley Post in Stella.

Mr. Smith had not been well for three years, suffering from dropsy, but his last illness was not of long duration. He was taken sick in town, but nearly two weeks before his death went to the Coons home and was bedfast most of the time thereafter.

"Tay" Smith had been a familiar figure in Stella ever since the early days of the town. He was an excellent housekeeper, and had a great reputation for neatness and cleanliness. A year or so ago he entered the Soldiers' Home at Leavenworth, but after a few weeks' stay returned to Stella giving as his reason that the cooking at the Home wasn't fit to eat.

The funeral was preached by Rev. Taylor at the Baptist church in Stella Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial was in the Stella cemetery. The pall bearers were the following old soldiers: Captain Evans, G. E. Ailer, Charles Shafer, J. W. Curtis, Norman Smilie and Barney Mullen.

Civil Service Commissioner John A. McIlhenney has decided to make an extended tour of the south at an early date to look into the causes of the indisposition of southern young men and women to enter the service of the government. Mr. McIlhenney, himself a Louisianian and a democrat, has been struck with the disparity between the number of blacks and whites in the south who apply for the civil service examination required for appointment to subordinate positions in the various grades of federal government. The north and west show no backwardness of this kind, as a result of which those sections have more than their quota of positions in the government service.—Kansas City Times.

Goes to Falls City.

E. K. Hurst on Monday night was elected principal of the high school at Falls City at a salary of $90 per month. This is certainly a well merited honor and adds another name to the brilliant list of Nemaha county boys who have this year been elected to principalships throughout the state.

Prof. Hurst assumed charge of the Athens school in this city in the spring of 1904 teaching till its close in May. He was elected to the same position for the school year of 1904-5; re-elected and taught through 1905-6, attending the State Normal at Peru from which he graduates this month.

The Falls City school board is to be congratulated on securing the services of Mr. Hurst, and his hundreds of friends in this city and among the leading educators as well, will assure our southern neighbor that she has chosen wisely in his selection.—Nemaha County Herald.

Things We Do Not See.

A man who had recently been in Europe was entertaining his friends with stories about Paris, and in the course of his talk mentioned several places which were unknown to his listeners, although they had all frequently visited the French capital. "People go through the world with their eyes shut," was the story teller's comment. A quiet little man in the party then said that even the most observing people did not always see, and, addressing the traveler, said: "You have read the same paper daily for thirty years. Do you know how many columns it has on a page?" "No." "You look at your watch many times every day. Can you tell me, is the six on its face a Roman or an Arabic figure?" "Why, Roman, of course." And he looked, and found that there was no "six" on his watch dial. "All of which demonstrates," said the little man, "that the most observing do not always see."—Ex.

Buy The Park.

The city should submit the park proposition to the voters without delay. The mass convention at which many of the present officers were nominated unanimously passed a resolution requesting the city authorities to submit a bond issue for park purposes. This mandate expresses the wish of the great majority of our people and the will of the majority should not be defeated by a few knockers and men afraid of tax.
