Edward Smith has recently returned from Omaha. It will be remembered that several months ago he lost both his arms in a corn shredder at Preston and was taken to a hospital in Omaha for treatment. Only quite recently was he considered in condition to leave the hospital.

The change made in the National hotel office is certainly an improvement. The removal of the long desk on the east end not only gives more room but adds much to the appearance of the office. The arrangement now offers a good coat and grip room and places the cigar stand to much better advantage. Landlord Spence is never slow when it comes to the convenience and comfort of his patrons.

The chorus at the tabernacle gospel meetings is spoken of on all sides as being particularly fine. We doubt if there is a town in the state the size of Falls City with more or better musical talent and when united in one effort such as is being made at this time it is bound to receive approval. W. R. Oliver is certainly a fine director and it should be a pleasure to sing under his direction. Mrs. W. R. Oliver and Mr. Alvin Roper are the pianists, while Misses Cleaver, Sage and Wilson accompany with the violins and C. E. Smith, trombone.
