

TAKES WINKS

Money loaned to relatives and friends often takes wings and flies. As a general rule it is safer and better to place your money in the bank, even at a lower rate of interest.

TO CLEAN THE KETTLE.

Pumice or Manicure Stone is the Proper Agent to Employ.

Every housewife knows what a trouble it is to get burnt kettles clean; and cleanly, fastidious women realize how almost impossible it is to have clean food on account of the slovenly way most servants "wash" kettles. When food has burnt on the bottom of kettles it will not "wash" off, but it will soak up soapuds, and grease, etc., and that dried and again soaked out and into the next food cooked in the vessel is not exactly delightful in flavor and certainly is far from healthful. The housewife who really has the good of her family at heart should insist on sanitary dish washing as well as sanitary plumbing. How to get it? Procure a bit of pumice stone—manicure stone from a drug store is best, but a rough stone from a marble yard will do. Rub the inside of all kettles and frying pans thoroughly with it; then wash, and they will be perfectly clean, and it will take less time to make them so than usually is spent in scraping, which according to usual methods takes off about half, and leaves half of the undesirable hardened food to be cooked up in the next dish.

HINTS ON BOILING RICE.

Nutritious and Appetizing Dish Should Be Given Care.

A hint on boiling rice: Put a tablespoonful of butter in rice while cooking. Time to cook, one hour. Take one teacup unbroken rice, pick out all broken grains and wash in cold water, pouring off the water several times to get rid of loose starch: Put the rice into the upper part of a granite double boiler, measure over it three cups cold water and one level teaspoon salt. Set the boiler with rice and cold water directly over the hottest part of the range, having a good fire, so that it may boil quickly, stirring the rice every few minutes to keep it from sticking to the bottom and burning. Let the rice boil rapidly for 15 or 20 minutes or until the water is about to be absorbed, then stir in one tablespoonful rounding of good butter and set the pot in lower half of double boiler, with enough boiling water in it so it will not spatter on the range. Set where the water will keep boiling for another 20 minutes. The rice will be white, puffy and each grain separate. It will taste good, for all the nutriment is in it, and everybody will ask for more.

To Clean Choice China.

Have made to order at any broom-maker's a set of brooms about ten inches in length and five inches in circumference. These brooms should be made just like a whisk broom, but perfectly round. Hot water can be used, as with a little care in handling dishes it is not necessary to put the hands in the water—the greatest recommendation for the use of the brooms. They will slip inside cups, glasses and pitchers; will rub off stains, and sticky substances easily, and are particularly fine for greasy pans and pots. Keep three brooms in use; one for glasses, one for dishes and silver, and one for kettles and frying pans, promoting them from one class to another as they become worn. The old brooms are excellent for cleaning sinks, closets, and garbage pails. After using, pour boiling water over them, shake, and hang up to dry. They will keep sweet and clean longer than any dish mop.

Try This Meat Pie.

A new meat pie appeared on a certain dinner table the other night which staggered even the man of the house, who is past authority on epicurean dishes. As a rule, in that household the meat pie is made of left overs from former meals, but this one contained an entirely unknown filling. Not until a piece of green meat was discovered did the truth begin to dawn. Some weeks before, in a raid on a wholesale grocery of which he has the entree, he discovered some canned Mexican turtle meat, had several tins sent home and speedily forgot them. But his wife, in looking over the assortment, accumulated from similar trips, discovered them, and the pie was the result of her quandary as to the use to put them to. Turtle never served a tastier purpose, according to the guests at the table that night.

Meat Pie with Tomatoes.

Use about a pound of meat, left from a roast, or fresh meat (beef is best); cut in chunks and boil until tender; season with salt and pepper. Boil meat down until enough broth is left to moisten meat well; thicken with flour as for stew. One-half hour before meat is done put in a good-sized onion, sliced. Cook one-half can of tomatoes seasoned with salt, butter, and a pinch of red pepper. Put meat in two quart basin, then the tomatoes. Have ready a rich biscuit crust made of one and one-half small coffee cups of flour, one heaping teaspoon baking powder mixed well with flour, one heaping tablespoon of shortening and a good pinch of salt. Moisten with milk into a soft dough as for biscuits. Place crust on top of mixture. Prick crust several times with a fork to let steam out while baking.

Dress for Little Girl.

You can make over your old lace embroidery shirt waists for your little girl even if they are open in front. Take your pattern and lay on the waist and cut. You will be surprised to see how nicely it will make up. They will look nice worn with jumper skirts.

Two Stories of Dundy.

Bailey P. Waggoner, the general attorney for the Missouri Pacific, who was here last week attending federal court, told a new reminiscence of Judge Dundy, former judge of that court. The judge went down to appear in a criminal case in which an old negro was accused of crime. The judge had known the negro in past years, and appeared to testify as to his previous good character. The presiding judge did not know Dundy, and he was inclined to be curt.

While giving his testimony Judge Dundy turned toward the court and was several times admonished by the latter to face the jury so that they might hear. Finally the judge broke out and said to the witness:

"See here, sir, you are old enough to have sense enough to know that the testimony you are giving is for the benefit of the jury and not for the court. Face them, please."

On cross-examination the state's attorney asked:

"What is your business?"

"I am judge of the court, federal district of Nebraska."

"The presiding judge nearly tumbled off the bench," said Mr. Waggoner, in relating the story. "and he was profuse in his apologies. Some months later I was in the federal court at Lincoln when a negro whom I had known in Atchison came up for sentence before Judge Dundy for selling liquor to Indians. I arose and said:

"May it please the court: Some time since your honor did a poor negro accused in our courts in Kansas of crime the favor to come down and testify to his good character. I hope you will not take it amiss if I return the compliment by saying to you that I know this man to be a harmless and inoffensive colored fellow, not given to crime nor moved by criminal impulses. I hope that you may see fit to deal lightly with him."

"The judge turned to the negro and inquired:

"Do you know this man Waggoner?"

Yes, sah, said the prisoner. "What kind of a man is he?"

"Well, I think he's a pretty nice sort of a man, sah."

"Good citizen; ordinarily well behaved?" asked court.

"Yes, sah, said the embarrassed culprit.

"Well, said Judge Dundy, you fellows seem to constitute a pretty closely organized mutual admiration society; so I will make the fine a dollar and costs."

"And I noticed," said Mr. Waggoner. "that all the other fellows got $25. and costs."—State Journal.

Sunday Rains General.

Reports came in from the north and west of generally heavy rains. At Table Rock eleven inches of rain fell in two hours. At Humboldt about seven and a half. At Dawson the rain was accompanied by severe wind which did great damage, about six inches of rain fell there. It is reported that a Mr. Wood was drowned in the storm near Table Rock. At Salem the Nemaha is on the boom, the bottoms being under water. Losses of stock and crops are reported from the country to the north and west of us and it is thought from the debris washed down stream that the storm was heavier to the northwest. The heavy rains to the Northwest Saturday had swelled the streams and brought them out in some low places and the torrent of Sunday evening carried everything before it.

A Great Sunday.

Sunday was a great day at local churches. Many of those who were converted during the recent revival were present at the church of their choice and enrolled themselves as members. It is estimated that nearly two hundred became identified with the several churches. It has been many years since Falls City has experienced such a moral regeneration and Rev. Oliver accomplished what has been considered the impossible. The Tribune congratulates not only the churches but those who have begun a new leaf in the chapter of life.

Rain and Flood Damages Stock.

At W. S. Fast's farm north of town considerable damage was done by the rain Sunday night which caused the floods. The fences were washed away and a good deal of the stock is missing at this time and it is known to a certainty that some of it was drowned, but just how much is not known. The doctor is in hopes of finding what is missing when the water subsides, having heard of a few head that has been located on higher ground.
