Part of His Brain Gone.

Can a human being actually lose a part of his brain substance without suffering any serious loss of that mysterious thing called "the mind?"

This question has had much interest for the scientific workers of the last quarter century. It is given fresh interest by the case of Cecil Mullins, an 11-year-old boy, who is now a patient at the St. Louis city hospital.

Dr. J. W. Shankland performed an operation immediately. The case was considered almost hopeless. But the boy lived and is declared by Dr. Shankland to be practically out of danger.

In the operation a part of the boy's brain was removed. The part removed is in that section usually identified with the power of speech. Just what effect will be the result of Cecil's operation is yet uncertain.

Negro paid his Taxes in Advance.

Among the patriotic citizens who have been coming forward with payment of taxes in advance the one who so far has attracted the most attention has been John Brown, who was "a free nigger" back in the days of early Memphis.

John Brown is nearly 90 years of age, but is still as spry as many a score or more of years younger. He was owned by a man by the same name, and in 1844 had earned enough money working at odd jobs not only to purchase his freedom, but to buy a little home on Hernando street.

John continued to work at his trade as a barber, taking pleasure in the thought that Andrew Jackson was often shaved by him, as well as the first John Overton, with other notable men down to the present mayor of Memphis, over whose faces the old negro wielded a razor when the chief executive came to Memphis to practice law.

John now lives in his own home at 700 North Fourth street, in Chelsea, but has accumulated enough to keep from work. He came forward Wednesday with his advance taxes, and proudly came up to the office of Mayor Malone to show him a receipt for $15.75.

For the Old and Destitute.

For the old and destitute, comfort and home should be provided; which provision, when misfortune had been by the working of such a system sifted from guilt, would be honorable instead of disgraceful to the receiver.

Market Letter.

Kansas City Stock Yards, Aug. 5, 1907. A large reduction in cattle receipts last week enabled salesmen to secure advances on all kinds. The cow market was uneven, but closed with a small advance, and the general market gained 10 to 25 cents. The supply today is 15,000 head, considerable below expectations, and the outlook for the market is good this week.

The hog market has been most disappointing the last several days, including today. Packers appear indifferent, and shippers have been the main support of the market. Run is 6,000 today, market weak to 5 lower, packers top $6.17 1/2.

Sheep receipts are small, only 14,000 last week, and 2500 here today. The market advanced late last week, especially on lambs and is stronger today. Natives comprise about all the supply, although occasional shipments of range sheep or lambs arrive.

"Holy smoke!" writes the editor of the Oakland (Ill.) Ledger, "what would happen if an editor would publish everything he knows, to say nothing of what he hears? Why, it would be so rich and racy that the pages would stick together."

Food for Standpatters.

The report of the United States Steel corporation, the head of the Steel trust, for the quarter ending with June 30, shows net earnings at the rate of 182 millions per year. Advocates of the protective tariff declare that protection is necessary in order that industries may be enabled to make good profits and yet pay high prices for labor.

The government puts a tariff of $7 per ton on steel rails. The Steel trust sells steel rails to American consumers for $28 per ton and for a long time the foreign price—with marine freight paid—has been $22 per ton.

Remember, too, that this tariff is not a tax on the railroads or other users of structural steel and iron. These users pay it originally, but the people pay the whole tariff tax in the long run in railroad fares, freight rates, rentals of offices in buildings having steel construction, in buying machinery implements, cooking utensils, cutlery, tools, and all other things of which steel and iron are factors.

As often happens in a great crowd of men when people press against each other, no one falls without drawing another after him, and the foremost are the cause of the ruin of those that follow. So it is in common life there is no man that erreteth to himself but is the cause and author of other men's error.

Two-Cent Virginia Fares.

Shortly before midnight the state officials at the state capital of Virginia received a communication from the attorneys of the Virginia railroads to the effect that the two cent rate would be put into effect on or before October 1, with the condition that the matter should be taken to the courts for a final decision as to its legality.

Attorneys for the Southern, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Atlantic Coast Line & Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, were in conference all day formulating answers to the letter sent by Governor Swanson on behalf of the corporation commission and the state, but it was not until late tonight that the agreement was finally signed. Had not the railways accepted the conditions offered by the state an extra session of the general assembly probably would have been called. The statements given out by the railroads are that they have determined to live in peace with the people and to end the conflict.

Presbyterian General Assembly.

The one hundred and nineteenth general assembly of the Presbyterian church was held at Columbus, Ohio, in May, and was notable as that which consummated the "union and reunion" with the Cumberland Presbyterian church. The aim set before the united body was "the removal of the organized, legalized and therefore popularized iniquities that hinder the salvation of souls." A minority of the Cumberland Presbyterians are proposing to form a separate organization. The Reformed Presbyterians have decided in their general synod not to accede to proposals for reunion, although individual churches and ministers have united with this larger body. Other notable action by the Presbyterian general assembly was a decided endorsement of the Anti-Saloon League and its work as "sane, safe and effective," and a pledge of full cooperation with it. For the first time the assembly signified its approval of the use of the revised version of the Bible in Sunday schools. The marriage of divorced persons by ministers of the Presbyterian church, except in the case of an innocent party divorced on scriptural grounds, was forbidden. The work done by this church in sympathy with labor was emphasized by a mass meeting on Sunday, May 19, when two thousand members of labor unions marched in a body, with a brass band, to Memorial hall and joined with an audience of equal size in listening to an address on the common interests of the church and labor.
