

A RECIPE FOR HAPPINESS

By SUSAN B. ROBBINS

(Copyright.)

There was a heavy frown on Matilda's face and her stern silence was ominous. Her brother and his two children felt her mood and ate breakfast quietly without speaking. All the sunshine and cheer of out-of-doors were shadowed by the clouds within.

"I Don't Like Them."

with the headaches that had begun to trouble her, and the hot weather coming on, the outlook had been depressing. So it was with a feeling of relief that she gave up her position and went to keep house for her brother and his children.

wish he could die? He wouldn't have talked about it in his sleep if he had not thought about it a good deal when he was awake.

When Henry came to dinner she looked at him with different eyes. She was surprised and a little frightened to see how ill he looked. He never was very strong, she knew, but he looked worse than usual, and there was such an expression of hopelessness on his face that her heart ached.

Matilda stayed much longer than she had intended, and her mind was so full of Mrs. Preston that she talked about her all through supper time.

"I told you you'd enjoy calling there," said Henry, triumphantly. Suddenly Matilda bethought herself of what she must do to make her home pleasant.

Matilda was still subject to occasional attacks of the blue devils; but she found that a brisk walk in the open air, or a chat with Mrs. Preston, would drive them away, and that when she returned, the trouble which had seemed so gigantic would be reduced to its proper size.

HINT FOR THE COOK

PROPER PREPARATION OF WINTER VEGETABLES.

Judicious Selection of Days on Which to Serve Them Makes for Economy and Also Reduces Labor.

If the dinner preparations and other household duties are properly organized or planned the common winter vegetables can be cooked as inexpensively as canned goods and are far more palatable.

Fresh Carrots and Canned Peas.—Select eight carrots of uniform small size, scrape, pare and wash. Slice them about a quarter of an inch thick. Lay them in a saucepan with two sprays of parsley, two small onions, half teaspoon of salt, two saltspoons of white pepper, a teaspoon of sugar, half pint of hot water, or better still, of white broth, with teaspoonful of butter. Simmer for five minutes, then set the pan in a moderate oven for over 25 minutes.

Fried Parsnips.—Boil six medium-sized parsnips at any time when you are using the fire for other purposes. While still warm peel carefully and lay them aside to cool. When ready to cook the second time cut them in slices, either across or lengthwise, about a third of an inch thick.

White Beans Francisc.—Soak one pint of small white beans overnight. Two hours before dinner drain them and put them over a fire in two quarts of cold water. For seasoning add a tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoon of white pepper, two small onions cut in half, three small branches of parsley and a sprig of bayleaf tied together.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Cleanse, soak and boil a large, firm head of cabbage until tender, then scrape out the inside, leaving enough for a solid wall. With the scrapings mix a cup of fine bread crumbs, a little salt, pepper and celery seed and one small onion (if liked) chopped fine. Beat this up with a tablespoon of warmed butter and three eggs.

For "Unpremeditated" Suppers. Chop five ounces of soft cheese into small bits and put it into a small saucepan with one egg, a level tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of cayenne, a level teaspoonful of mustard and five tablespoonfuls of milk.

A Luncheon Dish. Chop a quarter of a pound of good rich cheese into small bits and rub it smooth with two tablespoonfuls of butter, the slightly beaten yolks of two eggs and a tablespoonful of made mustard.

Pumpkin Cakes. Rub two cups of boiled pumpkin through a colander and add to it three well-beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of cream, a grating of nutmeg and salt to taste.

A Frosting Secret. This is an easy and dainty way to make frosting for cake: Purchase a quarter of a pound of large chocolate creams at the confectioners.
