 One morning the first of the week, little Anna Frederic and Gertie McCumber were playing housekeeping, and built a fire in a toy stove. By some means Anna's clothing caught fire from it, and but for the fact that Mr. McCumber was near, would probably have burned to death. As it was she escaped injury, but has badly singed hair. Mr. McCumber fought the fire with bare hands and received some severe burns.
 Tuesday, April 7, being Mrs. Ellen Dyke's 59th birthday, friends and relatives planned a surprise in her behalf. About 10:30 a. m., as she was sitting in quietude at her work she heard a slight noise, and upon stepping to the door found herself surrounded by a merry crowd, each one with a basket, bucket or some other queer looking parcel. To say the surprise was complete would be putting it mildly in the way of expressing it. However, she stood her ground bravely, but the raiders were too many and soon took entire possession of the house, and proceeded to make themselves very much at home. The contents of the baskets were by and by laid on the table, and all gathered around to do justice to the fare. Those present were Mrs. Goin, Mrs. Bowker, Mrs. Larrabee and Mrs. Parsons of Rulo; Mrs. A. D. Larrabee,

Craig, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser and two children; Grandma Shelly, Mrs. John Morris and Miss Ollie Bain, Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Myers, Rev. and Mrs. John Nanninga and two children. The two ministers were very shy at first, but the "magic chicken" soon dispelled that and all went on merrily. Mrs. Dykes was the recipient of many beautiful presents, and when her guests departed in the late afternoon, wishing her many happy returns, she had fully recovered from her surprise and invited them to "come again some time."
