

An Osteopathic Prescription

I want to help you answer Query No. 131, "A Preacher's Wife." She asks: "Will Osteopathy help?"

I will say, yes, for in 99 per cent. of all cases there is bone or spinal derangement, and there is in her case. I will venture that there is a sensitive area from the base of her brain to the tips of the coccyx, contracted muscles, deranged tissue, interfering with nerve and blood supply to the whole body, interfering with normal function. The brain cannot act, it cannot get the right kind of messages from the various nerve centers along the spine and viscera. The nerve impulse for years in that case has been over-stimulated, which has produced inhibition of the nerve force (stopped normal action). For example, take a horse pulling a load up hill. He has all he can draw. The driver is anxious to get up faster, so he applies the whip (stimulation). Finally the horse gives out (inhibition), which stops normal action. This patient should consult an osteopath, and after a thorough examination he might say she needed rest, or a change of environment, and if neither is possible she would be instructed how to live even where she was. Then if she would take treatment, the osteopath would relax all those muscles along the spine, thereby freeing the tension on the nerves to the spinal cord and through the brain giving relief at once. The bowels will be attended to, the stomach, and in fact nearly everything will need attention in a case of this kind, and can be reached through the innervation of the spinal area and with good osteopathic treatment following the instruction that will be given she will improve and in time get well, as hundreds have done in similar conditions. I will make this assertion: Ninety-nine per cent. of all derangements of the body will make themselves manifest on some part of the spinal area, either primarily or secondarily. If the former it is the cause of, and if the latter, the effect of the disease. The osteopathic treatment will relax the muscles, rearrange disarranged tissues and correct any bony subluxations that may be found.

I would like to hear from this patient eight months after she begins and I could prognose the answer.—F. M. GODFREY, Holton, Kansas, in the Columbus Medical Journal.

Platt-Wood Scandal.

Although the country at large has not been wrought up to any appreciable pitch of excitement over the troubles of Senator Platt and Mae Wood, the somewhat sudden and decidedly sensational denouement of the trial, which landed the woman in jail for perjury and forgery, is not without interest.

In spite of his own confession that "he was an old fool," and the quiescent concurrence of the general public in that sentiment, there is something rather pathetic in the spectacle of this feeble old war horse of New York politics being hounded to his grave by a woman seeking his money. Mae Wood may or may not be a mere adventuress, but she seems to have been perfectly willing to make an exposure of herself in a public trial that would have been humiliating to any woman of modesty and self-respect.

The Wood woman's claims to recognition as a wife are not convincing, but nevertheless Senator Platt placed himself in a most embarrassing position. This veteran master of men, this skilled wizard of the game of politics who has been "boss" in New York for several decades might have lived out the declining days of his life in repose if not in happiness and honor, had he not tried to match his wits against those of a woman. There he demonstrated his weakness, and perhaps he is reaping the logical reward.

The woman in this sensational case is not a young and impressive girl. In fact, there are those who consider her an exceedingly shrewd and scheming woman of the world. In the present case she had much to gain financially and little to lose in any other way. If there is any sympathy for the doting old gallant because of his pathetic state of mind and body, there is very little for the woman. Perhaps the whole case may be truthfully summed up in the words of Justice O'Gorman when in committing Mae Wood to jail, he said: "The court cannot believe from the evidence that there was ever a marriage. On the merits of the case every issue has resulted in the court's impression that the plaintiff has committed willful perjury in this case," and that it is "a most wicked design to support a false and fictitious claim by forgery and perjury."—K. C. Journal.

Chronic Constipation Cured.

One who suffers from chronic constipation is in danger of many serious ailments. Foley's Orino Laxative cures chronic constipation as it aids digestion and stimulates the liver and bowels, restoring the natural action of these organs. Commence taking it today and you will feel better at once. Foley's Orino Laxative does not nauseate or gripe and is pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. Kerr's Pharmacy.

Social Affairs.

Mrs. D. M. Meyers entertained the following ladies last Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Bushnell of Milledgeville, Ill., Mrs. L. N. Reid, Mrs. A. R. Williams, Mrs. Bushnell, Mrs. D. M. Saylor, Mrs. S. C. Flickinger, Mrs. C. V. Flickinger, Mrs. C. R. Gaston, Mrs. Mahlon Lichty and Mrs. N. Musselman of Falls City.

The ladies were required to give a description of their wedding, giving date, age, when married, hour, manner of dress, number of guests and etc. This proved very interesting, especially the description of the dresses. A two course luncheon was served. The occasion was no exception to the pleasure Mrs. Meyers always gives her guests when she entertains.—Morrill News.

"Ned Stoughton of Falls City is connected with the Parker shows in town this week. Which reminds me of an incident. Twenty-seven years ago, Frank Everest, a friend of mine, wrote a play, and he asked me to assist him in putting it on the road for a short trip. So I became a show manager for three days; we visited Falls City, Humboldt and Tecumseh. We had a band and orchestra. Corum Young led the band, and Prof. Plato the orchestra. Dr. Evans, Will Haskell, Frank Todd, and a dozen others were among the actors. It was a frolic from start to finish; for all those taking part, except the manager, who had a hard time and lost money. But people still think I made a fortune by the venture; people still take me to one side, and ask, 'Now, down on the dead, to go no further, how much did you make with Frank Everest's play? And members of my company are still grumbling. I was talking about the trip to-day to Corum Young and he complained because Prof. Plato, although he pretended to play cornet in the band, really didn't play, leaving all the hard work to Mr. Young. And Alois Philipp to-day complained because of Prof. Plato's son, who played in the orchestra, and wanted Alois' part. We made a street parade at Falls City, where I formerly lived, and where it was supposed I had acquaintances who would patronize the show. I walked at the head of the parade, as managers do in real minstrel parades, and Ned Stoughton, then a boy, sat on the sidewalk watching me. I didn't feel very comfortable anyway, but as I went by the boy, I heard him say, 'L-o-o-k a-t o-l-d E-d, H-o-w-e!' What he had in his mind was, 'He thinks he is smart, but he is not.' After the show at Falls City, members of the company adjourned to a bar room, and had a time. Ed. Minnick, a well known Falls City fighter, came in and wanted to whip my actors, they were so bum, and I had considerable difficulty in coaxing him out of the notion. All the Atchison traveling men along the line traveled with the company, and by the time we reached Tecumseh, there were fifty men in the street parade. Jule Seitz borrowed an alto horn and played in the band. It was at Tecumseh, also, where Alois Philipp threatened to quit and return home, because there was no fire in his room at the hotel. I will never forget my three days as manager of a show; it was an experience I do not care to repeat."—E. W. H. in Atchison Globe.

Road Drag Prizes.

The fund to be used in paying the road drag prizes has been added to until it now amounts to over $400. The six mail carriers on the routes out of Tarkio are expected to circulate the subscription paper until the sum totals $600; a hundred dollars to the route. The general committee appointed to have supervision over the contest and appoint judges on the several routes, named the judges and took them over the routes the fore part of this week. Names of the judges will be published next week.

The above from the Tarkio Herald shows how they solve the road drag proposition over in Missouri which might be worked to advantage in these parts. It is worth considering.

It is a pity to see a person neglect indications of kidney or bladder trouble that may result in bright's disease when Foley's Kidney Remedy will correct irregularities and strengthen these organs, take Foley's Kidney Remedy at the first sign of danger. Kerr's Pharmacy.

Proud of Our Walks.

Talk about good walks. How many of our people are aware of the fact that there is a continuous string of cement or brick walks the entire length of Stone street from the south end to the High school, a distance of about nineteen blocks. This is true. In fact there are very few board walks to be found in the city and a majority of those have been condemned and will be replaced by cement ones as soon as possible. This is a record to be proud of.

No Believer in Luck.

"I am not a bit superstitious" remarked Ward Knight yesterday. "The black cats and ghosts and cross roads and moon over your right shoulder and spilling the salt and all of that tommy rot never appealed to me at all. And luck is another thing I do not believe in. A man gets what he gets and that is all there is to it. He might be unfortunate and he might be the opposite but luck does not enter into the question at all. Now isn't it queer that after all my antagonism in this respect that I should always "spit on the bait" when I am fishing? And yet if this was not done and my catch should be small I would immediately blame my not expectorating on the bait as the cause. Queer, isn't it.
