

Alcohol to Drive Out Coal.

On the next occasion when an American fleet steams around the world, it will, in all likelihood, renew its fuel supply at successive ports by the simple process of filling its tanks with alcohol. This is the prediction made by Rudolph F. Bierce in the Technical World Magazine. Mr. Bierce states that "already the British and German governments are building experimental alcohol engines for warships, and a strong belief is entertained that before long this fluid fuel will take the place of coal for use by the navies of the world."

He points out that one great advantage of alcohol for this purpose is that it will make possible the establishment at convenient points all over the world of supply stations where war vessels or merchant steamers can stop and load up with the fuel. The same thing, he admits, might be done with petroleum, but he calls attention to the fact that mineral oils are obtainable only in some regions and in temperate latitudes, nearly all of the output being furnished by the United States and Russia, and that it would cost a good deal of money to ship them to distant parts of the globe and to keep great quantities of them on tap, so to speak, at all the principal seaports. On the other hand, alcohol can be made on the spot, that is to say, wherever it may be wanted for fuel purposes. Furthermore, it can be manufactured most cheaply in the tropics, where coal and petroleum are lacking. It will undoubtedly be produced in immense quantities in hot latitudes from the cassava—a plant with big tuberous roots, which yields several times as much starch as the common potato. There are, however, many other materials, such as molasses and sugar cane stalks, which are available in warm countries for alcohol making.

Mr. Bierce calls attention to a most important contribution toward a solution of the problem in question that has been made by certain tests conducted with a slightly modified gasoline engine, under the direction of the technologic branch of the United States geological survey—alcohol being used instead of gasoline. These tests have proved that in an engine of the kind thus modified alcohol may be so utilized as to give it as high a fuel efficiency as gasoline. Hitherto it has been recognized as possessing only about one-half of the efficiency of gasoline.

The possibilities of the usefulness of alcohol seem well-nigh unlimited, and Mr. Bierce suggests that, so far as its maritime employment is concerned, one does not need to look very far ahead to see at every seaport a supply station, with gigantic tanks containing alcohol for sale to ships. "When provision of this kind is made," he says, "all of the arduous labor of coaling will be done away with and vessels needing a fresh supply of fuel will have only to steam into a harbor, connect with a tank through the medium of a pipe and fill up according to their needs." Perhaps, still, why not? This is the age of progress.

Lock-jaw From Powder Burns.

Forty-seven children died of lock-jaw from powder burns received last Fourth. If a person be burned with powder a physician should be seen at once, if this is not possible the wound should be thoroughly and vigorously cleansed without delay. Every trace of dirt and powder should be removed as it is in these that the dread tetanus germ lurks. This precaution would save many lives next Saturday if it were observed.

Married at Tecumseh.

Mr. Geo. W. Miller and Miss Hazel A. Earlewine well known young people of this city were married Wednesday evening June 24. Their friends were taken completely by surprise, the affair being kept perfectly quiet. At nine o'clock that evening, the young couple proceeded to the home of County Judge James Livingston where the ceremony was performed by that gentleman. The groom is the son of Alderman G. W. Miller and wife and was born and reared in this city. He is a splendid young man. For the past few years he has been serving an apprenticeship in a bakery here, and having mastered the trade he has secured employment in Falls City. The bride is the daughter of John Earlewine and wife and she too was born and reared in Tecumseh. Possessed of an amiable disposition and pleasant manners, sound judgment and many accomplishments she will be a most desirable helpmeet.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller will go to Falls City today where, if Mr. Millers work proves satisfactory they will no doubt establish their future home. The best wishes of their many friends will go with them, and this includes the Chieftain.—Tecumseh Chieftain.

Rulers Aid Seamen.

New York, June 30.—To decorate the new institute for sailors which is just being completed in this city, portraits personally signed and sent by the rulers of England, Germany, Italy and Denmark have today been received by the American seamen's Friend Society. Realizing that many thousands of their subjects who follow the sea will soon be harbored in the $325,000 building of this American organization each year. King Edward, Kaiser Wilhelm II, Victor Emanuel III and Frederick VIII have been quick to respond through diplomatic channels to a request for recognition of the international character of this enterprise. When the modern hotel and club quarters is thrown open in August to the seven thousand sailors who arrive each day in this port, twelve nations of the world and many states in this country will be represented by some room furnishing or decoration in the big building.

Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Vermont have already claimed representation in the new sailor's institute by selecting some one of its two-hundred rooms to furnish as a memorial. It is believed that every state in the union will be as anxious to make its seafaring sons feel at home here as are the outside nations.

Towering like a fortress against the army of crimps that swarm about its doors, the big structure is today just being finished on the water front in the center of the Chelsea district, the greatest mile of shipping stretch in the world. Within the next two months the interior of this ornate sky scraper will be open to every officer, sailor, steward and stoker who is looking for a snug berth out of reach of the land sharks. A swimming pool, showers billiards, music, writing and reading rooms are some of the things which Jack-ashore may enjoy to his heart's content. He may patronize a safe bank, a modern restaurant, an honest "slop shop" to replenish his kit, or ship through a special free bureau. For the first time in the history of the world the merchant sailor man in great numbers may here spend his time in the just as retired, decent and respectable surroundings as any other traveler.
