Richardson County Boy to the Front The Billings, Mont., Daily Gazette of September 9, contains the following complimentary remarks in regard to William M. Johnson, an old Richardson county boy, who received the democratic nomination for associate justice of the Montana supreme court. The only weak spot we ever found about Billy was his politics, but his sterling worth and efficiency in his chosen profession, always brings him to the front. Here is what the Gazette says:

"William M. Johnson, the democratic nominee for associate justice of the Montana Supreme court, is one of the best known practicing attorneys in eastern Montana. His nomination at Anaconda Tuesday, seems to have met with the approval of the party in this section.

Mr. Johnston came to Billings about thirteen years ago and engaged in the practice of law. He is a graduate from the Nebraska state university at Lincoln in the spring of 1894, having finished the academic course. He read law in the office of Stearns and Strode, the junior partner being a former congressman. His rise here was rapid. He gained a reputation for possessing a thorough knowledge of the law and being conservative at all times. He was elected county attorney for two terms and at another election was chosen state representative from Yellowstone county. He has previously been mentioned as a prospect for supreme court justice, but it was not known that he was a candidate this year. He presided at the recent county convention to elect delegates to the state gathering and was elected as one of two delegates at large. Mr. Johnson is married and has a beautiful home on the west side, where he resides with his wife and two little girls."
