Do not fail to hear Senator Burkett at the court house next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Shall the people rule? Well, not if the saloon keepers of Omaha and the democratic legislative ticket can prevent it.

Hogs $7.10 in Kansas City Saturday, and fat cattle $7.60. And still Mr. Bryan visits the state fairs and tells the farmers how they are being oppressed.

"When was it that Bryan ran the first time?" asked one old resident of another. "The year you sold your corn for ten cents" replied the man with a good memory.

If you want to read the editorials in the Tribune, you will have to read the Tribune, for in this as in many other features—the Tribune is just different, that's all.

"It is the oppression that is heaped upon the farmer that is bringing him to town," says the disappearless leader. It is the automobile that is bringing him to town in these parts.

The democratic legislative candidates refuse to say where they stand on county option. They expect to get the people coming and going. They will be snooked out before election, however.

You know what your products are worth under a republican administration, but do you know what they would have been worth under free silver, a democratic tariff and other ill considered legislation.

Some time since the local democratic organ asked where the Tribune stood on county option. Having answered, we would now like to know where the democratic legislative candidates stand on the proposition.

John Wiltse is an earnest, able, hard working young man. He always attends strictly to his business affairs and is a growing lawyer. He would prove a safe and reliable county attorney and one who would protect the interest of the county at all times.

Why not let the people of the entire county vote upon every question which concerns them? Ours is a government of the people. Why not let every man in the county vote on every question which concerns the tax payers of the county? If the will of the majority should control, let us permit the majority to express themselves. That's county option.

It is now estimated that the corn crop of Richardson county will bring the farmers more money than any other crop ever raised in the county. Incidentally a farmer living in the east end of the county was heard to say that he had a field of corn which will bring him $40 per acre. This man has voted twice for Bryan, but this year will vote against him.

"No question is ever settled until it is settled right," declared Bryan after free silver was snowed under in 1896. "We will do nothing with the tariff," declared the disappearless, "until the curse of gold is destroyed. For if protection has slain its thousands, the gold standard has slain its tens of thousands." Gee, what a long tail our cat has. You who have grown rich under a republican tariff and were poor under a democratic tariff, what do you think of gush like the above?

"Bryan will reduce the price of farm machinery," says the local democratic organ. Sure! And hogs, cattle, corn and wheat. Bryan was in congress and helped frame the democratic tariff that made soup so cheap that it was served free to hundreds of thousands of idle people. Soup went up when Mr. McKinley was elected, so did corn, and wheat, and cattle, and hogs and they have been up ever since.

Bryan proposes to compel every honest and conservative banker to stand good for every dishonest and grasping banker. His plan is not sound, fair nor honest. His plan would place a discount upon honest banking and a premium upon dishonest and reckless banking. The republican party favors a voluntary guarantee of deposits, but is opposed to a law which compels every good banker to stand liable for every bad banker. That makes the banker of Falls City liable for the failure of the Wall Street banker of New York city.

It is a matter of congratulation that Gov. Hughes, of New York, will make two speeches in Nebraska. Gov. Hughes is one of the greatest men America ever produced. He speaks the Roosevelt language. The address made by him at Youngstown, Ohio, so fairly and completely showed the Bryan fallacies in their true light that every fair minded man was compelled to admit his conclusions. A prominent democratic lawyer told the writer the other day that in his opinion the speech was the greatest political document in the past half century, and left Mr. Bryan with nothing to stand on.

We have no criticism for the man who votes for his own welfare. We have little sympathy with the man so blinded with partisanship that he votes against his own welfare. If Nebraska goes for Bryan it will be by the farmer's vote. If the Nebraska farmer is solicitous of his welfare, he will not vote for a change. It has been twelve years since the democrats ruled the country, and by the same token it has been twelve years since the farmer sold his corn for twelve cents, his hogs for three cents, his cattle for four cents, his wheat for forty cents, and kept his horses because he could not sell them at all.

The democratic legislative candidates were nominated in Omaha. Dave Grush was beaten in Omaha. Will one of the democratic legislative candidates deny that he received letters from the retail liquor dealers association in Omaha, in which he received assurances of support if he would declare against county option? Will anyone deny that Mr. Grush received such letters and that he was defeated in this county because he would not be bulldozed by Omaha saloon keepers and declare against county option? What about the rule of the people when Omaha dictates nominations in this county? Every man against county option is in this fight. Where are you?

One man predicts the defeat of the republican legislative ticket because he said, "county option men always vote as partisans, while the other fellows never do." "When I saw all the republican saloon keepers in town calling for primary ballots that they might nominate the precinct democratic legislative ticket," he continued, "I thought of a saying of the late Jay Gould. You know Gould was the head of the Erie railroad and he was asking favors of the legislators in New Jersey and New York." "What is your politics, Mr. Gould?" asked a friend. "In New York," replied Mr. Gould, "I'm a republican, in New Jersey I'm a democrat, but I'm an Erie man everywhere and every time." See the point?

Senator Burkett left Lincoln the first of the week to fill some speaking engagements of the state committee. He expressed himself as greatly pleased with the forthcoming trip over the old First district, which begins at Table Rock on the 24th of September and includes almost every county in the district. He says he proposes making it a visiting trip as well as a speaking trip and that he hopes to meet all his friends in the different towns. His earliest political friends were in the first district and their constant loyalty has always been gratifying to him. He will probably travel in his automobile, although that will depend upon the condition of the roads, and visit some towns where he is not even scheduled for a speech. This will probably be his only visit to this section of the state this year, as other parts of the state and nation are making heavy demands on his time. The plans are not yet entirely completed but he will open at Table Rock on the 23rd and on Thursday, Sept. 24, will speak at Humboldt at 2 p. m. at Salem at 5 p. m. and at Falls City at 8 p. m. Bear this date in mind and hear the Senator at the most convenient point.

FATHER AND HEIR

No man who has aspired to the presidency of the United States has shown so much desperation in his efforts to secure his election, as Mr. Bryan.

He has already sought some paramount issues which he thought would win votes. Free silver, imperialism, government ownership of railroads, have all proved themselves to have been phantoms.

His last break was to claim himself to be the father of the Roosevelt policies, and later to be the heir. How one man can be the father and heir of the same thing, is too much for any one to explain except the disappearless leader.

The recent statement of President Roosevelt concerning this matter is quite interesting reading at this time. The President says: "For the last ten years, while I have been governor of New York and president, I have been thrown into the closest intimacy with him (Mr. Taft), and he and I have on every essential point, stood shoulder to shoulder. We have the same views as to what is demanded by the national interest and honor, both within our own borders and as regards the relations of this nation with other nations. There is no fight for decency and fair dealing which I have waged, in which I have not had his heartiest support, and the policies for which I stand are HIS POLICIES as much as mine."

DO YOU?

The democratic platform for Richardson county declares as follows: "We favor home rule." Now, do you? The Tribune is prepared to prove that the democratic legislative nominees were nominated by the retail liquor dealers association of Omaha. Is that home rule?

We are prepared to prove that Dave Grush, one of the best men in this county, was defeated for the nomination because he had too much manhood to let the Omaha saloon keepers tell him how to vote.

We are prepared to prove that Richardson Co., democrats will not have the privilege of voting for Mr. Grush because the Omaha crowd wouldn't let him be nominated and voted republicans at the primaries to insure his defeat.

Is THIS home rule?
