But one thing this campaign has done, and praise the Lord in this county. Former political opponents have been working side by side during the entire campaign. This condition is largely due to the intelligent and hard work of George W. Holland. Mr. Holland has put that the ticket was not beaten worse. The thing for republicans to do is to keep together hereafter. To assist each other in building the party up and not fight each other in an attempt to tear it down.

In the local contest it seems generally admitted that our candidates were beaten by the liquor element. There are many men in Falls City who feel that the saloon has no place in politics, and many of these men are now talking of putting Falls City saloons out of politics. Falls City has had many good mayors the present administration is the most careful and business like the city has ever had.

If oratory made a candidate strong, Mr. Bryan would be one of the strongest candidates for president the country has ever known. Yet the very reverse is true. He has been proven to be one of the very weakest. Thrice has he been a candidate for the presidency. His nomination each time was due to his oratory. Thrice has he been beaten and each succeeding "battle" has been more disastrous than the preceding one. Whether his defeats are more largely attributable to too much talk or the want of achievements and stability on his part is a question for discussion. It is demonstrated however that a record of splendid achievements is more eloquent than an unceasing flow of words.
