The Tribune continues to do the advertising and Tribune ads continue to do the work.

That position in the state oil inspection department might have saved Clark some trouble.

The answer made by Clark to its brutal assault should show our esteemed contemporary something of the regard that people hold for it and its sayings.

"Johnny and I want to play store," said a little Miss to her father, a leading merchant. "All right, but be very quiet," he replied. "We will," said the little lady, "We will pretend we don't advertise."

The Tribune is highly complimented at the interest being shown the pioneer articles running in this paper. The State Historical Society of Lincoln has added its name to our list and is preserving the series.

The rescue of the passengers on the ocean liners "Republic" and "Florida" through the instrumentality of wireless telegraphy was one of the most dramatic incidents in all history. Some master of literature will one day write the story, for it should not be lost.

We have received many inquiries as to the location of the first Sunday school building referred to in the pioneer article of last week. The building stands on the north-west corner of Tenth and Chase streets. In as much as it is the oldest house in Falls City and has so much of the atmosphere of early associations clinging to it there seems a growing feeling in favor of purchasing it and removing it to the park. The house has but little intrinsic value and could probably be purchased very cheaply.

The legislature is split between Gov. Shallenbarger and Mr. Bryan. Both of these gentlemen have senatorial aspirations and are laying the wires for the contest. The great majority of the legislature seems to believe that Mr. Bryan has been the whole hog long enough and that some other and less selfish democrat be given a chance once in a while. The general impression at Lincoln seems to be that the Governor will beat the disappearless one a mile in a primary election. At any rate he ran way ahead last fall.

Some of the so-called republicans of Lincoln, who were doing their utmost to give Mr. Bryan the state last fall, are now hatching a scheme under the instructions of the peerless one to defeat Senator Burkett. The idea is to have as many republican candidates on the primary ticket as possible so as to divide the republican vote and to permit Mr. Bryan to be the only democratic candidate. This, under the Oregon primary law would doubtless result in Bryan's election. Under such circumstances the republican legislation candidates should refuse to pledge themselves for the primary choice for senator.

Just how well the scheme will work, remains to be seen. Gov. Shellenbarger is being pushed in opposition to Mr. Bryan and his friends are insisting that the democratic party has been the property of the thrice defeated candidate long enough.

In the meantime the medicine mixers are busy and the politicians are working over time.

GROUNDLESS CHARGES

We do not remember of having referred to Henry Gerdes unkindly. We know that Mr. Gerdes has never been abused in these columns. The statement made to the contrary by a local paper is a very patent and silly falsehood. The field of abuse is so well filled by one of our newspapers that even had we the desire to enter it we would know there was no room for us.

We did say that the committee appointments given to Ralph Clark exceeded those given to Gerdes and Kotouc by the ratio of 16 to 1. This is a mere statement of fact and, as we read it, contains nothing abusive. That Mr. Clark is recognized as the house leader is known to every one who is acquainted with the condition. Any reference we have made was merely in recognition of Mr. Clark's position. We did not intend to wound any one's feelings, in fact, we did not know that there was any feeling in the matter until we read the assault upon Clark printed by a local newspaper and were told the inspiration of the publication. If any one resents Clark's rapid advancement to leadership, if any one feels that we have rubbed salt in their wounds we are sorry and apologize.

If any one desires to hinder a young man's progress by abuse and groundless charges, we know of no way we can prevent it.

We resent any intimations of abuse on our part towards one for whom we entertain the highest regard, and volunteer the suggestion that Mr. Gerdes be saved from his friends, whose attitude, peculiar at least, has led to what we believe is a false impression as to his feelings.

OREGON PRIMARY SYSTEM

The legislature will probably enact the Oregon primary system under which a republican legislature elected a democratic senator. Under this law each legislative candidate is requested to pledge his vote to the primary choice without regard to party. If he does so his name will appear on the ballot as follows:

John Jones, pledged to vote for people's choice for senator.

If the candidate declines to so pledge himself, this fact will be stated on the ballot.

Mr. Bryan believes that under this law he could be elected United States Senator without regard to the politics of the majority of the legislature.
