

The Falls City Roller Mills

We are running our mill to its full capacity, six days out of the week, which enables us to employ from ten to fifteen men every day. These men not only spend their money here, but are bringing up their families where they intend to stay as long as our trade demands their labor.

Insist upon your groceryman giving you Falls City Flour. Condemn him if he talks for any other; he condemns you if you patronize the mail-order houses, and that is what he does if he sells outside flour. Patronize home industry.

P. S. Heacock & Son, Props.

If this is a good thing for Falls City, why not give us your support and ask your neighbor, who is using flour made elsewhere, to give us his patronage, that we may run full time, night and day, which would enable us to employ more men. This would be a boost for Falls City.

We absolutely guarantee that we are making as good a flour as you can get in any part of the world, and can be purchased as cheaply as any. You may think this statement covers a big territory, but let us prove it to you.

If at any time you should get a sack of our flour which does not seem up to the standard, caused perhaps through a leaky spout or a break-down, kindly report the matter to either the groceryman from whom you purchased it, or to us, and you can secure another sack in exchange, or your money will be returned.
