HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST TO YOU AND ME.

What Your Friends and Their Friends Have Been Doing the Past Week.

A. R. Keim was a Pawnee City visitor Wednesday.

Miss Florence Boose is the guest of Elizabeth Miller in Lincoln.

Mrs. Caroline Tanner is in St. Joe for a short visit, having gone Wednesday.

Miss Carrie Stocum has issued invitations for a bridge luncheon for Friday.

Mrs. Wm. Fuller and Mrs. Adolph Bertram were shopping in St. Joe on Wednesday.

John R. Smith continues very ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Tom Whitaker.

Mrs. Clem Firebaugh was called to Omaha Wednesday by the illness of her sister, Mrs. Nellie Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Ryan were down from Omaha this week, called here by the illness of Mr. Ryan's mother.

Ben Reichers came over from Craig for a few days visit at home and to be here to throw in his vote for a good cause.

—Delicious Sauer Kraut candy, made from fresh coconuts; only 20 cents per pound, Saturday, Nov. 6th at the Candy Kitchen.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fisher returned Wednesday to their home in Olathe, Col., after visiting the family of George Fisher in this city.

Mrs. Fred Brecht has issued invitations for a whist party for Friday and an "Inquiry" party for Saturday, complimentary to Mrs. Varner.

Mrs. J. W. Robb and sons, Albert, Frank and Harold, of Salina, were pleasant callers at The Tribune office Thursday. They enjoyed witnessing the workings of our linotype very much.

T. Y. Maynard arrived Monday from Albuquerque, N. M., for a week's visit with the family of his brother-in-law, Charles M. Wilson. He came to take Grandma Wilson back to New Mexico with him to spend the winter. They expect to start Saturday.

Now somebody has discovered that what was really the greatest ballooning record was made in 1859 when John Wise started from St. Louis and came down at Henderson, N. Y., in just nineteen hours, having covered 1150 miles at the rate of more than sixty miles an hour. Some old codger is always coming along and trying to show up the hopeful later-comers as small potatoes and a few in a hill.

Personality in Politics.

In life, in literature, there is no magic charm like that of personality, but politicians are afraid of it in their business. Of this they sedulously cultivate the idea that it must be conducted by committees and parties, never by individualities. Everything is collective, nothing personal. Intrigue and subterranean management are the prime forces, and the old practitioners of the art are always agast when some man of native vigor comes forward with open methods and direct appeals.

High School Has Started Something.

Last year Mr. Wiggam was on the lecture course. He also gave a short address to the high school. The students were so well pleased with his talk and lecture that they have decided to bring him here again under the auspices of the boys' and girls' athletic association to deliver another of his great lectures.

Mr. Wiggam is a man with an idea. He is entertaining because he is humorous—he instructs because he is a thinker. His lectures are so perfectly gotten up as to fill the requirements of the most fastidious. If you don't care for a heavy lecture you will be carried down the channels of thought into the realm of new ideas with such skillful logic and so little friction as to land you ere you are aware in the beaming sunshine of a bigger and a better world.

If you want a heavy lecture you'll be fed with manna sufficient to supply you with food for the deepest thought during the rest of your natural life. Come, hear a good lecture and contribute to a worthy cause.

At the Brethren church November 4th, 1909. Admission adults 25 cents; children under twelve 15 cents.

A Way Out.

A broker and banker, who was a member of the Russian relief committee that had in charge the transportation of food to Russia from Philadelphia a few years ago during a famine, likes to tell of an unusual experience he had while soliciting for the relief fund. In speaking of it he said: "I tell it because it shows the speed with which some people think. I called on a man who was always a generous contributor to charity. He was out of sorts when I saw him and after I explained my mission he said: 'You fellows are always begging for something.' I was taken aback for a few seconds and when I recovered myself I asked, 'What would you do if the wolf were at your door?' He stared at me in a terrifying manner for a second and then blurted out, 'Why, you fool, I would eat the wolf.' I noticed when I was passing out the door he was still watching me sharply. I have never served on a relief committee since then."

THE WEEK'S SOCIAL EVENTS

Mrs. Adolph Bertram invited the German Kaffee Klatch to visit with her on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Sedlmeyer, of Kansas City. Mrs. Weiman of St. Joseph was also present, and the afternoon was in every way an enjoyable one. There was needlework and visiting among old friends, and an afternoon of unusual pleasure was spent. Dinner was served at six o'clock and a meal fit for a king was enjoyed by all.

The W. R. C. gave a most enjoyable dinner at their hall last Friday evening complimentary to Mrs. Condon, state inspector of the W. R. C. After dinner a fine program was rendered.

Mrs. John A. Crook is entertaining at whist this (Thursday) afternoon. The guest list included ladies for six tables.

Sociasis met with Mrs. Giannini as hostess Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Miss Steele, Mrs. Gist, vice president, presided. Roll call was responded to by the club with current events. Mrs. Gist opened the meeting with a greeting of welcome to Mrs. Wm. Wilson, who has been absent from the club for the past three years, and Mrs. Wilson responded in her usual happy way. Mrs. Himmelreich read a paper on "George Eliot as a Humorist." Mrs. Kate Steele gave a paper on "Medical Inspections of Schools," and Mrs. Morsman made a few remarks on the same subject. Mrs. Morehead and Mrs. Ewalt both read papers on "Silas Marner," from an artistic standpoint. Mrs. Gist closed with a few remarks. All the papers were greatly enjoyed by the club. During the social half-hour Mrs. Giannini served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Al Spear. The club will meet with Mrs. Charles Wilson November 17.

Miss Celia Dittmar gave a very novel party Friday night for the members of her club. The young ladies were invited to dinner and to remain over night. When at six o'clock they were shown into the dining room they found it lighted with jack o'lanterns and beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and vines. In the center of the table a pumpkin held a cluster of candles and small candles were placed beside each place card, a black cat cut from card board and were held by small pumpkins, small ears of corn and small turnips. The doilies were of autumn leaves and yellow crepe paper. An elaborate dinner was served in five courses and here again the Halloween ideas were carried out. After dinner all sorts of games were played, and during the fortune telling ghosts walked in order to make the fortunes come true. Little sleep was in store for the girls that night, but all were on hand for breakfast at nine o'clock, and a more delicious meal would be hard to imagine. The guests on leaving voted the party one of the most delightful ones of the year.

The Friends in Council met Friday evening in the club rooms and enjoyed a most pleasant and interesting session. Drs. Frances Tucker and Emma Boose Tucker had sent the club an illustrated catalog of the Williams hospital in China. It covers the work of the mission for the past thirty years and relates its plans for the future. It was examined with interest. A letter from Miss Lois Spencer was read. Miss Florence Cleaver gave a full report of the Federation meeting.

A very interesting session of the Womens club was held Tuesday with Mrs. John A. Crook. Roll call was responded to by current events. Mrs. John Hutchings read an interesting paper, and Mrs. George Wahl sang an Irish love song which was a pleasure to all. Mrs. William Wilson who has been away for some time was with the club for the first time since her return. This was a very profitable as well as enjoyable.

We wish to express our deepest and most heartfelt gratitude for the services rendered and the many tokens of esteem shown us by our many friends and neighbors in our time of deep need.

IS NOT A MILITARY EMBLEM.

Fashion of Wearing Cockade Originated in Strings That Served a Useful Purpose.

The cockade originated simply in the knot of ribbons or strings by which the broad flaps of the seventeenth century round hat were "cocked" or drawn up to the brim in fine weather, and thus originated the three-cornered hat, as well as the cocked hat of later times. There was nothing specially military about the usage, as the ignorant assert. The same strings survive in the loops of the hats of bishops and other ecclesiastical dignitaries in Great Britain; in the strings of the hats worn by French curies and Spanish and Italian padres and in the cords which are still seen on the hats of some livery servants.

It naturally became the custom for military men to "cock" their hats with the livery color of the prince they served, and as the Hanoverian color was the convenient one of black, the "black cockade" became associated in the minds of the people with military uniform. In an old Scotch song of Shiramul, citing Woodward's heraldry, we read of "the red coat lads with black cockades," and a knot of white ribbons was naturally chosen as the badge of their opponents. When the old use of the strings was forgotten, the knot, in the form of a rosette of ribbon, survived, just as did the buttons on the backs of our coats, which were intended to fasten back the flaps in riding or marching—"Justice of the Peace."

HAD NO TIME TO BE AFRAID.

Italian in Deadly Peril Saved Himself by Feat That Few Could Duplicate.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing to the man who handles dynamite. Italian laborers who never read up on explosives and have no superstitions about them seldom are injured through any faulty handling of their own. If your dynamite freezes, thaw it out. If you drop an armful of it on the ground all you have to do is to pick it up.

Some Italian laborers were digging a well. They got down about a dozen feet and struck rock. The foreman improvised a ladder, drilled a hole and inserted a half pound of dynamite. He lighted an ordinary tuse and scrambled up the ladder. Before he reached the surface his makeshift ladder broke and down he tumbled almost on top of the spluttering fuse. Many better educated man would have realized his awful peril to the exclusion of every other thought. The Italian foreman whipped out his pocket knife and clipped off the burning fuse. When he appeared at the surface, grinning, he exhibited the cartridge with a bare inch of fuse sticking in it.

Drawings and Paintings.

The first sketch from nature which a great artist makes nearly always has a freshness which he only labors away in the picture he bases on it; and the rough pencil or charcoal lines of the former frequently reveal more of his feeling toward his subject than all his anxious manipulations of the brush. That is why it is so exceedingly worth while to collect and catalogue every scrap of drawing that once littered a great painter's studio. His drawings give you his intentions; his paintings do not always give you their fulfillment. It is true that a drawing is incomplete, but therein lies its charm. Possessing a drawing you possess a hope, and hope is better for mortals.—T. P.'s Weekly.

A Little Vindictive.

"So you want the privilege of voting for people of whom you approve?"
"No," answered the suffragette. "I desire the satisfaction of publicly refusing to vote for people whom I don't like."

Vacation is over. Jacob

Nov. 5, 1909.

Dear friend: Have you gone back to school? I have.

What do you have for lunch? I get some nice cookies and chipped beef and cheese and things at the grocery. Mama says its lots nicer and cheaper and lots less trouble than baking things for me.

And then Mama helps me with my lessons too. And she says that is better than spending so much time in the kitchen. Your friend, Jacob.

P. S. That's why she gets so many things all ready to eat at

The dramatization of a good book from the pen of a well known author, especially one that instantly takes its place in the literary world as a masterpiece, is always watched with great interest by the readers of the book who have regarded the characters as living impersonations of high ideals and the thoughts expressed as the highest type of modern civilization and advanced classics. To all the readers of "The Man on the Box" by Harold McGrath the announcement comes as a pleasant surprise that a true interpretation of this well known piece will be given a strong capable company in our city on Saturday evening, Nov. 6th.
