"The Little Homestead."
It is always a pleasure to be able to chronicle the success of an artist who by sheer merit alone succeeds along legitimate lines. Mr. Macauley appears this season as "Roy Carroll," the husband, a part which gives this young star great opportunities and on which he is meeting with great success everywhere. Mr. Macauley is gifted with great personality and named on the list as one of the hand-somest actors on the stage. Mr. Macauley has had "The Little Homestead" rewritten this season, an entire new third act being added and it is one of those delightfully refreshing plays centered about New England life. It tells a story with a moral, is replete with pathos and forceful in its dramatic situations. In due proportion, a comedy vein is interwoven with the pathetic romance which heightens in interest as the tale is unfolded. There is not a dull moment from the rise of the curtain to its final drop. "The Little Homestead" as its title implies, is distinctly a home play—a sweet, simple and interesting chapter from everyday life, a wholesome story, beautifully told, which carries with it its lesson. It is from the pen of W. B. Patton. The attraction will appear at the Gehling Thursday evening, Nov. 18.
