CONVENTION CLOSES TONIGHT

A FINE CROWD OUT LAST NIGHT

Special Music And Good Addresses Booked For This Evening

The meetings of the convention were very hopeful all day yesterday although the attendance was not as good as it might have been for the day service. The evening services were much better attended. After the devotional services two special musical numbers were rendered, a vocal solo by Miss Nellie Craig and a selection by the Presbyterian Intermediate Quartette. The speaker of the evening, Mr. Karl Lehmann was introduced in a few chosen words by Rev. Salisbury of Auburn. His address was on the subject of New Ideals for 1911. He is a pleasing and interesting speaker, holding the close attention of his audience until he finished his speech.

This morning a Quiet Hour service was held at 6 a. m. the subject being "In Our Commission." Song service at 9:00 followed by conference, "Riddles Riddled, Mr. Karl Lehmann. The morning address was 'The Missionary Complexion of Your Society.'

The afternoon session will be devoted to Junior work. Miss Eulalia E. Gillan of South Auburn will appear in behalf of the Junior movement. Mr. Lehmann will give an address at 4:30 on "Every Junior a Booster."

The service tonight will be exceptionally good, special music has been arranged for and the report of the committee of Resolutions will be heard. At 8:15 Mr. Lehmann will give an able address on "Christian Endeavor's Three Big Words." He will also have charge of the closing consecration service at 9:30.

A large crowd came down from Auburn in autos to attend the evening service and to hear Mr. Lehmann. Among them were Misses Edna Snow, Rose Stout, Eulalia and Lulu Gillan and Flo Anderson, Will Howell, Elmer Parker and Thomas Anderson. Rev. Salisbury returned to Auburn with them last night.

Some men who get to work early don't stay very long.

A SODA TRICK

The man who mixes a glass of soda has much to do with the success, but more depends upon the purity of the ingredients that go into the mixing.

PURE FRUIT SYRUPS

What A Stella Man Told at The University Place

"The tornado that struck Stella did not look big enough to blow a man's hat off," said H. C. Fankell of Stella, who was visiting George Gates of University place Tuesday. He said that five hundred people watched the cloud as it swooped down on the town. It was an ordinary looking cloud with a small tail to it that reached to the ground. It darted as quick as lightning. The people that watched it declare that they will not stand and watch another one, but will get in their cellars. Mr. Fankell said that George Helmick, a farmer near Stella, was sitting in his house when the wind struck. He felt a hot and cold blast of air strike him from two different directions and the next thing he knew his house had been torn to pieces and hurled away. The path of the storm was about fifty yards wide, he said.
