Dwight Griswold Files for Governor

Gordon Editor and Former Nominee Will Make an Active Campaign.

Dwight Griswold of Gordon filed on Tuesday as a republican candidate for governor. He was the party nominee for that office in 1932-1934 and 1936, losing out by narrow margins in the face of democratic landslides.

Griswold is 46 years of age and is editor of the Gordon Journal and a former president of the Nebraska Press association. He is also a former state commander of the American Legion and served three terms in the state senate from 1925 to 1929. He was born and raised in western Nebraska and is a university graduate. Present indications are that he will be the youngest of the republican candidates for governor.

Dwight Griswold

Mr. Griswold, in a statement issued at the time of his filing, said:

"There are many who have urged me to file for governor, saying that I deserve the nomination in 1940 when a republican victory is quite probable because I carried the banner through hard-fought battles when there was no chance to win. Others say that I have run too often."

"Neither of these statements is entirely true," continued Mr. Griswold. "The duty of republican voters in next April's primary is to choose that candidate who is best able to make the necessary campaign fight and properly fill the office after he is elected. Public offices should not be passed out as rewards to deserving party workers—honesty and ability should be the basis of the voter's decision."

"I do feel, however," said Mr. Griswold "that my previous campaigns have been the finest possible training to prepare me to serve the people of Nebraska. I have campaigned in 92 of the 93 counties of the state and have met personally about 190,000 of her citizens. There is no better way to learn of the needs and wants of the various sections."
