Three Quarters of a Century

B. I. Clement was born in New York state on February 17, 1865 and at the age of two years came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Clement, to Nebraska, crossing the Missouri river at Plattsmouth, continued on their way to near the present site of Elmwood, which did not become a town until some years later.

Here, Mr. Clement has spent the past 73 years of his life and remembers much about the development of the county.

When he was a lad of 14 years, he recalls a trip made to Plattsmouth with a large quantity of butter, some of which was packed in stone jars and the rest in rolls. The butter in the rolls was easily disposed of, but no one wanted the butter in the jars. So he secured a paddle with a butter print on it and in the evening drove out of town and moulded the butter from the jars into rolls, going back to town the following morning and disposing of it in quick time, brought the jars back home. So much for his early experience in business.
