Order Seedlings Now

Have you placed your order for Clarke-McNary seedlings yet? Cass county farmers can get applications for broadleaf and evergreen trees now at the County Farm Bureau office. In view of the great loss of farm windbreaks in recent unfavorable years, there is a great demand for these seedlings so if interested place your order as soon as possible.

Womens Project Work Underway

Clothing care, repair and storage is the subject of the lesson to be presented to the leaders of women's project clubs the first of March. Leader training meetings will be held at Elmwood, Nehawka, Murdock, Eagle, Weeping Water, Louisville, and Plattsmouth.

Project club leaders attending the training meetings will also receive special help with garden problems. This will include location, irrigation, varieties, etc. The leaders in turn will present this material to their local club members. Any group of women interested in having representation at these spring meetings should contact the Farm Bureau office for details such as dates, time, etc.

P-F-L Program Opens

The 1940 Nebraska Pasture-Forage-Livestock program is now started and Cass county will again be represented in the educational movement with cooperators.

Very few changes from 1939 are noted in the P-F-L program for 1940. Cooperating farmers will fill out "balance sheets" soon in planning their year's operations in attempting to balance their livestock and feeding practices. They will keep simple records during the spring and summer months which will be summarized next fall.

Those doing the best job of balancing their operations will be honored at county, regional and state finish-ups late in the fall months. There, the farmers will have an opportunity to exchange ideas with fellow-producers from other areas.

County agricultural agents have charge of the P-F-L program locally. The state plan has as its sponsors the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, the Extension Service of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, the Nebraska Crop Growers' association, the Nebraska Livestock Breeders' association and possibly the Nebraska Dairymen's association. The state finish-up will be held as usual in November in Omaha. Six farmers will gain outstanding recognition then and 44 others will get honorable mention.

The primary purpose of the P-F-L program is to encourage balanced livestock and feed operations on Nebraska farms and to allow for a free exchange of ideas and experience among farmers. Everyone is eligible to become a cooperator in the educational movement and application blanks are available at the Farm Bureau office at Weeping Water.

according to Miss Helen Locke, extension clothing specialist at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Here are some of the highlights of Miss Locke's report on spring fashions:

Prints which are being shown to wear under winter coats are bright and gay. Designs are medium in size and many crosswise patterns are shown. Black and navy accented with white and sometimes a third color will be used to make up many costumes.

White touches, such as blouses or collars of white pique, as well as revers and cuffs are shown with both suits and dresses. Navy blue trimmed with black is a revival of a combination much used in 1918 as rows of black braid on the skirt of a dress, or a yoke of black soutache braid on a coat of navy blue wool crepe.

Following black and navy are many neutral colors. These are beige and gray, olive green or olive drab and a color called pearlblue, which is a mid-tone between gray and blue. In lighter colors there are three pastels called coffee cream, atmospheric blue and rosetone, which indicate the softness of spring.

Dress fabrics are smooth and pliable so that they will drape easily because of the many gores, circular effects and tucks which are found in designs for spring.

Coat fabrics are lighter in weight than in past seasons because there are many dress-like details on the spring coats. Twills are important and ribs and striped effects of all types, such as diagonals, chalk stripes, hairline stripes and wide ribbon effects, are shown.

Americans Eat More Cheese

Good news for Nebraskans producing dairy products is contained in a report this week from the University of Nebraska that Americans are eating more and more cheese.

Consumption of cheese in the United States has increased in recent years from four pounds per capita annually to almost five and one-half pounds, according to Prof. E. L. Reichart of the dairy husbandry department.

Cottage cheese is perhaps the variety most generally available in Nebraska, Reichart points out. He suggests that the addition of such materials as chives, chopped onion, celery, nuts, pimento or pineapple will permit it to be served frequently without presenting a monotonous appearance.

And as a rather unusual way of serving cottage cheese, he suggests incorporating some cottage cheese in some lime jello shaped in rings or individual molds to suit your requirements. Garnished with lettuce and dressing, this will also add to the attractiveness of the table's appearance. It's particularly appropriate for the St. Patrick's day dinner.

Farm Facts and Fun

Discussion of the possibilities of capon production and the spring pasture problem facing Nebraska farmers will be heard on this week's Farm Facts and Fun radio broadcast over a statewide wireless network on Saturday, March 2. It is on the air from 1 until 1:30 p. m.

County Agricultural Agent Leonard Wenzel of Buffalo county together with D. E. McGregor, prominent Gibson man, will tell about their cooperative processing of turkeys and the advantages and disadvantages of raising capons. Dr. F. D. Kelm, chairman of the agronomy department at the College of Agriculture, will make some suggestions for spring pastures. The pasturage problem is one attracting most attention now and is vital in view of the failure of rye to come through the winter.

Farm Facts and Fun can be heard over WOW, Omaha; WJAG, Norfolk; KORN, Fremont; KMMJ, Grand Island; KGFV, and KGNF, North Platte.

Dirt Farmer Has High Post in Agriculture

Claude R. Wickard, New Undersecretary of Agriculture—Formerly in Charge of North Central Region

A dirt farmer from the corn belt is now No. 2 man in the nation's agricultural councils. He is Claude R. Wickard, new undersecretary of agriculture, who brings to that post nearly a quarter of a century of experience as a general grain and livestock farmer in Carroll county, Indiana.

Official announcement of Mr. Wickard's appointment as undersecretary was received this week by the Cass County Agricultural Conservation committee. Mr. Wickard formerly was director of the north-central region of the AAA which includes Nebraska and nine other midwest states.

His successor as north-central region director is Harry N. Schooler, also familiar with farming from first-hand experience. Mr. Schooler is a South Dakota rancher-farmer who has been assistant regional director since the spring of 1937.

Since 1933 Mr. Wickard has devoted his practical farming experience to the administrative work of the AAA farm program. On his farm near Camden, Indiana, he pioneered in the use of soil-conserving farm practices. As director of the north-central region he stressed administration of the farm program by elected farmer-committeemen such as those now serving in Cass county.

Mr. Schooler homesteaded a ranch in South Dakota at the age of 21, served in the World War, later completed his course at South Dakota State college, and in 1923 returned to ranching and general farming. Like Mr. Wickard, he has been associated with administration of the AAA farm program since 1933.

Both men have visited Nebraska in connection with farm program work.

MILLER IN G. O. P. DEAL

LINCOLN, Febr. 26 (UP)—John Miller, Lincoln, former state railway commissioner, who is believed to have the endorsement of the Townsendsites, made the race for the republican U. S. senatorial nomination a five-way affair today by entering his name on a platform for nation-wide retirement of the aged.

Miller was elected to the railway commission in 1926. In a statement announcing his candidacy he mentioned his efforts while on the commission to reduce freight rates to make hay and feed more easily available to drought areas and to cut out certain charges on grain. He listed preservation of representative government and elimination of unemployment as the nation's chief problem.

AVERT STOCKYARDS STRIKE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Febr. 27 (UP)—The threat of a strike that would have tied up the stockyards here and the movement of thousands of head of livestock was averted today when union employees agreed to continue the work while their leaders and officials of the stockyards company negotiate for a new contract.

The livestock handlers are members of the packing house workers organizing committee (CIO) and they had intended to strike yesterday.

RETURNS TO WYOMING

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howland and children, Billy and Betty, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horsak and son, Carl Joseph, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dow and family were among the Plattsmouth people in Omaha who viewed the Missouri Pacific's new Eagle streamliner, which was on display in that city.

OMAHA PARTIES WEDDED

From Tuesday's Daily—This morning in the county court Robert LeClair and June Lorraine Young, both of Omaha, were married by Judge A. H. Duxbury. The ceremony was witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Young, parents of the bride. The party returned to Omaha immediately after the ceremony.

A TRIBUTE

The little brown house at the corner of 11th and Marble is empty. It is very lonely. For many years it has sheltered one of Plattsmouth's cherished families.

Perry Gass bought this wee house in 1859 and he and his new wife Hannah Wintersteen made of it a home.

Very few houses had been built in that section of the new village—and the nicest thing happened—there was a baby and Perry and Hannah called her Olive.

The outlook from this house was over the valley where the business houses were located. It was also near the road that would tussle over the hills and across the prairies to other parts of the vast country beyond. Many people were seeking new homes. Today we call them "Pioneers." Then they were courageous, sturdy Americans seeking new opportunities—new homes. Many of them passed by the wee house.

Then, even as today, the distant hills of Iowa furnished an ever changing scene of beauty for the inhabitants of this wee house. Occasionally there were some Indians—they were the real thing. We get them in the movies.

The baby in this home grew into a school girl. Her teachers didn't know anything about IQ, but Ollie got the grades. She was her teachers' pride and joy. No record on department.

Like all little girls, she grew into a vivacious, beautiful young woman and bought herself a fine piano, which she still plays very entertainingly.

At sixteen she began to teach school and continued for twenty-five years. Many people of Plattsmouth say with pride, "I went to school to Ollie Gass." Some of them became famous. I'm sure all of them are good citizens.

Miss Gass' music was always a definite part of her life, so when she retired from teaching school, she turned to teaching piano—and here again she had reason to be proud of her work.

The years have been many and sometimes the labor too heavy. So on Monday, February 26, Olive Gass left this cherished abiding place and went to the living care accorded the guests at the Masonic Home.

MRS. SARAH JOSLYN DIES

OMAHA, Febr. 28 (UP)—Mrs. Sarah Joslyn, generally credited as being Nebraska's wealthiest woman, died at her home, one of the city's show places, today. She had been ill several weeks.

A Nebraska pioneer, Mrs. Joslyn was wife of the late George H. Joslyn, founder and during his lifetime president of the Western Newspaper Union. Following his death Mrs. Joslyn erected the four million dollar Joslyn Art Memorial, regarded as outstanding in the midwest.

Mrs. Joslyn was credited with many philanthropies but little of her activity was known to the general public.

Mrs. Joslyn was an enigma to newspaper folk and to many of her closest friends. Not even her attorney, Judge Fred Wright, knew her age. Wright said she was about 88. She remained secretive about herself until her death.
