Students to Take Up Work at Nebraska U

Twenty-one from Plattsmouth Will Be Enrolled When School Opens Next Week.

When hundreds of youngsters, most of them Nebraskans and most of them fresh from high school, hit Lincoln this month to embark on another session of learning, they will find that University of Nebraska faculty members have a pretty good idea of what makes them tick.

Twenty-one students from Plattsmouth high school will enter University of Nebraska this fall, largest number ever entered from Plattsmouth. The following will enroll at University of Nebraska: Edward Smith, Stephen Devoe, Raphael Tomman, Ralph Johnson, Louise Rishel, Bill Rosencrans, Ronald Rebal, John Kenneth Bestor, Hazel Kelley, Mary Jean Knorr, James Webb, Frances Cloldt, Raymond Wooster, Dick and Joan Hall, Alberta Timmas, Theodore Libershal, Stephen Davis, Janet Westover, Rachel Robertson, Burton Rishel, and Robert Woest.

That knowledge of incoming students is a product of the new junior division, which goes into operation for the first time this year.

To provide adequate background information for each adviser to whom a new student will be assigned, four-part forms were mailed to prospective students a week ago.

One part is the official transcript of the student's high school record. A second part consists of the application for admission. He is asked to name his reasons for entering college, to name his chosen profession or occupation and his choice of subjects.

Another question lists subjects commonly taken in high school. Extracurricular interests and hobbies come in for attention, with the student asked to check various activities in which he engaged and mark all which "gave him special satisfaction." Another part asks for a listing of offices held in organizations.

Another part of the application for admission is the principal's report. One question asks the principal to predict the student's probable success in college and his reasons, another asks for a description of the student's scholastic tendency during the last year or two of high school.

The principal is asked to check what he believes are the student's primary motives for attending college from the same list given to the student. He is requested to give results of standardized tests and to specify any problems of personality or character which might affect the student's adjustment in college.

A personality rating report, to be filled out by the teacher who knows the student best, comprises the fourth part of the form. Qualities rated include study habits, persistence, punctuality, social maturity, sociability, social attitude, self-confidence, cooperativeness, sincerity, and attitude toward authority.

The forms were returned to Dr. Nels A. Bengston, dean of the new division. After Dr. Bengston has gone over each application, the forms and his comments are filed for study by faculty advisers.

On September 12, all new students will attend a convocation and will receive notice of appointments with their advisers.

The next three days will be spent taking English, reading, mathematics and general aptitude tests—the results also to be turned over to the advisers.

HOLD BARBECUE

Sunday a barbecue was staged at the Wetenkamp grove west of Myrard, a crowd of over 100 gathering for the event and spending a very pleasant day.

In addition to the ribs "Country Club" was served as a part of the program of the day.

School Bonds are Sold to Kansas City Firm

Baum, Bernheimer Co. of Kansas City Buy $35,000 Issue at 2 Per cent—$451 Premium.

Tuesday evening the members of the board of education met at the high school building to take up the matter of the sale of the issue of $35,000 serial bonds voted last April for the building of a Central school building.

There was a large crowd of interested spectators including members of the city council to watch the sale, which was featured by a good group of bidders.

The bidders for the bonds included Wachob-Bender Co., Greenway & Co., Kirkpatrick & Pettis, National Co. of Omaha, Stenbauer & Schwalzer of Lincoln and Baum, Bernheimer Co. of Kansas City, Missouri.

The bidding lasted until a late hour before the final decision was made on the bonds by the board of education. It was finally decided after the check of the bid of the Baum, Bernheimer Co., was the most advantageous to the school district and the contract made for the sale of the bonds.

The sale of the bonds was made on the bid of par accrued interest plus a total premium of $451 for the issue. The bonds are serial and bear two per cent interest.

The bonds are to be paid $4,000 each year for five years, the first on July 1, 1942, then $3,000 for a period of five years.

Mr. George McLiney was here to represent the successful bidders for the bonds.

Wallace Praises Farm Program at Weeping Water

Says Every Nazi-Minded Voter and Appeaser Will Support Republican Ticket This Fall.

Henry A. Wallace, democratic vice-presidential nominee, opened his Nebraska campaign in Weeping Water this morning by stating that he did not call Wendell L. Willkie an "appeaser," but insisting that "every Nazi-minded voter and appeaser will vote the republican ticket this fall."

He said the real problem before America is to prepare to defend the western hemisphere.

Commenting on proposals that farmers in drouth-stricken Nebraska counties be granted loans of corn to feed their famished livestock, Wallace observed "I am hoping we get corn crop insurance soon." The wheat insurance plan had solved the problem now confronting certain Nebraska counties, he said.

A crowd of nearly 1,000 gathered in Main street to hear Wallace's ten-minute talk. He was accompanied by prominent Nebraska party leaders, including National Committeeman James Quigley and State Chairman William Schall.

"I sincerely believe," said Wallace, "that every pro-Nazi person will be a republican this fall. I do not say that Mr. Willkie is an appeaser or that he stands for Nazism, and it is certainly true that not all republicans are Nazi sympathizers. Nevertheless this is an election of Roosevelt vs. Hitler."

He summarized in rapid-fire order the achievement of the New Deal for the benefit of agriculture. The farm income for the entire nation is now on the 1929 level he said, but due to drouths Nebraska's farm income is only 68 per cent of the 1929 figure.

VISIT HYBRID HEADQUARTERS

Ralph Wehrlein of this city, Clarence Engelkemier of Murray and Leroy Cook of Elmwood were at Pfister Hybrid headquarters in El Paso, Illinois, last week as the guests of the Cornhusker Hybrid company of Waterloo, Nebraska, producers of Pfister hybrid seed corn for this state.

As local representatives of the Pfister and Cornhusker organizations, the Cass county men were winners in a sales contest conducted by them last March and April. This trip was their reward.

While at El Paso, they were entertained by Lester Pfister, nationally famous hybrid corn breeder. They inspected the large Pfister corn breeding nurseries, the fields where foundation stocks for Pfister hybrids are produced, and the air-conditioned, underground vaults where they are stored. They also visited Mr. Pfister's equipment for drying, grading, and other processing. Several of the machines used for these purposes are Mr. Pfister's own inventions.

River Packet Heralds Use of River Shipping

Barge of Sioux City-New Orleans Barge Co., Inc., Visits Here as Franchise Established.

Sunday morning at 11:30 there occurred an event that marked a new departure in waterway history in this part of the country, this was the arrival at the Plattsmouth dock of the barge of the Sioux City-New Orleans Barge Lines Inc., carrying freight from St. Louis to Sioux City, the north terminal of the line.

The arrival of the barge was awaited with interest here but it was only a short time before the vessel appeared that the actual time of reaching here was learned.

Pushed by a 110 horsepower diesel towboat the 100-foot barge was swung in near the Plattsmouth dock, the only one on this part of the river north of Kansas City. The barge had a capacity of 650 tons but the cargo carried on this trip was but 200 tons.

An improvised gangplank was pressed into service to connect the barge with the dock where a truck loaded with canned sweet corn from the plant of the Norfolk Packing Co., was awaiting being taken aboard.

There were two hundred cases of the unlabeled sweet corn carried aboard and placed in the hold of the barge, the first cargo to be shipped or received here by river boats since the days of the eighties when the river traffic was banished from the Missouri river.

Aside from the corn loaded here, the boat had a mixed cargo of non-perishable goods, nails, chains, barrels, and several hundred pounds of cosmetics and alcohol.

At the dock to greet the barge was E. J. Richey and T. H. Pollock, who had several years ago visited at Peoria, Illinois, to inspect their docks and river traffic success, both of the Plattsmouth men having been workers for river development here.

The barge was resting in three feet of water off the dock while loaded and until casting off and continuing the journey up the river.

The landing here was a real homecoming for Captain James Campbell, who for several years was here with the river construction forces, he spending a very pleasant time visiting the old friends during the trip at this point. Harold Riley was the other member of the crew that brought the barge up the river in its epoch-making voyage.

It is expected by the barge company, Captain Campbell stated, to place a number of other barges and tows in service as soon as possible, carrying on the traffic up and down the Missouri, Mississippi and Illinois river. The newer barges and tows will be much larger than those used in the present trip.

The barge and tow boat had averaged about forty miles a day on the way from St. Louis, running days and tying up at night on the way north.

While here the barge attracted much attention from the residents of the community who drove to the vicinity of the docks. While here the boat was supplied with groceries and meat for the rest of the trip into Omaha.

BICYCLE RACE FOR KING KORN

The rules of the contest are as follows: The bicycle race is strictly a boy's and girl's event.

Girl contestants must be between the ages of 8 to 16 years.

Boy contestants must be between the ages of 8 to 16 years.

In all cases the judges' decision is final. All contestants are to report to Hillard Grassman, at Bates Book Store not later than Monday, September 16th.
