

Cass County Farm Bureau Notes

Organized Agriculture
Wednesday, November 27th seems to be Cass county day, at Organized Agriculture for many of the home demonstration club women of the county.

Mrs. Howard Capwell, of Elmwood, has been selected as one of the panel members to present "Echoes from the Rural-Urban Homemakers Conference" during the morning session of the Home Economics section.

At 2:15 the Cass County Women's Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Reeder will present a fifteen-minute musical program.

Mrs. Nelson Berger, of Nehawka, 1940 Cass county extension chairman of Home Demonstration clubs, will be among those to receive special recognition for leadership.

The Home Economics program, built around the theme "The Family in the Present World Situation" abounds in thought provoking discussions, addresses and demonstrations.

Don't miss the three days of inspiration, information, and entertainment awaiting you at Organized Agriculture November 27, 28 and 29.

Programs are available at the Farm Bureau Office.

Poultry Records
Poultry raisers interested in co-operating in keeping simple records on their poultry flocks and having them summarized at the Agricultural College once each year should notify this office.

Growing Ewes from Feeder Lambs
Farmers interested in starting a farm flock of ewes should not overlook the possibility of buying ewe feeder lambs from the western ranges.

Application for State Awards Due December 1
4-H club members interested in making application for club week trips, (June 1941). Conservation and Restoration of Wild Life Camp and Scholarship and National Club Camp, Washington, D. C. awards should have achievement report form 0-10-2 in the Farm Bureau office by Dec. 1st.

Plan Outstanding Meetings
Organized Agriculture meetings at the University of Nebraska Agricultural College in Lincoln next week should be long remembered by Cass county farmers, homemakers and townspeople who attend them because of the outstanding speakers on the program.

for farmers and homemakers will be held November 25 to 29. The address of William A. Benitt of Hastings, Minnesota at the general meeting Friday afternoon, November 29, must be interesting indeed to match his own background.

Graduated from the Minnesota law school, he practiced for a time in New York. Preferring rural life, he and his wife took a year's additional training at the Agricultural College in St. Paul. They now have a 200-acre farm, a modern home, and a 1,500-tree commercial apple orchard protected by a 5,000-foot shelter belt.

They have a breeding herd of 10 beef cows, fatten feeder cattle, market 50 to 60 fall pigs each year, and have an 1100-hen commercial laying flock. Mr. Bennett will also speak Friday morning before the farm equipment section; and Friday afternoon at a joint meeting of the farm equipment and home economics sections.

Keen interest is also expected in the address of Prof. O. R. Johnson, chairman of agricultural economics at the University of Missouri. Everyone interested in the development of local land use planning should make it a point to hear his talk at the general meeting Thursday afternoon, November 28, on "The Need for Co-operative Effort in Land Use Planning." He will also speak at the rural economics meeting that afternoon.

Dr. Caroline Hedger of Chicago, returning to Nebraska by popular demand, will precede Dr. Benitt in addressing the general meeting Friday afternoon. And the general session Tuesday will hear Dr. Edvard Hambro, noted Norwegian refugee.

At the Nebraska Fall of Agricultural Achievement meeting, Wednesday afternoon, W. B. Banning will honor the memory of "Archibald Louis Haecker, Pioneer Dairy Educator." The public is invited to these meetings as well as to the various group sessions.

Lambs being carried over for breeding purposes as well as older ewes should be given all of the low grade roughage they will eat and if a liberal supply of alfalfa hay is not fed it will take about one-fourth pound of protein supplement such as cottonseed, insect, or soybean meal. Some bone meal at the rate of a pound a day for every 35 head is also to be recommended.

RECOVERS FROM 270-FOOT FALL
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 18 (UP)—Jesse Williams, 15-year-old school boy, was recovering in City hospital today from a 270-foot fall into 90 feet of water in an abandoned quarry.

He and a companion had gone to the quarry to hunt pigeons around its edge.

The "quintuplets" were adopted out by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Walters "so we can be sure there will never be any more childless days" around the big gray house just off Leavenworth street.

"I think we got a bargain," said Mrs. Walters. "Just think of picking up a growing family like this by just signing some papers." The "quints" are: Harvey, 13; Marvin, 9; Audrey, 7; Virgil, 5, and Shirley, 2.

The children's mother was Mrs. Walters' sister and the father was unable to care for them after his wife's death.
