Champion 4-H Baby Beef Brings 72 Cents Pound

Adolph Storz of Omaha, Purchases Animal, Announces He Would Give It to Boys Town.

Before a full auditorium that applauded enthusiastically each raise in price, "Blackcap" the Angus grand champion 4-H baby beef, sold for 72 cents a pound Friday morning to Adolph Storz, of Omaha, in the climax of the 19th annual state fair auction of 4-H baby beefs in the club building on the fairgrounds. Storz announced he would give the animal to Boys Town.

Lyle Schafer, the young Nehawka showman, led his prize animal into the ring ahead of more than 350 baby beefs.

"Red Chief 2nd," the Hereford reserve grand champion sold at 41 cents per pound to H. J. Amen of Lincoln. His owner was Raphael Dosh of Seward county. The champion Shorthorn, owned by Dean Lieber of Sarpy county, brought 15 cents per pound, with the Lincoln Packing company as buyer.

With the sale well along, prices were pronounced very satisfactory by L. I. Frisbie, state leader of 4-H clubs. Bidding on the grand champion opened at 50 cents and was spirited as several buyers tossed notice of their bids in to Auctioneer Thompson. The average of prices was holding well above prevailing market levels.

Calf Behaved Badly
"Blackcap" seemed to sense his fate of being roared beef for the citizens of Boys Town, and behaved badly on the block. Once he threw his halter and it was some moments before young Schafer could replace it. At one point, the coal black calf threw his bulk into the first row of the bidders' section.

The grand champion weighed an even 900 pounds. With 2 per cent shrinkage allowance supplied, he returned $635.04 in the sale. Lyle received $15 in premium money. His total expenses, including $36 originally spent for the calf, amounted to $91, so the net profit was over $550. Lyle indicated before the sale that no doubt the profit from the calf would be "plowed back" into the feeding of more baby beefs.

Lyle and his sisters may branch out a little more in their 4-H baby beef feeding next year. This year they fed ten head—two Angus, five Herefords and three Shorthorns. Next year they may feed 20 head, if they can get them "bought right."

That "if" is rather important to James Schafer, Lyle's older brother, who buys the calves that his brother and sisters, and a lot of their Cass county club members, feed out.

"We want to buy our calves at reasonable prices," he said. "Since we can't have a champion every year, we want to manage the feeding so we can come out all right if we have to take market prices." The highest priced calves in this year's ten head cost 12 cents per pound, he remarked.

Keith Schmidt's champion short-fed heifer sold to Gold & Co., for 18 cents a pound. The Cass county champion brought out stiff bidding and started at 12 cents. The animal was a Hereford.

The daughter, Miss Emily, is located at Long Beach, and the son, Edward, at Burbank where he is engaged in aviation work. She will also take the opportunity of visiting at Los Angeles and other points where she has many old friends.

On her return Mrs. Lorenz is hopeful that the son, Edward, may be able to accompany her home for a visit.

WANTED

Ambitious young man sixteen or older for long term help with livestock and general farm work. No boozing or smoking. Wm. F. Halmes, Phone 3803.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE

Clerk of the District Court C. E. Ledgway in discussing the work of his office in the past year remarked on the fact that litigation seemingly reflects conditions. Where for a great many years in the thirties the chief type of law suit to be found in the docket was largely foreclosures. Now the clerk states the foreclosures are very few compared with the past, but the number of divorce actions seem mounting each year.

High School Enrollment Now Stands at 434

New Record Set in School and Raises Real Problem—105 Enrolled in the Senior Class.

The Plattsmouth high school this year has reached a new high in enrollment figures that is bringing on a problem for the superintendent and teachers in handling. The registration has reached 434 for the largest figure in the history of the school. The enrollment by classes is as follows:

Senior	105
Junior	100
Sophomore	104
Freshman	125
434

When the present high school building was opened in 1918 there were thirty-one in the senior class as compared with the present figure of 105.

This indicates clearly that the need of more room for school purposes is imperative as was foreseen by the board of education some months ago with increasing population, when they made application for aid in the erection of a new auditorium for the high school that also could be used as a gym.

Bands, 4-H clubs, Knighthood Youth, Junior Red Cross, Nursery Characters, General Literature Characters, etc., are suggestions. General prizes will be offered for this section.

Cass County People Visit in Wyoming

Mrs. F. J. Hild and son, Arthur and Fred L. Hild Visit Great Ranches of Relatives.

One of the very interesting summer vacation trips enjoyed by Cass county people was that of Mrs. F. J. Hild and son, Arthur and Fred L. Hild, into the mountains and great ranch country of Wyoming. They spent some two weeks in that country that they will long remember most pleasantly.

Mrs. Hild stopped at Newcastle, Wyoming, where her brother, Julius Bock, has one of the largest ranches in that section of the state.

Fred Hild and Art spent the greater part of their time in the more mountainous parts of the state, making their headquarters at the sheep ranch of the Peters Brothers, relatives of the Hilds. The ranch is located in the mountains and during the summer season they pasture some 10,000 sheep.

Art and Fred Hild remained at the ranch and fished in the mountain stream that flows through the ranch and abundant catches are reported.

They resided in a cabin that had been built some forty years ago by trappers, but was in good shape and made a fine shelter high on the mountain slope.

The Peters Brothers are to sell 3,100 lambs this fall at approximately $7 per head, the price being ten cents a pound and they average about seventy pounds. The sheep are kept in the Big Horn mountains in the summer and in the fall brought down to the lower levels for the winter. In the spring the sheep are shorn before they are driven to the summer pastures. Last year at shearing time 20,000 pounds of wool were realized.

The members of the party also visited in western Nebraska with some friends before returning home.

August Brings New Families to Plattsmouth

Additions to Population of City as Homes and Improvements Take on New Growth.

The city is fast improving in appearance these days with the new residences in preparation for the further influx of residents when the bomber plant opens, going up, new Neon signs, remodeling stores and painting the business houses. It looks like someone had come through with a hypodermic needle, but no doubt it will be a more permanent type of improvement than that.

This month your hostess took a few days out to accompany her daughter on an airplane trip to Detroit where the daughter lined her purse with some shekels as a result of her driving accomplishments.

The following families received the complimentary booklet and call during August:

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Handling were transferred here from Norfolk for the packing plant there. Mr. Handling is a label mechanic and is employed in the local plant. The children are Deane 11, Marceline 6 and David 5 months. Mrs. Handling has already discovered the friendliness of her neighbors and the town. She finds the hills inviting as a contrast to her former home. The family is living at 1909 Main street.

As we approached the house at 324 South 12th street, we sniffed the home-like fragrance of newly-baked bread, baked by the domestic Mrs. Albert H. Bruns. This family moved here from Dunbar recently and since their arrival have purchased the Henry Taylor residence to which they will soon move. Mr. Bruns is employed at the Lyman-Richey Sand and Gravel company. The children are Marlam 14, Joy 12, Florence 11, Gene 10, Dale 6, and Ruth 4. The favorite recreation of the Bruns is dancing. Mrs. Bruns is the aunt of Mrs. Wm. Henriksen, Jr.

Also living at 324 So. 12th street is a new family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dalbow and their daughter, Constance, 8. They are related to the Albert H. Bruns family and formerly lived at Oteo. Mr. Bruns also work at the Lyman-Richey Sand and Gravel company. He was formerly employed at the Cass County Motor company but only moved his family here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hunter who came from Pacific Junction, Iowa, live at 215 North Third street in the Meisinger apartments. Mr. Hunter is employed as a mechanic at the Claude A. Ruse Auto company. Little Sharon Lee, 4, had already made friends with the children and they were having a lot of fun playing together. Mrs. Meisinger's little granddaughter was visiting her in the house and added to the festivities.

Also living in the Meisinger apartments is Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Nichols who formerly lived at Weeping Water. He was employed there by Ray Norris farming but now is working at the bomber plant. Mrs. Nichols' hobby is crocheting and she showed us a beautiful lace tablecloth she had just finished.

Please continue to notify Mrs. Giles or Mrs. Thomsen when you have new tenants or neighbors locating here from out of town.
