

Drastic Rules as to Sales of Cars in State

Cars and Trucks Delivered to Dealers After January 16th Not to Be Sold Until Next Year.

Nebraska's 1,600 automobile and truck dealers received a stiff jolt Thursday when State Rationing Officer McFadden announced that no new cars or trucks delivered to them after Jan. 16 can be sold until sometime next year. In addition they must, if ordered to do so, surrender the tires and tubes on such equipment to the office of price administration.

McFadden said this would be a serious blow to many dealers and that he could not predict what the outcome would be. He explained that the government was "freezing" these cars, some 130,000 of them, in order that cars would be available in 1943.

Orders were also received from Washington demanding that all persons who took delivery on a 1942 model car or truck after Jan. 1 to present conclusive evidence to their local rationing board showing the order was placed prior to that date. At the same time the OPA also released passenger cars, trucks not included, for delivery by dealers if the purchaser can prove to his rationing board that the order was placed prior to Jan. 1. This must be done between Feb. 12 and 26. After that the regular rationing program will go into effect.

McFadden said that according to records compiled by the state motor vehicle division there were several hundred transfers of new cars made after the "freeze" order was issued Jan. 1. "Every person must present evidence showing that such transfer was proper in every way," he declared. Cancelled checks, purchase orders or other papers customarily used by the industry will be considered as evidence by the local rationing boards.

If the board issues a certificate to the purchaser he must have the number of that written on his title certificate by the county clerk and then return the rationing certificate to the dealer or to the person from whom the car was purchased.

All 1942 models owned by individuals are still "frozen" and cannot be sold until after Feb. 26. After that date they may be sold either to a person who has been issued a purchase certificate by his rationing board or turned back to the dealer.

ATTEND OPERA

From Saturday's Daily—Mrs. L. S. Devoe and Mrs. Roy Knorr were visitors in Lincoln last evening to attend the opera presented by the College of Fine Arts of the University of Nebraska. Miss Jean Knorr was in the production as a member of the special chorus. Miss Elizabeth Farquhar, of Omaha, gave an outstanding performance as the leading soprano of the opera. Bill Knorr, a student at Doane, went in to Lincoln to attend with Stephen Devoe and both of these young men came home for the week-end.

Cass County Farm Bureau Notes

Copy furnished from Office of County Agent Waldo.

Cass County Feeders Day
The second annual Cass County Feeders Day has been tentatively set for February 25th. The Weeping Water Luncheon club will cooperate in sponsoring the meeting which will be held at the Agricultural Auditorium.

A full day's program of interest to both men and women is being planned. The efficient production of crops, livestock, and food for the family will all receive major attention on the program.

Orchard Meeting
Fruit growers will have an opportunity to see an orchard pruning demonstration and discuss fruit growing with E. H. Hoppert in Cass county the afternoon of February 12. The meeting will probably be held on the R. G. Kiser farm southwest of Plattsmouth.

Clean Seed
Pound for pound, agricultural seeds are one of the most expensive items which a farmer buys. In case there is any doubt as to the purity or germination, a sample of the seed should be sent to the state seed laboratory at the Nebraska state capitol in Lincoln. An analysis will be made free of charge. Many farms are now badly infested with noxious weeds because someone was careless in the purchase or exchange of seed.

Garden Radio Broadcasts
The latest information on gardens will be presented the first Saturday in each month on the Farm Facts and Fun radio broadcast over a statewide wireless network, according to information received here by the county extension agents.

E. H. Hoppert, extension horticulturist at the College of Agriculture, is to appear on these programs in discussing recommended gardening practices. The information fits in the "Nebraska Victory Home and Garden Program."

Clarke-McNary Trees
No more orders for Blenheim apricot and tamarix trees can be accepted at the Cass county extension office, Earl Maxwell, extension forester at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, reports that supplies of these trees available for purchase under terms of the Clarke-McNary list can be ordered. Cost of the seedlings does not exceed 2 cents each. Application blanks which list and describe the varieties, and give information on planting and care of the trees, can be obtained at the extension office in Weeping Water.

Spring Sewing Under Way
The hum of 48 sewing machines in the county is giving great satisfaction to the owners as they go about their spring sewing. These machines were brought into the three clinics, held at Eagle, Murdock and Weeping Water, where they were taken apart and thoroughly cleaned, oiled and reassembled. Minor repairs and adjustments together with the cleaning helped to put these machines in good condition.

The fifty-four women attending not only find their machines running much better but they have more confidence in being able to clean and adjust their own machines as the need arises.

Kerr Canning Contest
Miss Evelyn Wolph, Nehawka, carried away top honors in the county Kerr canning contest. Miss Wolph's six-jar exhibit, (consisting of two jars of fruit, two jars of meat, and two jars of non-acid vegetables) will be entered in the state Kerr contest which is being held this week in connection with Organized Agriculture.

Ten entries were made in the county contest with Mrs. Hall Pollard and Mrs. Oren Pollard, both of Nehawka, placing second and third respectively. This contest is sponsored by the Kerr Glass company for the purpose of encouraging better and more home canning.

More Food Production for Cass County

Farm Security Administration Offering New Type of Farm Loan in Interest of Production

A new type of farm loan and a streamlined Farm Security Administration program for more food production was announced today by Leonard Hanks Cass County FSA supervisor.

"Farm Security has been placed on a war-time footing and from now on every effort will be for the increased production of foodstuffs so vital to winning the war," said Mr. Hanks. "Our job is going to be to help all of our borrower families to produce more food, and also to extend our loans and facilities to many other small farmers who can help, and who have previously not been eligible for our program."

"To do this, we have eliminated a great deal of red tap and have revised our procedure to save all possible time. In addition, we have instituted, among other things, a special Food for Freedom loan up to $500 for the purpose of helping farmers get started right now on production."

All FSA families in Cass county will be asked to revise their farm plans to include additional food production. Mr. Hanks said. He emphasized that Farm Security goals are superimposed on the national goals set for all farmers.

Farm Security will lend, he explained, up to $500 to farmers now not in the program, and in some instances previously ineligible. This group will include elderly couples, farmers with small units and in some cases people working in town but having rural land available for crops or livestock. In addition FSA will make calf-hen-sow-garden loans to young people in farm families.

Broader emphasis will be placed on the co-op loan program, Mr. Hanks said, with anticipation loans available for building or expansion of cheese factories, milk and egg drying plants, storage and warehouse facilities for food, and repair of machinery.

Expansion of the FSA medical program for low-income farm families will be urged, Mr. Hanks said, to improve the health of these families and thus insure their ability to carry the heavy war production load.

"Farm Security is the agency charged with the welfare of these families," said Mr. Hanks, "and is also the agency with the means and capacities for helping them. We have been given the responsibility for helping them to boost our food production and this new program is drawn for that purpose."

Mr. Hanks pointed out that increased food production must come from the small farmer, who for various reasons has not operated at full strength. The big, efficient farm units are producing about all they can produce, he said, but the little farm can produce more.

The Farm Security county council for Cass county, Mr. Hanks said, will be called on to render more service in the emergency by helping FSA to work more closely with its families and with the public. The council members are: J. Elmer Hallstrom, Avoca; Hall A. Pollard, Nehawka; Martin Elum, Weeping Water; Henry E. Iske, Louisville; George McFadden, Avoca; Walter J. Wunderlich, Nehawka; Alfred Bornemeier, Elmwood; Willard H. Waldo, Weeping Water; Henry C. Backemeyer, Murdock; Simon C. Boyles, Alvo.
